HISTORY HACK™

Welcome to the U.S. History DBQ Workbook

The Complete Primary Source Collection · Units 1–10 · Standards US.01–US.95

This workbook is a complete, standards-aligned document-based question (DBQ) program for eleventh-grade U.S. History. Across ten units — from the Rise of Industrialization to the present day — it gathers 140 primary sources, fourteen per unit, and turns each set into a full DBQ investigation: read the evidence, source it, and build an argument.

Every excerpt is college / AP-depth — the kind of substantial, close-reading passage students meet on the AP exam and in first-year college courses — not a watered-down summary. That rigor is the shared core of the book. What surrounds it is designed so that every learner can reach it, because this workbook is built on Universal Design for Learning (UDL) and a Multi-Tiered System of Supports (MTSS).

WHAT EACH UNIT CONTAINS

- Primary Source Packet — fourteen sourced documents with guided analysis (an Analyze question and a higher-order Extend question for each).
- DBQ Worksheets — a HIPPO sourcing organizer, a CER argument builder, a scoring rubric, and a document bank.
- Two editions — a Scaffolded edition with UDL supports visible, and an AP / Clean edition with them hidden. A separate Teacher Answer Key provides exemplars and rubrics.

One rigorous text, many pathways in. The document excerpt never changes between editions or tiers — only the support around it does. Teachers can raise or remove supports to fit any learner without ever lowering the bar.

★ COMMEMORATING AMERICA'S 250TH ANNIVERSARY · 1776–2026 ★

How to Use This Book

Every unit follows the same rhythm: a Primary Source Packet of fourteen documents, then a DBQ Worksheet set for analyzing them and building an argument. The same rigorous, AP-depth excerpts sit at the center of every document — what changes is the support around them, by design.

UDL — THE TERMINOLOGY

UDL rests on three principles, each answering a different question about learning:

- Multiple Means of Representation — the “what” of learning. Each source includes a plain-language gist, historical context, and key-term glossary, so the same rigorous text is accessible through more than one pathway.
- Multiple Means of Action & Expression — the “how” of learning. Students may show understanding by writing the CER response, recording a spoken explanation, or building an evidence map.
- Multiple Means of Engagement — the “why” of learning. Entry questions, a “why it matters” connection to today, and student choice build relevance and ownership.

MTSS & THE TWO EDITIONS

The gold UDL Access Supports boxes are Tier 1 supports — built in for all students. This book prints in two editions from the same sources: the Scaffolded edition (supports visible) and the AP / Clean edition (supports hidden for advanced readers). Teachers may raise or remove supports to meet Tier 2 and Tier 3 needs — the rigor of the shared excerpt never changes.

TWO ANALYSIS FRAMEWORKS

HIPPO — for sourcing a document:

Historical context · Intended audience · Purpose · Point of view ·
Outside information.

CER — for building the argument:

Claim · Evidence · Reasoning, drawn from the documents.

A dagger (†) beside a source marks a cite-and-flag note — a reconstructed or specially-handled excerpt whose provenance is explained in the “Note on Sources.” It is a small reminder of a large idea this book teaches: always ask where the evidence comes from.

Research, Sourcing & Credits

Curriculum, Design & Standards Alignment: History Hack — TroopToTeacher Technologies, LLC

Source Research, Image Curation & Evidence Validation: Isabella Stuart, Sourcing Researcher

“As sourcing researcher for History Hack, my charge is simple and serious: every document a student meets on these pages should be authentic, accurately attributed, and worthy of trust. I locate and vet each primary source, confirm its citation and date, curate the imagery that brings each era to life, and clearly flag any passage reconstructed for classroom use. Where a source is abridged, I preserve its meaning; where it is quoted, I preserve its words. My goal is that rigor and honesty stand behind every excerpt — so that teachers can trust what they teach, and students can learn to trust, and question, the evidence for themselves.”

— ISABELLA STUART · SOURCE RESEARCH & EVIDENCE VALIDATION

A NOTE ON SOURCES

This collection draws on three kinds of material, each handled transparently:

- Public-domain records — U.S. government speeches, statutes, Supreme Court opinions, and official reports are quoted directly from the public record.
- Brief excerpts of copyrighted works — where a modern author’s or speaker’s words are essential (e.g., King, Friedan, Carson), only a short, fully attributed excerpt is used for classroom analysis and criticism under the fair-use doctrine, with rights acknowledged to the holder.
- Reconstructed representative voices — a few documents are clearly marked composite or “typical” accounts (oral-history style) that represent well-documented historical experiences rather than quoting a specific named person, and are never presented as verbatim quotations of an individual.

Images and unit cover art were curated and, where generated, reviewed to avoid depicting identifiable real historical figures. Standards citations follow the Tennessee Academic Standards for Social Studies (U.S. History & Geography, US.01–US.95).

US.01

Homestead Act

US.01 — Analyze the impact of the Homestead Act and the Transcontinental Railroad on settlement and development of the West.

Source: U.S. Congress, Homestead Act · May 20, 1862 (12 Stat. 392)

“That any person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or who shall have filed his declaration of intention to become such, as required by the naturalization laws... shall... be entitled to enter one quarter section or a less quantity of unappropriated public lands, upon which said person may have filed a preemption claim, or which may, at the time the application is made, be subject to preemption... That the person applying for the benefit of this act shall, upon application to the register of the land office in which he or she is about to make such entry, make affidavit before the said register or receiver that he or she is the head of a family, or is twenty-one years or more of age, or shall have performed service in the army or navy of the United States, and that he has never borne arms against the Government of the United States or given aid and comfort to its enemies, and that such application is made for his or her exclusive use and benefit, and that said entry is made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation, and not, either directly or indirectly, for the use or benefit of any other person or persons whomsoever.”

KEY TERMS quarter section — 160 acres of land · unappropriated — unclaimed; not yet assigned to anyone · affidavit — a written statement sworn to be true

ANALYZE

According to the Homestead Act, who was eligible to claim public land — and what conditions did they have to meet?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The act required claimants to swear the land was for their own “actual settlement.” What problem in earlier land policy was this rule likely written to prevent?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Adult citizens (or immigrants who declared they wanted to become citizens) could claim 160 acres of public land — but only if they swore they would actually settle and farm it themselves, not claim it for someone else.

ENTRY QUESTION

What is the largest amount of land one person could claim under this act?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After 1862 the federal government tried to fill the West with small farmers by giving public land away almost for free. Millions of acres — much of it taken from Native nations — passed into settler hands.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: “_____.”

US.01

Pacific Railway Act

US.01 — Analyze the impact of the Homestead Act and the Transcontinental Railroad on settlement and development of the West.

Source: U.S. Congress, Pacific Railway Act · July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. 489)

“That there be, and is hereby, granted to the said company, for the purpose of aiding in the construction of said railroad and telegraph line, and to secure the safe and speedy transportation of the mails, troops, munitions of war, and public stores thereon, every alternate section of public land, designated by odd numbers, to the amount of five alternate sections per mile on each side of said railroad, on the line thereof, and within the limits of ten miles on each side of said road, not sold, reserved, or otherwise disposed of by the United States, and to which a preemption or homestead claim may not have attached, at the time the line of said road is definitely fixed: Provided, That all mineral lands shall be excepted from the operation of this act; but where the same shall contain timber, the timber thereon is hereby granted to said company. And be it further enacted, That the United States shall extinguish, as rapidly as may be, the Indian titles to all lands falling under the operation of this act and required for the said right of way and grants hereinafter made.”

KEY TERMS alternate section — every other square mile of land · extinguish — eliminate or end · Indian titles — Native American land ownership claims

ANALYZE

What does this excerpt reveal about federal policy toward Native Americans during railroad construction?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The same government that gave land to settlers (Doc 1) and railroads (Doc 2) first had to “extinguish... the Indian titles.” Whose interests did federal land policy serve, and at whose expense?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Congress gave the railroad companies huge grants of public land — every other square mile in a wide strip along the tracks — and promised to remove Native land claims from that route “as rapidly as may be.”

ENTRY QUESTION

How much land did the company receive for each mile of track built?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

To build a railroad across the continent, the government paid private companies not just in money but in land — much of it Native homeland — turning railroads into some of the largest landowners in the West.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 3

Dawes General Allotment Act

US.02 — Analyze the impact of federal policies toward American Indians including the Dawes Act.

Source: U.S. Congress, Dawes General Allotment Act · February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388)

“That in all cases where any tribe or band of Indians has been, or shall hereafter be, located upon any reservation created for their use, either by treaty stipulation or by virtue of an act of Congress or executive order setting apart the same for their use, the President of the United States be, and he hereby is, authorized, whenever in his opinion any reservation or any part thereof of such Indians is advantageous for agricultural and grazing purposes, to cause said reservation, or any part thereof, to be surveyed... and to allot the lands in said reservation in severalty to any Indian located thereon in quantities as follows: To each head of a family, one-quarter of a section; to each single person over eighteen years of age, one-eighth of a section... And... the United States does and will hold the land thus allotted, for the period of twenty-five years, in trust for the sole use and benefit of the Indian to whom such allotment shall have been made... and that at the expiration of said period the United States will convey the same by patent to said Indian, or his heirs... in fee, discharged of said trust.”

KEY TERMS severalty — individual ownership rather than tribal ownership · allot — divide and distribute · in trust — held and controlled by the government on someone’s behalf

ANALYZE

What was the main purpose of the Dawes Act based on this excerpt — and what did it do to tribal landholding?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The word “severalty” means individual, not collective, ownership. How did replacing tribal ownership with individual plots serve the government’s larger goals?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The government broke up tribally owned reservations and assigned separate plots to individual Native people — but kept legal control of that land “in trust” for 25 years, so owners could not freely use or sell it.

ENTRY QUESTION

How much land was each head of a family given under the Dawes Act?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Reformers claimed the Dawes Act would help Native people by making them individual farmers. In practice, dividing tribal land opened tens of millions of “surplus” acres to white settlement and weakened tribal nations.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 4

US.02

Rules for Indian Schools

US.02 — Analyze the impact of federal policies toward American Indians including boarding schools.

Source: Office of Indian Affairs, Rules for Indian Schools · 1890 †

“All instruction must be in the English language. Pupils must be compelled to converse with each other in English, and should be properly rebuked or punished for persistent violation of this rule... The pupils must be taught to regard labor as honorable and idleness as debasing, and should be so trained as to enable them to become self-supporting... They should be taught to be self-respecting and self-reliant, but respectful and obedient to lawful authority... A patriotic atmosphere should be maintained, and the great truths of morality and the value of good citizenship kept constantly before the pupils; the national holidays should be observed with appropriate exercises. Pupils should be required to bathe frequently, to keep their hair combed, and their clothing clean and neatly mended... Every effort should be made to encourage them to abandon their tribal customs and to adopt in their place the habits and manners of civilized life.”

KEY TERMS compelled — forced · rebuked — scolded or criticized harshly · debasing — lowering in value or character

ANALYZE

What does this document reveal about the goals of Indian boarding schools?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is an official rulebook — written to be followed, not published to persuade. How does that purpose make its blunt statements about “tribal customs” especially revealing to a historian?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Government boarding-school rules banned Native languages, required English at all times, and openly aimed to make children give up their tribal customs — using punishment to enforce it.

ENTRY QUESTION

What language were pupils required to speak, and what happened if they broke the rule?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Federal boarding schools followed a policy summarized as “Kill the Indian, save the man.” Children were taken from their families and punished for speaking their own languages, part of a deliberate effort to erase Native cultures.

DOCUMENT 5US.03*Plessy v. Ferguson

US.03 — Analyze the Compromise of 1877, the implementation of Jim Crow laws, and efforts to resist discrimination.

Source: Supreme Court of the United States, Plessy v. Ferguson · May 18, 1896 (163 U.S. 537)

“We consider the underlying fallacy of the plaintiff’s argument to consist in the assumption that the enforced separation of the two races stamps the colored race with a badge of inferiority. If this be so, it is not by reason of anything found in the act, but solely because the colored race chooses to put that construction upon it. The argument necessarily assumes that if... the colored race should become the dominant power in the state legislature, and should enact a law in precisely similar terms, it would thereby relegate the white race to an inferior position. We imagine that the white race, at least, would not acquiesce in this assumption. The argument also assumes that social prejudices may be overcome by legislation, and that equal rights cannot be secured to the negro except by an enforced commingling of the two races... If the two races are to meet upon terms of social equality, it must be the result of natural affinities, a mutual appreciation of each other’s merits, and a voluntary consent of individuals.”

KEY TERMS fallacy — mistaken belief or faulty reasoning · enforced separation — legally required segregation · badge of inferiority — a mark showing someone is treated as lesser

ANALYZE

What argument did the Supreme Court make to justify segregation in Plessy v. Ferguson?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Justice Harlan’s lone dissent called the Constitution “color-blind.” What assumption in the majority’s reasoning was he attacking — and why has history sided with him?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Court claimed that laws separating the races did not make Black Americans inferior — and that if Black people felt insulted by segregation, that was their own interpretation, not the law’s fault.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to the Court, whose fault was it if segregation felt like a “badge of inferiority”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

This 1896 ruling created the “separate but equal” doctrine that made segregation legal across the South for nearly 60 years, until Brown v. Board of Education overturned it in 1954.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: “_____.”

Benjamin “Pap” Singleton Testimony

Source: Benjamin “Pap” Singleton, U.S. Senate testimony · 1880 †

“My people, for the want of land—we needed land for our children—and their disadvantages—that caused my heart to grieve and sorrow; pity for my race, sir, that was coming down, instead of going up—that caused me to go to work for them. Right emphatically, I tell you today, I woke them up; and I have sent out perhaps seventy thousand to ninety thousand... I am the whole cause of the Kansas immigration... They see, sir, that they cannot live here in peace and get their rights, and so they are going where they can be free. We have found no leaders to take up our cause but the great God above, and Him we trust. I said to my people, ‘Let us go to Kansas and buy our own land, and make our own homes, and be men.’ And they went, and they are doing well; and I am proud of every one that has gone.”

KEY TERMS emphatically — with strong emphasis or conviction · the Kansas immigration — the Black “Exoduster” migration to Kansas after Reconstruction

ANALYZE

According to Singleton, what motivated him to organize African American migration to Kansas?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Compare Singleton’s testimony with the Court in Plessy (Doc 5). How is leaving the South its own form of resistance to Jim Crow?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Singleton, a formerly enslaved man, explains that he organized tens of thousands of Black Southerners to move to Kansas because they could not get land or a fair chance in the South — and he proudly claims credit for the movement.

ENTRY QUESTION

Roughly how many people does Singleton say he helped move to Kansas?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After Reconstruction collapsed, thousands of Black Southerners — the “Exodusters” — left the South for Kansas seeking land and safety from rising white violence. Singleton was one of the movement’s organizers.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

Pendleton Civil Service Reform Act

US.04 — Analyze the major social and political issues of the Gilded Age including political machines and reform efforts.

Source: U.S. Congress, Pendleton Civil Service Act · January 16, 1883 (22 Stat. 403) †

“...the persons so classified... shall be selected... by open, competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the public service now classified or to be classified hereunder... that there shall be noncompetitive examinations in all proper cases before the commission, when competent persons do not compete... That no person in the public service is for that reason under any obligations to contribute to any political fund, or to render any political service, and... he will not be removed or otherwise prejudiced for refusing to do so... That no person in said service has any right to use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person or body.”

KEY TERMS classified — covered by the new merit rules · public service — government employment · coerce — force or pressure someone

ANALYZE

What problem was the Pendleton Act designed to address?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Read this next to Bryce’s description of the “Boss” (Doc 14). How does the exam requirement directly attack the machine’s source of power?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The law said government jobs should be won by passing fair, competitive exams — not handed out as political favors — and that workers could not be fired for refusing to donate money or work for a political party.

ENTRY QUESTION

How does the act say government workers should now be selected?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

For decades, winning politicians handed government jobs to loyal supporters (the “spoils system”). After a disappointed office-seeker assassinated President Garfield in 1881, Congress finally passed merit-based reform.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The Gospel of Wealth

US.05 — Analyze the contributions of inventors and entrepreneurs including Edison, Carnegie, and Madam C.J. Walker.

Source: Andrew Carnegie, “Wealth,” North American Review · June 1889

“This, then, is held to be the duty of the man of Wealth: First, to set an example of modest, unostentatious living, shunning display or extravagance; to provide moderately for the legitimate wants of those dependent upon him; and after doing so to consider all surplus revenues which come to him simply as trust funds, which he is called upon to administer... in the manner which, in his judgment, is best calculated to produce the most beneficial results for the community — the man of wealth thus becoming the mere trustee and agent for his poorer brethren, bringing to their service his superior wisdom, experience, and ability to administer, doing for them better than they would or could do for themselves... Thus is the problem of Rich and Poor to be solved. The laws of accumulation will be left free; the laws of distribution free. Individualism will continue, but the millionaire will be but a trustee for the poor; intrusted for a season with a great part of the increased wealth of the community, but administering it for the community far better than it could or would have done for itself.”

KEY TERMS unostentatious — not showy or flashy · surplus revenues — extra money beyond what is needed · trustee — someone trusted to manage money or property for others

ANALYZE

According to Carnegie, what responsibility did wealthy individuals have?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Carnegie was himself one of the wealthiest industrialists in America. How might his point of view shape this argument — and who stays in control of the wealth in his vision?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Carnegie says the rich should live simply, provide for their families, and then treat all their extra money as a fund they are duty-bound to give away wisely for the public good — acting as “trustees” who supposedly know better than the poor how to spend it.

ENTRY QUESTION

After providing for his own family, what does Carnegie say a wealthy person should do with the money left over?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Andrew Carnegie built a fortune in steel and became one of the richest men in America. In this 1889 essay he defended great wealth by arguing the rich had a duty to give it away during their lifetimes.

US.05

Madam C.J. Walker, Address to the N.N.B.L.

US.05 — Analyze the contributions of inventors and entrepreneurs including Edison, Carnegie, and Madam C.J. Walker.

Source: Madam C.J. Walker, Address to the National Negro Business League · 1912 †

“I am a woman who came from the cotton fields of the South. From there I was promoted to the washtub. From there I was promoted to the cook kitchen. And from there I promoted myself into the business of manufacturing hair goods and preparations... I have built my own factory on my own ground... I am not merely satisfied in making money for myself, for I am endeavoring to provide employment for hundreds of the women of my race. Please don’t think, because you hear of me disbursing money, that I am rich. I am not; but what money I have, I am willing to lend to the cause of my people. My object in life is not simply to make money for myself or to spend it on myself in dressing or running around in an automobile; I love to use a part of what I make in trying to help others.”

KEY TERMS promoted myself — advanced by my own effort, without waiting for permission · hair goods and preparations — hair-care products

ANALYZE

What does Walker’s account reveal about how she defined her own success?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Place Walker beside Carnegie (Doc 8). Both are wealthy entrepreneurs — but how do their ideas about the purpose of their wealth differ, and how might their very different life stories explain that?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In her own words, Walker traces her rise from cotton fields to washerwoman to cook to founder of her own factory — stressing that she built it herself and used her success to employ hundreds of Black women.

ENTRY QUESTION

List the jobs Walker held on her way to owning a business.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Born to formerly enslaved parents, Madam C.J. Walker built a hair-care empire and became one of the first self-made female millionaires in America — while creating jobs and independence for thousands of Black women.

DOCUMENT 10US.06*How the Other Half Lives

US.06 — Analyze the impact of industrialization on urban development and immigration.

Source: Jacob Riis, How the Other Half Lives · 1890

“In the tenements all the influences make for evil; because they are the hot-beds of the epidemics that carry death to rich and poor alike; the nurseries of pauperism and crime that fill our jails and police courts; that throw off a scum of forty thousand human wrecks to the island asylums and workhouses year by year; that turned out in the last eight years a round half million beggars to prey upon our charities; that maintain a standing army of ten thousand tramps with all that that implies; because, above all, they touch the family life with deadly moral contagion. This is their worst crime, inseparable from the system. That we have to own it the child of our own wrong does not excuse it, even though it gives it claim upon our utmost patience and tenderest charity.”

KEY TERMS tenements — overcrowded urban apartment buildings · pauperism — extreme poverty · contagion — the spreading of something harmful, like a disease

ANALYZE

How does Jacob Riis characterize living conditions in tenements?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Riis wanted to shock middle-class readers into reform. How might that purpose shape his word choices (“hot-beds,” “human wrecks,” “moral contagion”) — and does persuasion make a source less reliable, or just reveal its point of view?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Riis argues that overcrowded tenements breed disease, crime, and poverty that spill out onto the whole city — and that their worst harm is the damage they do to family life.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two problems Riis says the tenements produce.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Jacob Riis was a reporter and early photographer whose images and writing exposed the brutal conditions of New York’s immigrant slums, helping spark Progressive-era housing reform.

“We came to America because we heard the streets were paved with gold. When we got here, we found out three things: First, the streets weren’t paved with gold; second, they weren’t paved at all; and third, we were expected to pave them.”

SOURCING NOTE This is an oral folk saying, not a document from a single verified author. It is included as an example of how ordinary people remembered the immigrant experience — and as a lesson in sourcing.

ANALYZE

What does this folk saying reveal about the immigrant experience in America?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

A law (like Doc 12) has a clear author and date; this saying does not. What can a historian still learn from an anonymous folk saying — and what must they be careful about?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This popular saying jokes that immigrants came expecting easy riches but found only hard, low-paid labor — they were the ones expected to build America, not to strike it rich.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the immigrants expect to find, and what did they actually find?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Millions of southern and eastern European immigrants arrived in this era hoping for opportunity, but most found grueling work in construction, factories, and mines rather than the wealth the myth promised.

DOCUMENT 12US.07*Chinese Exclusion Act

US.07 — Compare and contrast old and new immigration, including responses such as the Chinese Exclusion Act.

Source: U.S. Congress, Chinese Exclusion Act · May 6, 1882 (22 Stat. 58)

“Whereas, in the opinion of the Government of the United States the coming of Chinese laborers to this country endangers the good order of certain localities within the territory thereof: Therefore, Be it enacted... That from and after the expiration of ninety days next after the passage of this act, and until the expiration of ten years next after the passage of this act, the coming of Chinese laborers to the United States be, and the same is hereby, suspended; and during such suspension it shall not be lawful for any Chinese laborer to come, or, having so come after the expiration of said ninety days, to remain within the United States. That the master of any vessel who shall knowingly bring within the United States on such vessel, and land or permit to be landed, any Chinese laborer, from any foreign port or place, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.”

KEY TERMS Whereas — a formal word introducing the reason for a law · suspended — temporarily stopped or banned · expiration — end of a time period

ANALYZE

What was the stated justification for the Chinese Exclusion Act?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The law states its reason in its own preamble (“endangers the good order”). How is a law’s stated purpose different from its real purpose — and what outside evidence would you need to tell them apart?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Congress declared that Chinese laborers “endangered” public order and used that claim to ban them from entering the country — the first U.S. law to bar an entire nationality of immigrants.

ENTRY QUESTION

Which specific group of people does this law ban from entering the country?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Chinese Exclusion Act was the first federal law to ban immigrants by nationality. It reflected intense anti-Chinese prejudice, especially in the West, and stayed in force for decades.

Twenty Years at Hull-House

US.07 — Compare and contrast old and new immigration, including responses such as the Chinese Exclusion Act.

Source: Jane Addams, Twenty Years at Hull-House · 1910 †

“Hull-House was soberly opened on the theory that the dependence of classes on each other is reciprocal... We were ready to perform the humblest neighborhood services. We were asked to wash the new-born babies, and to prepare the dead for burial, to nurse the sick, and to mind the children. Occasionally these neighborly offices unexpectedly uncovered ugly human tragedies... The first three years of Hull-House were spent in getting acquainted with our neighbors and in bringing to bear whatever we had of social resource and understanding upon the individual and neighborhood problems which we found on every hand. Poverty and overcrowding, the long hours and the dangerous trades, pressed in upon us from every side, and we slowly discovered that whatever of good we might accomplish must rest upon the solid foundation of a genuine relationship with the people among whom we had cast our lot.”

KEY TERMS reciprocal — mutual; benefiting both sides · settlement house — a community center offering services to poor, often immigrant, neighborhoods

ANALYZE

According to Jane Addams, what was the philosophy behind Hull-House?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Chinese Exclusion Act (Doc 12) and Hull-House (Doc 13) are two American responses to immigration in the same era. What do they reveal about the nation’s divided attitudes toward newcomers?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Addams describes Hull-House as founded on the belief that rich and poor need each other — and that its workers helped immigrant neighbors with the most basic human needs, from newborns to the dead.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two of the “neighborhood services” Addams says Hull-House provided.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Jane Addams co-founded Hull-House, a Chicago “settlement house” that helped immigrant families with childcare, education, and health — a model of Progressive reform led largely by women.

Bryce on the Political “Boss”

US.04 — Analyze the major social and political issues of the Gilded Age including political machines and reform efforts.

Source: James Bryce, The American Commonwealth · 1888 †

“A ‘Boss’... is the leader of a party ‘ring’ or ‘machine.’... He has usually become a Boss by the skill and assiduity with which he has managed men and organizations, and by the courage and coolness which mark him out as a leader... He has no real interest in the welfare of the public, his object being to keep his party, and especially his own faction of the party, in power, because power means the disposal of offices, of contracts, and of public money... To obtain and hold this power he must have a compact and disciplined organization, and this organization he creates and controls.”

KEY TERMS ring / machine — a tightly organized group that controlled city politics · disposal of offices — the power to hand out government jobs and contracts · faction — a smaller group within a party

ANALYZE

How does Bryce’s description of the political “Boss” help explain why the Pendleton Civil Service Reform Act (Doc 7) was needed?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Bryce was a British outsider studying American democracy. How might that distance make his analysis sharper — and where might it make him miss things an insider would know?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Bryce describes the political “Boss” as a leader who cares nothing for the public good — only for keeping power, because power lets him control government jobs, contracts, and money through a tightly disciplined machine.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Bryce, what does the Boss really want power for?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Gilded Age cities were often run by “machines” led by a boss who traded jobs and favors for votes. Bryce, a British observer, analyzed American politics for outside readers.

Document-Based Question

Rise of Industrialization (1877–1900)
Standards US.01 – US.07

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

Between 1877 and 1900, the United States expanded westward and industrialized at an extraordinary pace. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which this era of growth expanded opportunity for some groups of Americans while denying it to others.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Between 1877 and 1900 the country grew fast. Did that growth help some groups of Americans while hurting or shutting out others? Use the documents to argue how much.

WHY IT MATTERS

the same question — who benefits from growth, and who gets left behind — still drives debates about the economy today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: who gained opportunity, and who was denied it.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — both expanded and denied opportunity — or the tension between them.

US.08

The History of the Standard Oil Company

US.08 — Analyze the rise of the Progressive movement and the role of muckrakers in exposing corruption and abuses of power.

Source: Ida M. Tarbell, McClure's Magazine / book edition · 1904 †

“Mr. Rockefeller has systematically played with loaded dice, and it is doubtful if there has ever been a time since 1872 when he has run a race with a competitor and started fair. Business played in this way loses all its sportsmanlike qualities. It is fit only for tricksters... Now, if the Standard Oil Company were the only concern in the country guilty of these practices, one might hesitate to describe them as characteristic of an industrial epoch. But the Standard Oil Company is simply the most conspicuous type of the business man's way of doing things... They have introduced into business a spirit which despises the rules of fair play. Very often people who admit the facts, who are willing to see that Mr. Rockefeller has employed force and fraud to secure his ends, justify him by declaring, ‘It's business.’ ... We are a commercial people. We cannot boast of our science... but we can boast of our capacity for making money, and we do. We make a national ideal of it.”

KEY TERMS loaded dice — a rigged game; cheating · conspicuous — easily seen; standing out · epoch — a period or age in history

ANALYZE

According to Tarbell, how did Standard Oil gain its power — and why did she see this as a public problem?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Tarbell was a journalist writing to persuade readers, not a court issuing a verdict. How might that purpose shape her language (“loaded dice,” “public trust”) — and does it make her account less reliable, or just reveal her point of view?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Tarbell argues that Rockefeller built Standard Oil by cheating — competing unfairly rather than honestly — and that his company is just the most visible example of how big business really operated.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Tarbell accuse Rockefeller of doing to his competitors?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Ida Tarbell was a leading “muckraker” — a journalist who exposed corruption. Her investigation of Standard Oil helped turn public opinion against monopolies and fed the government's later breakup of the company.

US.09

The Jungle

US.09 — Analyze how muckrakers and reformers exposed unsafe conditions and spurred consumer-protection legislation.

Source: Upton Sinclair, The Jungle · 1906

“There would be meat stored in great piles in rooms; and the water from leaky roofs would drip over it, and thousands of rats would race about on it. It was too dark in these storage places to see well, but a man could run his hand over these piles of meat and sweep off handfuls of the dried dung of rats. These rats were nuisances, and the packers would put poisoned bread out for them; they would die, and then rats, bread, and meat would go into the hoppers together. This is no fairy story and no joke; the meat would be shoveled into carts, and the man who did the shoveling would not trouble to lift out a rat even when he saw one... There was never the least attention paid to what was cut up for sausage; there would come all the way back from Europe old sausage that had been rejected, and that was moldy and white — it would be dosed with borax and glycerine, and dumped into the hoppers, and made over again for home consumption.”

KEY TERMS hoppers — funnels or bins that feed material into a machine · nuisances — things that cause trouble or annoyance

ANALYZE

What conditions does Sinclair describe, and why would this passage alarm ordinary consumers?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Sinclair later said, “I aimed at the public's heart, and by accident I hit it in the stomach.” How does the reaction to this passage show the difference between an author's purpose and a source's actual effect?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Sinclair describes filthy, rat-infested meatpacking rooms where spoiled meat, poison, and dead rats were ground together — meant to horrify readers about what was in their food.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two things Sinclair says ended up mixed into the meat.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Sinclair wrote The Jungle to expose the harsh lives of immigrant workers, but readers were most shocked by the descriptions of the meat itself. The outcry helped pass the 1906 Pure Food and Drug Act and Meat Inspection Act.

DOCUMENT 3

US.08

The Shame of the Cities

US.08 — Analyze the rise of the Progressive movement and efforts to reform corrupt city government.

Source: Lincoln Steffens, McClure's Magazine · 1904 †

“The misgovernment of the American people is misgovernment by the American people... The people are not innocent. That is the only ‘news’ in all the journalism of these articles... The boss is not a political, he is an American institution, the product of a freed people that have not the spirit to be free... And it’s all a moral weakness; a weakness right where we think we are strongest. Oh, we are good — on Sunday, and we are ‘fearfully patriotic’ on the Fourth of July. But the... business man... has failed in politics as he has in citizenship. Why? Because politics is business. That’s what’s the matter with it. That’s what’s the matter with everything — art, literature, religion, journalism, law, medicine — they’re all business... The commercial spirit is the spirit of profit, not patriotism; of credit, not honor; of individual gain, not national prosperity; of trade and dickering, not principle.”

KEY TERMS misgovernment — bad or corrupt government · boss — the leader who secretly controlled a city political machine

ANALYZE

Why does Steffens blame ordinary citizens, not just political bosses, for urban corruption?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Steffens says the “boss” is an American institution produced by a people “that have not the spirit to be free.” If the problem is public apathy, what kind of reforms would actually solve it?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Steffens argues that corrupt city government is not just the fault of crooked bosses — ordinary citizens allow it by being uninvolved and caring more about business than civic duty.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Steffens, who is really responsible for bad city government?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Steffens investigated corruption in city after city. Rather than blame only the bosses, he told readers the real problem was their own apathy — a challenge meant to push citizens toward reform.

Pure Food and Drug Act

US.09 — Analyze consumer-protection and regulatory legislation of the Progressive Era.

Source: U.S. Congress · June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. 768)

“An Act for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes... That it shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture within any Territory or the District of Columbia any article of food or drug which is adulterated or misbranded, within the meaning of this Act... That the introduction into any State or Territory or the District of Columbia from any other State or Territory or the District of Columbia... of any article of food or drugs which is adulterated or misbranded, within the meaning of this Act, is hereby prohibited... That the term ‘drug,’ as used in this Act, shall include all medicines and preparations... for internal or external use, and the term ‘food’ shall include all articles used for food, drink, confectionery, or condiment by man or other animals, whether simple, mixed, or compound.”

KEY TERMS adulterated — made impure by adding a harmful or inferior substance · misbranded — labeled falsely or misleadingly · deleterious — harmful to health

ANALYZE

What problem was the Pure Food and Drug Act designed to fix, and how does it expand the federal government's role?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This law responds directly to muckraking (Docs 1–2). What does that connection reveal about how Progressive reform actually happened — from exposure to legislation?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This federal law made it illegal to make, sell, or ship food and drugs that were contaminated (“adulterated”) or falsely labeled (“misbranded”).

ENTRY QUESTION

What two problems with food and drugs does this law make illegal?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Public anger after The Jungle and the muckrakers pushed Congress to act. The Pure Food and Drug Act was one of the first federal laws to protect consumers and led to what became the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

The Man with the Muck-Rake

US.10 — Analyze the goals and limits of Progressive reform, including the response of political leaders.

Source: President Theodore Roosevelt, speech · April 14, 1906 †

“In Bunyan’s Pilgrim’s Progress you may recall the description of the Man with the Muck-rake, the man who could look no way but downward, with the muck-rake in his hand; who was offered a celestial crown for his muck-rake, but who would neither look up nor regard the crown he was offered, but continued to rake to himself the filth of the floor... In Pilgrim’s Progress the Man with the Muck-rake is set forth as the example of him whose vision is fixed on carnal instead of spiritual things. Yet he also typifies the man who in this life consistently refuses to see aught that is lofty, and fixes his eyes with solemn intentness only on that which is vile and debasing... The men with the muck-rakes are often indispensable to the well-being of society; but only if they know when to stop raking the muck... If they gradually grow to feel that the whole world is nothing but muck, their power of usefulness is gone.”

KEY TERMS celestial — heavenly · indispensable — absolutely necessary

ANALYZE

How does Roosevelt both praise and criticize the muckrakers in this speech?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Roosevelt was the president reformers were pressuring. How might his position explain why he wanted to both encourage exposure and set limits on it?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Roosevelt praises muckrakers for exposing wrongdoing but warns that if they only ever attack and see nothing good, they stop being useful and start doing harm.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Roosevelt, when do muckrakers stop being helpful?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Even a reform-minded president like Roosevelt worried the muckrakers could go too far. This 1906 speech both defended and limited them — and gave the “muckraker” movement its name.

Eyewitness to the Triangle Shirtwaist Fire

US.11 — Analyze labor conditions, workplace tragedies, and the drive for workplace-safety reform.

Source: William G. Shepherd, United Press dispatch · March 25, 1911 †

“I learned a new sound that day, a sound more horrible than description can picture — the thud of a speeding, living body on a stone sidewalk... I looked up and saw that there were scores of girls at the windows. The flames from the floor below were beating in their faces... They were burning to death in the windows. One by one the flames drove them out until the girls were jammed in the window frames, their clothing and hair on fire... They jumped. I saw the first girl jump. A policeman ran to where she fell. I saw her face before they covered it. I could not help thinking of a thing I had seen a week or two before — a doorway with a sign, ‘This door must be kept locked.’... The floods of water from the firemen’s hose that ran into the gutter were actually stained red with blood. I looked upon the heap of dead bodies and I remembered these girls were the shirtwaist makers.”

KEY TERMS shirtwaist — a woman’s blouse; the factory made these · scores — large numbers (a score = 20)

ANALYZE

What does this eyewitness account reveal about factory conditions for workers in 1911?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a reporter’s emotional first-person account, not an official report. What does that point of view capture that a government statistic could not — and what might it leave out?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A reporter describes watching young women, trapped by fire and locked exit doors, jump to their deaths from the Triangle factory — a horror that exposed deadly workplace conditions.

ENTRY QUESTION

Why could the workers not escape the burning factory?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The 1911 Triangle Shirtwaist fire killed 146 workers, mostly young immigrant women, partly because exit doors were locked to prevent breaks. The tragedy drove major workplace-safety and labor laws.

US.11

Muller v. Oregon

US.11 — Analyze labor legislation and Supreme Court decisions affecting workers during the Progressive Era.

Source: Supreme Court of the United States · February 24, 1908 (208 U.S. 412) †

“That woman’s physical structure and the performance of maternal functions place her at a disadvantage in the struggle for subsistence is obvious. This is especially true when the burdens of motherhood are upon her... As healthy mothers are essential to vigorous offspring, the physical well-being of woman becomes an object of public interest and care in order to preserve the strength and vigor of the race... The two sexes differ in structure of body, in the functions to be performed by each, in the amount of physical strength, in the capacity for long-continued labor, particularly when done standing... and in the self-reliance which enables one to assert full rights. Differentiated by these matters from the other sex, she is properly placed in a class by herself, and legislation designed for her protection may be sustained even when like legislation is not necessary for men and could not be sustained.”

KEY TERMS subsistence — the means of staying alive; earning a living · sustained — upheld; allowed to stand

ANALYZE

How did the Court justify limiting women’s working hours — and what assumption about women underlies its reasoning?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This decision protected women workers yet rested on the idea that women were weaker and defined by motherhood. How can a “reform” both help a group and reinforce inequality?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Supreme Court upheld a law limiting women’s working hours, reasoning that women needed special protection because of motherhood — treating them as a separate class from men.

ENTRY QUESTION

What reason does the Court give for allowing a special law protecting women workers?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Reformers won this case by arguing long hours harmed women’s health. The ruling protected women workers but also justified treating them differently from men — a mixed legacy for equality.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: “_____.”

Address on Child Labor

US.12 — Analyze reform efforts addressing child labor and the welfare of working families.

Source: Florence Kelley, National Consumers' League address · 1905 †

“We have, in this country, two million children under the age of sixteen years who are earning their bread. They vary in age from six and seven years... to sixteen years. Tonight while we sleep, several thousand little girls will be working in textile mills, all the night through... They will help to make our shoes in the shoe factories; they will help to knit our stockings, our knitted underwear, in the knitting factories. They will spin and weave our cotton underwear in the cotton mills. Little boys and girls, huddled together in the coal-breakers, will pick out the slate and the bits of stone from the coal so that we can have clean fuel for our furnaces. Little girls will carry bundles of garments from the factory to the tenement, little beasts of burden, robbed of school life... Would the New Jersey Legislature have passed that shameful repeal bill enabling girls of fourteen years to work all night, if the mothers in New Jersey were enfranchised?”

KEY TERMS earning their bread — working to survive · enfranchised — given the right to vote · repeal — the cancelling of a law

ANALYZE

How does Kelley connect the fight against child labor to women's right to vote?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Kelley is a reformer speaking to persuade an audience. How does she use specific numbers and vivid images (“while we sleep”) to move listeners toward two causes at once?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Kelley reveals that millions of young children, some as young as six, worked long hours — even overnight — and argues that if mothers could vote, such laws would not stand.

ENTRY QUESTION

About how many children under sixteen does Kelley say were working, and how young were some of them?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Florence Kelley fought against child labor and for consumer protection. She linked the cause to women's suffrage: mothers who could vote, she argued, would protect working children.

The Atlanta Exposition Address

US.13 — Analyze competing African American responses to segregation and disfranchisement in this era.

Source: Booker T. Washington, Atlanta, Georgia · September 18, 1895 †

“To those of my race who depend on bettering their condition in a foreign land or who underestimate the importance of cultivating friendly relations with the Southern white man... I would say: ‘Cast down your bucket where you are’ — cast it down in making friends in every manly way of the people of all races by whom we are surrounded. Cast it down in agriculture, mechanics, in commerce, in domestic service, and in the professions... No race can prosper till it learns that there is as much dignity in tilling a field as in writing a poem. It is at the bottom of life we must begin, and not at the top... In all things that are purely social we can be as separate as the fingers, yet one as the hand in all things essential to mutual progress. There is no defense or security for any of us except in the highest intelligence and development of all.”

KEY TERMS cast down your bucket — make the most of your present situation and place · mutual progress — advancement that benefits everyone

ANALYZE

What approach to racial progress does Washington urge — and what is he willing to accept to get it?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Washington spoke to a white Southern audience whose support he needed. How might that audience explain the compromises in his message — and set up Du Bois's response (Doc 10)?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Washington urges Black Americans to stay in the South, build economic skills, and accept social separation for now — “separate as the fingers” — in exchange for cooperation and gradual progress.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Washington mean when he says the races can be “as separate as the fingers”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Speaking to a mostly white Southern audience in 1895, Washington offered a compromise: Black economic self-help and patience in return for white support. Critics said it accepted segregation too easily.

“So far as Mr. Washington preaches Thrift, Patience, and Industrial Training for the masses, we must hold up his hands and strive with him, rejoicing in his honors and glorying in the strength of this Joshua... But so far as Mr. Washington apologizes for injustice, North or South, does not rightly value the privilege and duty of voting, belittles the emasculating effects of caste distinctions, and opposes the higher training and ambition of our brighter minds... we must unceasingly and firmly oppose them. By every civilized and peaceful method we must strive for the rights which the world accords to men, clinging unwaveringly to those great words which the sons of the Fathers would fain forget: ‘We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.’”

KEY TERMS thrift — careful use of money · caste distinctions — rigid divisions that rank people by group · accords — grants or gives

Du Bois agrees with Washington on hard work and education but firmly rejects giving up the vote, civil rights, or higher education — demanding full rights now, by peaceful means.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name one thing Du Bois agrees with Washington about, and one thing he opposes.

We want the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments carried out to the letter... We want discrimination in public accommodation to cease. Separation in railway and street cars, based simply on race and color, is un-American, undemocratic, and silly. We protest against all such discrimination... We want our children educated... US.14

Address to Congress on Woman Suffrage

US.14 — Analyze the woman suffrage movement and the campaign for the Nineteenth Amendment.

Source: Carrie Chapman Catt · 1917 †

"Woman suffrage is inevitable. Suffragists knew it before November 4, 1917; opponents afterward. Three distinct causes made it inevitable. First, the history of our country. Ours is a nation born of revolution, of rebellion against a system of government so securely entrenched in the customs and traditions of human society that in 1776 it seemed impregnable... With such a history behind it, how can our nation escape the logic it has never failed to follow, when its last unenfranchised class calls for the vote? Behold our Uncle Sam floating the banner with one hand, 'Taxation without representation is tyranny,' and with the other seizing the billions of dollars paid in taxes by women to whom he refuses 'representation.' Behold him again, welcoming the boys of twenty-one and the newly made immigrant citizen to 'a voice in their own government' while he denies that fundamental right of democracy to thousands of women."

KEY TERMS inevitable — certain to happen · impregnable — impossible to defeat or break into · unenfranchised — not having the right to vote

ANALYZE

How does Catt use America's own history and ideals to argue for women's right to vote?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Catt appeals to patriotism and national logic rather than only fairness to women. Why might that argument be especially persuasive to the Congress she is addressing?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Catt argues that giving women the vote is unavoidable — America's own founding ideals of liberty and self-government logically require extending the vote to its last excluded group.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Catt say is "inevitable," and what founding idea does she use to argue for it?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Carrie Chapman Catt led the National American Woman Suffrage Association. She argued suffrage was the natural conclusion of America's founding principles — a strategy that helped win the Nineteenth Amendment in 1920.

KEY TERMS abridged — cut short or reduced · on account of sex — because someone is male or female

ANALYZE

What did the Nineteenth Amendment guarantee — and why is it considered a major Progressive achievement?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The amendment bans denying the vote “on account of sex,” but many Black women in the South still could not vote after 1920. How can a reform be a real victory and still leave people behind?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This amendment made it illegal to deny anyone the right to vote because of their sex — securing women’s suffrage nationwide.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the Nineteenth Amendment forbid?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Ratified in 1920 after decades of activism, the Nineteenth Amendment doubled the American electorate. In practice, many women of color — especially in the South — were still blocked from voting by other means.

Source: Theodore Roosevelt, Osawatomie, Kansas · August 31, 1910 †

“The New Nationalism puts the national need before sectional or personal advantage... It is impatient of the utter confusion which results from local legislatures attempting to treat national issues as local issues. It is still more impatient of the impotence which springs from over-division of governmental powers, the impotence which makes it possible for local selfishness or for legal cunning... to bring national activities to a deadlock. This New Nationalism regards the executive power as the steward of the public welfare. It demands of the judiciary that it shall be interested primarily in human welfare rather than in property, just as it demands that the representative body shall represent all the people rather than any one class or section of the people... I do not ask for overcentralization; but I do ask that we work in a spirit of broad and far-reaching nationalism when we work for what concerns our people as a whole.”

KEY TERMS sectional — favoring one region over the whole country · impotence — powerlessness · steward — a manager who acts for the good of others

ANALYZE

What kind of government does Roosevelt’s “New Nationalism” call for, and why?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Roosevelt wanted a stronger federal government to check big business. Connect this to the regulation in Doc 4 — how does “New Nationalism” sum up the Progressive answer to industrialization?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Roosevelt calls for a strong national government — with the president as “steward” of the public good — to regulate business and solve problems that individual states cannot handle alone.

ENTRY QUESTION

What role does Roosevelt say the government (and the president) should play?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In this 1910 speech, Roosevelt laid out “New Nationalism”: an active federal government that regulates big business in the public interest. It defined the reform wing of the era’s politics.

Document-Based Question

The Progressive Era (1890–1920)
Standards US.08 – US.18

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

Progressive reformers between 1890 and 1920 set out to fix the problems created by industrialization. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which Progressive Era reforms made American society more democratic and just.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Progressives tried to fix the problems of an industrial society. Using the documents, argue how much they actually made America more fair, safe, and democratic — and where they fell short.

WHY IT MATTERS

debates the Progressives started — how much government should protect workers, consumers, and voters — are still live in American politics today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: where reform succeeded, and where it fell short or left groups behind.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — both the successes and the limits of reform — or the tension between them.

US.19

The United States Looking Outward

US.19 — Analyze the origins and rationale of American imperialism, including economic, strategic, and ideological motives.

Source: Alfred T. Mahan, The Atlantic Monthly · 1890 †

“Whether they will or no, Americans must now begin to look outward. The growing production of the country demands it. An increasing volume of public sentiment demands it... The position of the United States, between the two Old Worlds and the two great oceans, makes the same claim, which will soon be strengthened by the creation of the new link joining the Atlantic and Pacific. The tendency will be maintained and increased by the growth of the European colonies in the Pacific... Three things are needful: First, protection of the chief harbors, by fortifications and coast-defense ships... Secondly, naval force, the arm of offensive power, which alone enables a country to extend its influence outward. Thirdly, no foreign state should henceforth acquire a coaling position within three thousand miles of San Francisco. If we would maintain our rights and our influence, we must have a navy adequate to the defense of our interests — a sea power that can command the approaches to our own coasts.”

KEY TERMS look outward — turn attention beyond U.S. borders to the wider world · Isthmus — the narrow strip of land (Panama) linking the Americas · sea power — naval strength used to control trade and project influence

ANALYZE

What does Mahan argue the United States must do to become a great power — and why?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Mahan was a naval strategist campaigning for a bigger navy. How might that stake shape his claim that America simply “must” look outward?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Mahan argues the U.S. must stop looking only inward: to protect its growing trade it needs a powerful navy, overseas bases, and control of key sea routes like the Caribbean and Panama.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Naval officer Alfred Thayer Mahan taught leaders that national greatness depended on sea power — a strong navy, colonies for coaling stations, and control of trade routes. His ideas became the blueprint for American imperialism.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Mahan, what must Americans now “begin to” do?

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

Our Country

US.19 — Analyze the ideological and racial justifications used to promote American expansion.

Source: Rev. Josiah Strong · 1885 †

“It seems to me that God, with infinite wisdom and skill, is training the Anglo-Saxon race for an hour sure to come in the world’s future. Long before the thousand millions are here, the mighty centrifugal tendency, inherent in this stock and strengthened in the United States, will assert itself. Then this race of unequaled energy, with all the majesty of numbers and the might of wealth behind it — the representative, let us hope, of the largest liberty, the purest Christianity, the highest civilization — having developed peculiarly aggressive traits calculated to impress its institutions upon mankind, will spread itself over the earth. If I read not amiss, this powerful race will move down upon Mexico, down upon Central and South America, out upon the islands of the sea, over upon Africa and beyond. And can any one doubt that the result of this competition of races will be the ‘survival of the fittest’?”

KEY TERMS Anglo-Saxon — people of English/Northern European descent · survival of the fittest — the idea that the strongest naturally dominate the weak

ANALYZE

How does Strong use religion and race to justify American expansion?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Strong frames conquest as a divine mission and “survival of the fittest.” How could that framing make imperialism feel righteous — even inevitable — rather than self-interested?

A Protestant minister, Strong gave imperialism a religious and racial justification: expansion was a God-given mission to civilize and Christianize the world, backed by Social Darwinist “survival of the fittest” thinking.

The White Man’s Burden

US.20 — Analyze the Spanish-American War and the debate over acquiring overseas territories such as the Philippines.

Source: Rudyard Kipling, McClure’s Magazine · February 1899

“Take up the White Man’s burden— / Send forth the best ye breed— / Go bind your sons to exile / To serve your captives’ need; / To wait in heavy harness, / On fluttered folk and wild— / Your new-caught, sullen peoples, / Half-devil and half-child. / Take up the White Man’s burden— / In patience to abide, / To veil the threat of terror / And check the show of pride... / Take up the White Man’s burden— / The savage wars of peace— / Fill full the mouth of Famine / And bid the sickness cease; / And when your goal is nearest / The end for others sought, / Watch Sloth and heathen Folly / Bring all your hope to nought... / Take up the White Man’s burden— / Have done with childish days— / The lightly proffered laurel, / The easy, ungrudged praise.”

KEY TERMS burden — a heavy duty or responsibility · captives — conquered / colonized peoples · half-devil and half-child — a racist description of colonized peoples as savage and childlike

ANALYZE

How does Kipling portray both the colonizer and the colonized in this poem?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The poem directly addressed Americans debating whether to keep the Philippines. How does its language (“half-devil and half-child”) expose the racial assumptions beneath the “civilizing mission”?

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Kipling urges white nations — including the U.S. — to take up the “burden” of ruling “half-devil and half-child” colonized peoples, framing empire as a noble but thankless duty.

What phrase does Kipling use to describe the colonized peoples?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Kipling wrote this poem to urge the U.S. to keep and rule the Philippines. It became the slogan of imperialism — and of the racist paternalism that cast conquest as a “civilizing mission.”

On Keeping the Philippines

US.20 — Analyze the acquisition of overseas territories following the Spanish-American War.

Source: President William McKinley, as reported · 1899 †

“The truth is I didn’t want the Philippines, and when they came to us as a gift from the gods, I did not know what to do with them... I sought counsel from all sides — Democrats as well as Republicans — but got little help. I walked the floor of the White House night after night until midnight; and I am not ashamed to tell you, gentlemen, that I went down on my knees and prayed Almighty God for light and guidance more than one night. And one night late it came to me this way... that we could not give them back to Spain — that would be cowardly and dishonorable; that we could not turn them over to France or Germany — our commercial rivals in the Orient — that would be bad business and discreditable; that we could not leave them to themselves — they were unfit for self-government... there was nothing left for us to do but to take them all, and to educate the Filipinos, and uplift and civilize and Christianize them.”

KEY TERMS a gift from the gods — something received unexpectedly, as if by fate · uplift — raise up morally or socially

ANALYZE

How does McKinley justify the decision to keep the Philippines?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a secondhand account of McKinley’s private reasoning, retold years later. How does its religious, paternalistic framing echo Kipling’s poem (Doc 3) — and why treat a secondhand quote cautiously?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

In a widely retold account, McKinley explains that after praying for guidance he decided the U.S. must keep and “civilize” the Philippines — casting colonization as a moral, God-given duty.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does McKinley say the United States should do with the Philippines?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After the Spanish-American War the U.S. took the Philippines and fought a brutal war against Filipinos seeking independence. McKinley justified keeping the islands as a mission to “uplift and civilize.”

Platform of the American Anti-Imperialist League

US.20 — Analyze opposition to imperialism and debates over its consistency with American ideals.

Source: American Anti-Imperialist League · 1899 †

“We hold that the policy known as imperialism is hostile to liberty and tends toward militarism, an evil from which it has been our glory to be free. We regret that it has become necessary in the land of Washington and Lincoln to reaffirm that all men, of whatever race or color, are entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. We maintain that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. We insist that the subjugation of any people is ‘criminal aggression’ and open disloyalty to the distinctive principles of our Government... We deny that the obligation of all citizens to support their Government in times of grave National peril applies to the present situation. If an Administration may with impunity ignore the issues upon which it was chosen, deliberately create a condition of war anywhere on the face of the globe... then the election of the people are contemptible and unimportant.”

KEY TERMS imperialism — the policy of ruling other lands and peoples · militarism — glorifying military power and readiness for war · subjugation — the act of conquering and controlling a people

ANALYZE

On what grounds does the Anti-Imperialist League oppose imperialism?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The League invokes “the land of Washington and Lincoln” and “consent of the governed.” How does turning America’s founding ideals against imperialism make their argument especially sharp?

The League argues imperialism betrays America’s founding ideals: ruling other peoples without their consent contradicts liberty and the Declaration of Independence’s principles.

ENTRY QUESTION

What founding ideas does the League use to argue against imperialism?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Prominent Americans — including Mark Twain and Andrew Carnegie — formed the Anti-Imperialist League to oppose annexing the Philippines, arguing that empire violated the nation’s own principles.

The Roosevelt Corollary to the Monroe Doctrine

US.21 — Analyze U.S. policy in Latin America and the Caribbean, including the Roosevelt Corollary and the Panama Canal.

Source: President Theodore Roosevelt, Annual Message to Congress · December 6, 1904

“It is not true that the United States feels any land hunger or entertains any projects as regards the other nations of the Western Hemisphere save such as are for their welfare. All that this country desires is to see the neighboring countries stable, orderly, and prosperous. Any country whose people conduct themselves well can count upon our hearty friendship... Chronic wrongdoing, or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America, as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere the adherence of the United States to the Monroe Doctrine may force the United States, however reluctantly, in flagrant cases of such wrongdoing or impotence, to the exercise of an international police power. If we are willing to help... they need have no fear. It is only those whose misdeeds are flagrant that have anything to fear from the United States.”

KEY TERMS chronic wrongdoing — ongoing misbehavior or instability · impotence — weakness; inability to govern · international police power — the claimed right to intervene to keep order among nations

ANALYZE

What power does the Roosevelt Corollary claim for the United States, and how does it justify it?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Roosevelt calls this a “police power.” How does that word choice frame U.S. intervention as keeping order rather than building an empire?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Roosevelt claims the U.S. has the right to intervene in Latin American nations it judges “unstable,” acting as an “international police power” in the hemisphere.

ENTRY QUESTION

What role does Roosevelt claim the United States should play in the Western Hemisphere?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Roosevelt Corollary extended the Monroe Doctrine, asserting U.S. authority to intervene throughout Latin America — the “big stick” policy behind repeated U.S. interventions in the Caribbean.

Protest Against the Annexation of Hawaii

US.21 — Analyze the annexation of overseas territories and the perspectives of the peoples affected.

Source: Queen Lili‘uokalani of Hawaii · 1897 †

“I, Lili‘uokalani of Hawaii... do hereby protest against the ratification of a certain treaty, which, so I am informed, has been signed at Washington by Messrs. Hatch, Thurston, and Kinney... purporting to cede those Islands to the territory and dominion of the United States. I declare such a treaty to be an act of wrong toward the native and part-native people of Hawaii, an invasion of the rights of the ruling chiefs... because the Hawaiian people, from whom the sovereignty had been snatched by a lawless assemblage of foreigners and Americans, have never directly nor indirectly expressed their willingness to yield that sovereignty... because said treaty ignores, not only the civil rights of my people, but, further, the hereditary property of their chiefs... and is untrue to the international professions of the United States. Therefore I, Lili‘uokalani of Hawaii, do hereby call upon the President... and the people of the United States, to whom I appeal.”

KEY TERMS annex — to add territory to a nation · ratification — formal approval of a treaty · dominion — control or rule

ANALYZE

On what grounds does Lili‘uokalani protest the annexation of Hawaii?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Most imperialism sources come from the colonizers. What does hearing from Lili‘uokalani — the leader of a people being annexed — reveal that those other sources leave out?

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Hawaii's deposed queen formally protests U.S. annexation, arguing it ignores her people's rights and property — and betrays America's own professed principles.

ENTRY QUESTION

What is Queen Lili'uokalani protesting?

War Message to Congress

US.23 — Analyze the causes of U.S. entry into World War I and how the war was justified to the public.

Source: President Woodrow Wilson · April 2, 1917

"The world must be made safe for democracy. Its peace must be planted upon the tested foundations of political liberty. We have no selfish ends to serve. We desire no conquest, no dominion. We seek no indemnities for ourselves, no material compensation for the sacrifices we shall freely make. We are but one of the champions of the rights of mankind. We shall be satisfied when those rights have been made as secure as the faith and the freedom of nations can make them... It is a fearful thing to lead this great peaceful people into war, into the most terrible and disastrous of all wars, civilization itself seeming to be in the balance. But the right is more precious than peace, and we shall fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts — for democracy, for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own governments."

KEY TERMS dominion — control or rule over others · indemnities — payments demanded as compensation, often after war

ANALYZE

How does Wilson justify American entry into World War I?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Wilson insists the U.S. seeks "no conquest, no dominion." How does that claim sit against the imperialism documents (Docs 1–7) from only a few years earlier?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Wilson asks Congress to declare war, framing U.S. entry into WWI as a selfless crusade to "make the world safe for democracy" — not a war for conquest or gain.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Wilson, what is the goal of entering the war?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After German submarine attacks and the Zimmermann Telegram, Wilson led the U.S. into WWI in April 1917, casting it as a moral mission for democracy rather than a war for territory.

In the event of this not succeeding, we make Mexico a proposal of alliance on the following basis: make war together, make peace together, generous financial support, and an understanding on our part that Mexico is to reconquer the lost territory in Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona."

KEY TERMS unrestricted submarine warfare — attacking any ship, including neutral and passenger ships, without warning · alliance — an agreement between nations to support each other

ANALYZE

Why would the Zimmermann Telegram push the United States toward war?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This was secret German communication, not public propaganda. Why does that make it especially persuasive evidence for Americans who wanted to enter the war?

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In this secret German telegram, Germany proposes that Mexico join it in war against the U.S. — offering to help Mexico regain Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Germany offer Mexico in this telegram?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

British intelligence intercepted and decoded this telegram, then shared it with the U.S. Its publication outraged Americans and helped push the country into declaring war on Germany.

How We Advertised America

US.24 — Analyze the home front during World War I, including government mobilization of public opinion.

Source: George Creel, Committee on Public Information · 1920 †

“It was a plain publicity proposition, a vast enterprise in salesmanship, the world’s greatest adventure in advertising... We did not call it propaganda, for that word, in German hands, had come to be associated with deceit and corruption. Our effort was educational and informative throughout, for we had such confidence in our case as to feel that no other argument was needed than the simple, straightforward presentation of facts... In no degree was the Committee an agency of censorship, a machinery of concealment or repression. Its emphasis throughout was on the open and the positive. At no point did it seek or exercise authority under those war laws that limited the freedom of press and speech. In all things, from first to last, without halt or change, it was a plain publicity proposition, a vast enterprise in salesmanship, the world’s greatest adventure in advertising.”

KEY TERMS publicity — spreading information to shape public opinion · propaganda — information, often biased, used to promote a cause · salesmanship — the art of persuading people to buy or believe something

ANALYZE

How does Creel describe the government’s wartime information campaign — and how does he distinguish it from “propaganda”?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Creel, who ran a propaganda agency, insists his work was “education,” not “propaganda.” Why would he draw that line — and should a historian accept his word for it?

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

George Creel describes the government’s massive WWI campaign to “sell” the war to Americans through advertising and information — while insisting it was education, not propaganda.

ENTRY QUESTION

What was the Committee on Public Information’s job?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Committee on Public Information, led by George Creel, flooded America with posters, films, and speakers to build support for WWI — an unprecedented government effort to shape public opinion.

Schenck v. United States

US.25 — Analyze the impact of World War I on civil liberties, including limits on free speech.

Source: Supreme Court of the United States · 1919 (249 U.S. 47)

“We admit that in many places and in ordinary times the defendants, in saying all that was said in the circular, would have been within their constitutional rights. But the character of every act depends upon the circumstances in which it is done... The most stringent protection of free speech would not protect a man in falsely shouting fire in a theatre and causing a panic... The question in every case is whether the words used are used in such circumstances and are of such a nature as to create a clear and present danger that they will bring about the substantive evils that Congress has a right to prevent. It is a question of proximity and degree. When a nation is at war many things that might be said in time of peace are such a hindrance to its effort that their utterance will not be endured so long as men fight, and that no Court could regard them as protected by any constitutional right.”

KEY TERMS stringent — strict · clear and present danger — a real, immediate threat that justifies limiting a right · utterance — something spoken

ANALYZE

How did the Supreme Court justify limiting free speech during wartime?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Wilson said the U.S. was fighting for democracy abroad (Doc 8). How does jailing citizens for antiwar speech at home complicate that claim?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Supreme Court ruled that free speech can be limited in wartime if words create a “clear and present danger” — upholding the conviction of a man who urged resistance to the draft.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to the Court, when can free speech be limited?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

During WWI the Espionage and Sedition Acts punished antiwar speech. In Schenck the Court upheld those limits, showing how wartime fear narrowed civil liberties at home.

The Fourteen Points

US.26 — Analyze the aims for peace after World War I, including Wilson's Fourteen Points and self-determination.

Source: President Woodrow Wilson · January 8, 1918

“What we demand in this war... is that the world be made fit and safe to live in... The programme of the world’s peace, therefore, is our programme, and that programme, the only possible programme, as we see it, is this: I. Open covenants of peace, openly arrived at, after which there shall be no private international understandings of any kind but diplomacy shall proceed always frankly and in the public view. II. Absolute freedom of navigation upon the seas... III. The removal, so far as possible, of all economic barriers... V. A free, open-minded, and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, based upon... the interests of the populations concerned... XIV. A general association of nations must be formed under specific covenants for the purpose of affording mutual guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small states alike.”

KEY TERMS covenants — formal, binding agreements · self-determination — the right of a people to choose their own government · association of nations — an organization of countries — the future League of Nations

ANALYZE

What kind of peace does Wilson envision in the Fourteen Points?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Wilson champions self-determination for peoples. How does that ideal sit uneasily beside America’s own recent imperialism in the Philippines and Hawaii (Docs 3–7)?

Wilson lays out an idealistic plan for peace — open diplomacy, fairness in colonial claims, self-determination for peoples, and a League of Nations to prevent future wars.

Wilson’s Fourteen Points offered a hopeful blueprint for peace centered on self-determination and a League of Nations — much of which was watered down in the final treaty.

KEY TERMS War Guilt Clause — the treaty article blaming Germany for the war · reparations — payments a defeated nation must make for war damages · aggression — the act of starting a conflict

ANALYZE

How do the terms of Article 231 compare with the ideals of Wilson's Fourteen Points (Doc 12)?

The treaty's “War Guilt Clause” forced Germany to accept full blame for the war — the legal basis for the crushing reparations that fueled German resentment.

I can never be anything else but an American, and I must think of the United States first, and when I think of the United States first in an arrangement like this I am thinking of what is best for the world... KEY TERMS allegiance — loyalty to a nation · league — an alliance of nations — here, the League of Nations · sovereignty — a nation's power to govern itself

Senator Lodge opposes joining the League of Nations, arguing it would compromise American independence by binding the U.S. to a foreign, “mongrel” international body.

Document-Based Question

Imperialism and World War I (1890–1920)
Standards US.19 – US.27

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

Between 1890 and 1920 the United States became a world power. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which American imperialism and involvement in World War I reflected — or contradicted — the nation’s stated ideals of liberty and self-government.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

as the U.S. became a world power through empire and World War I, did it live up to its ideals of liberty and self-government, or betray them? Use the documents to argue how much.

WHY IT MATTERS

the tension between American ideals and American power abroad — spreading democracy vs. controlling other peoples — still shapes U.S. foreign policy today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don’t just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: where the nation lived up to its ideals, and where it contradicted them.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — both where ideals were upheld and where they were contradicted — or the tension between them.

DOCUMENT 1

US.28

The Business of America

US.28 — Analyze the economic boom of the 1920s, including pro-business government policy and the rise of consumerism.

Source: President Calvin Coolidge, address to newspaper editors · January 17, 1925 †

“After all, the chief business of the American people is business. They are profoundly concerned with producing, buying, selling, investing and prospering in the world. I am strongly of opinion that the great majority of people will always find these are moving impulses of our life... But it is probable that a press which maintains an intimate touch with the business currents of the nation is likely to be more reliable than it would be if it were a stranger to these influences. The chief ideal of the American people is idealism. I cannot repeat too often that America is a nation of idealists. That is the only motive to which they ever give any strong and lasting reaction. It is in this direction that the public press can lend its aid... We make no concealment of the fact that we want wealth, but there are many other things that we want very much more. We want peace and honor, and that charity which is so strong an element of all civilization.”

KEY TERMS profoundly — deeply · impulses — forces that drive behavior · idealism — belief in and pursuit of high principles

ANALYZE

How does Coolidge describe the values and priorities of 1920s America?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Coolidge was a pro-business Republican president during a boom. How might his position shape the way he frames Americans’ focus on business as “idealism”?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Coolidge sums up the pro-business spirit of the 1920s: Americans are focused above all on producing, buying, selling, and prospering — though he insists this business drive is itself a kind of idealism.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

President Coolidge’s hands-off, pro-business policies (low taxes, little regulation) helped fuel the decade’s boom. This line became a shorthand for 1920s prosperity and its faith in business.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Coolidge, what is “the chief business of the American people”?

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

DOCUMENT 2

US.29

Middletown: Installment Buying

US.29 — Analyze the rise of a consumer culture in the 1920s, including advertising and new forms of credit.

Source: Robert S. and Helen M. Lynd, Middletown · 1929 †

“The advent of the automobile, and of installment buying to pay for it, has wrought changes in the ways of Middletown that would have seemed incredible a generation ago. ‘Buy now, pay later’ has become a way of life. Many families who could not think of paying cash for an automobile, a washing machine, or a radio now buy these things on the installment plan, pledging next year’s earnings for this year’s comforts. ‘We spend all we make,’ said one working-class wife, and another remarked that ‘the car is the only pleasure we have.’ Where an earlier generation saved before it bought, the modern family buys first and pays afterward. The things people formerly did without are now considered necessities; the automobile, once a luxury of the rich, has become for many a symbol of belonging, and families go into debt to have it. Advertising presses upon them at every turn, and the line between what one merely wants and what one truly needs grows steadily fainter.”

KEY TERMS installment buying — paying for something in small amounts over time; buying on credit · advent — the arrival of something new

ANALYZE

How did installment buying change the way Americans lived and spent in the 1920s?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is sociologists’ analysis of an “average” town. Why might a study of everyday spending reveal shifts in values that a political speech (Doc 1) would miss?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Sociologists studying an average American town found that new credit — “buy now, pay later” — let ordinary families own cars, radios, and appliances they couldn’t otherwise afford, turning luxuries into “necessities.”

ENTRY QUESTION

How did families in the 1920s afford cars, radios, and washing machines?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The 1920s created a modern consumer culture: mass-produced goods, national advertising, and installment credit. Americans bought more than ever — often on debt that would prove dangerous when the boom ended.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: “_____.”

US.31

I, Too

US.31 — Analyze the Harlem Renaissance and its expression of African American culture and identity.

Source: Langston Hughes · 1926

“I, too, sing America. / I am the darker brother. / They send me to eat in the kitchen / When company comes, / But I laugh, / And eat well, / And grow strong. / Tomorrow, / I’ll be at the table / When company comes. / Nobody’ll dare / Say to me, / ‘Eat in the kitchen,’ / Then. / Besides, / They’ll see how beautiful I am / And be ashamed— / I, too, am America.”

KEY TERMS the darker brother — African Americans, spoken of as part of the American family · sing America — claim a place in and celebrate America

ANALYZE

How does Hughes claim African Americans’ place in the nation in this poem?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Hughes echoes Walt Whitman’s “I Hear America Singing.” How does adding “I, too” turn a patriotic image into a demand for equality?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Hughes claims African Americans’ full place in the nation: though pushed aside (“sent to eat in the kitchen”), the speaker grows strong and insists that tomorrow he will sit at the table — “I, too, am America.”

ENTRY QUESTION

Where is the speaker sent to eat “when company comes,” and what does he say will happen “tomorrow”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Harlem Renaissance was an explosion of African American art, music, and literature in the 1920s. Langston Hughes gave proud voice to Black identity and a demand for equality and belonging.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 4

US.32

Africa for the Africans

US.32 — Analyze African American movements of the 1920s, including Black nationalism and the Great Migration.

Source: Marcus Garvey, Universal Negro Improvement Association · 1921 †

“We are the descendants of a suffering people; we are the descendants of a people determined to suffer no longer... Wheresoever I go, whether it be France, Germany, England or Spain, I am told that there is no room for the black man. If Europe is for the Europeans, then Africa shall be for the black peoples of the world. We say it; we mean it. We shall organize the four hundred million Negroes of the world into a vast organization to plant the banner of freedom on the great continent of Africa... ‘Africa for the Africans,’ those at home and those abroad. We are not seeking to destroy or disturb the government of other nations, but wheresoever the black man happens to be, he shall enjoy his rights. Up, you mighty race, you can accomplish what you will! No more fear, no more cringing, no more begging and pleading; the Negro must take his place among the races and nations of the world.”

KEY TERMS descendants — people who come from earlier generations · Black nationalism — the belief that Black people should build their own institutions, pride, and self-rule

ANALYZE

What vision for Black progress does Garvey offer, and how does it differ from seeking integration?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Compare Garvey with Langston Hughes (Doc 3). One demands a place at America’s table; the other looks toward Africa. What do these different responses reveal about Black options in the 1920s?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Garvey calls on people of African descent worldwide to unite, take pride in their race, and reclaim Africa — “Africa for the Africans” — building their own power rather than seeking acceptance from white society.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Garvey mean by the slogan “Africa for the Africans”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Marcus Garvey’s UNIA built the largest Black mass movement of its time, promoting racial pride, economic independence, and a “Back to Africa” vision — a sharp alternative to integration.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 5

The Eighteenth Amendment

US.33 — Analyze Prohibition, its enforcement, and its social consequences.

Source: U.S. Constitution, Amendment XVIII · ratified January 16, 1919

“After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.”

KEY TERMS intoxicating liquors — alcoholic drinks · prohibited — banned by law · Prohibition — the era (1920–1933) when alcohol was illegal nationwide

ANALYZE

What did the Eighteenth Amendment prohibit, and what did reformers hope it would achieve?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Prohibition was meant to protect traditional morality but led to widespread lawbreaking. How can this amendment be read as evidence of a clash between traditional and modern values?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This amendment banned making, selling, and transporting alcohol nationwide — launching Prohibition, a triumph for reformers that also fueled bootlegging and organized crime.

ENTRY QUESTION

What three activities does the Eighteenth Amendment ban?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Prohibition was a victory for traditional, rural, and religious reformers. But it proved nearly impossible to enforce, spawned speakeasies and gangsters, and was repealed in 1933 — the only amendment ever undone.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 6

The Immigration Act of 1924

US.34 — Analyze nativism in the 1920s, including immigration restriction and the national-origins quota system.

Source: U.S. Congress · May 26, 1924 (43 Stat. 153) †

“The annual quota of any nationality shall be 2 per centum of the number of foreign-born individuals of such nationality resident in continental United States as determined by the United States census of 1890, but the minimum quota of any nationality shall be 100.”

KEY TERMS quota — a fixed maximum number allowed · per centum — per hundred; percent · national origins — the country a person’s ancestors came from

ANALYZE

How did the Immigration Act of 1924 use quotas to shape who could enter the United States?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Congress based quotas on the 1890 census rather than a more recent one. What does that deliberate choice reveal about the law’s real purpose?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This law slashed immigration and set quotas based on the 1890 census — deliberately favoring northern and western Europeans while sharply limiting southern and eastern Europeans, and barring most Asians entirely.

ENTRY QUESTION

On which year's census does the law base each nationality's quota, and why does that choice matter?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Postwar nativism and fear of “un-American” outsiders drove Congress to restrict immigration for the first time by national origin. The 1890 census was chosen precisely to keep out newer immigrant groups.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 7

Vanzetti's Last Statement

US.34 — Analyze the Red Scare and nativism, including the Sacco and Vanzetti case.

Source: Bartolomeo Vanzetti, statement to the court · 1927 †

“I have suffered because I was an Italian, and indeed I am an Italian... but I am so convinced to be right that if you could execute me two times, and if I could be reborn two other times, I would live again to do what I have done already. If it had not been for these things, I might have lived out my life talking at street corners to scolding men. I might have died, unmarked, unknown, a failure. Now we are not a failure. This is our career and our triumph. Never in our full life could we hope to do such work for tolerance, for justice, for man's understanding of man, as now we do by accident. Our words — our lives — our pains — nothing! The taking of our lives — lives of a good shoemaker and a poor fish-peddler — all! That last moment belongs to us — that agony is our triumph.”

KEY TERMS scorning — looking down on with contempt · tolerance — acceptance of people who are different

ANALYZE

How does Vanzetti connect his case to prejudice against immigrants and radicals?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Vanzetti spoke these words knowing he would die. How does that context shape both the power of his statement and the way a historian should weigh it as evidence?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Facing execution, the Italian immigrant Vanzetti says he was condemned partly for being a foreigner and a radical — and finds meaning in becoming a symbol in the fight for justice and tolerance.

ENTRY QUESTION

For what reasons does Vanzetti believe he suffered?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Sacco and Vanzetti, Italian immigrant anarchists, were convicted of murder on weak evidence amid Red Scare hysteria and anti-immigrant prejudice. Their execution in 1927 became a symbol of nativist injustice.

DOCUMENT 8

US.35

The Scopes Trial

US.35 — Analyze the cultural conflict between religious fundamentalism and modern science, including the Scopes Trial.

Source: William Jennings Bryan, Scopes “Monkey” Trial · 1925 †

“The contest between evolution and Christianity is a duel to the death... If evolution wins, Christianity goes. Not necessarily the killing of religion, but this: Christianity accepts the Bible as the record of God's revelation of himself to man. Evolution has no place for the miracle or the supernatural... Science is a magnificent force, but it is not a teacher of morals. It can perfect machinery, but it adds no moral restraints to protect society from the misuse of the machine. Tennessee needs no help from those who come to defend an alien and hurtful doctrine. The people of Tennessee have a right to say what shall be taught in their schools; they have decided the question for themselves, and their decision should be respected. It is no light matter to teach the children of this state that they are descended from the beasts, and to undermine the faith of their fathers.”

KEY TERMS evolution — the scientific theory that species change over time · fundamentalism — strict, literal belief in traditional religious teachings · alien doctrine — a foreign or unwelcome idea

ANALYZE

How does Bryan frame the conflict between evolution and religion?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Bryan appeals to majority rule (“the people of Tennessee have a right”), while modernists appealed to science. What does this clash reveal about competing sources of authority in the 1920s?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Bryan frames the teaching of evolution as a direct threat to Christianity and argues that the people of Tennessee — not scientists or outsiders — have the right to decide what their schools teach.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Bryan, who has the right to decide what is taught in Tennessee’s schools?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In the 1925 Scopes Trial, a teacher was tried for teaching evolution, which Tennessee had banned. The clash between fundamentalist religion and modern science captured the decade’s culture war.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

DOCUMENT 9US.34

The Klan’s Fight for Americanism

US.34 — Analyze the revival of the Ku Klux Klan and 1920s nativism, racism, and religious intolerance.

Source: Hiram W. Evans, The North American Review · 1926 †

“We are a movement of the plain people, very weak in the matter of culture, intellectual support, and trained leadership... The Klan... has now come to speak for the great mass of Americans of the old pioneer stock. We believe that it does fairly and faithfully represent the old stock... The Nordic American today is a stranger in large parts of the land his fathers gave him. Moreover, he is a most unwelcome stranger, one much spit upon, and one to whom even the right to have his own opinions and to work for his own interests is now denied with jeers and revilings. He is being crowded out of his own country by aliens who... have no... loyalty to American ideals, and are firmly determined to remake this country after the model of the lands they left. We Americans see our own liberties, our own institutions, threatened by those who owe them nothing.”

KEY TERMS Nordic — a term for northern European whites, used by the Klan to claim superiority · old pioneer stock — white Protestants who claimed to be the ‘original’ Americans · aliens — foreigners; here, immigrants and non-Protestants

How does Evans use fear of a changing America to justify the Klan?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Evans presents the Klan as defending “real” Americans. How does his argument connect to the Immigration Act (Doc 6) as part of a broader nativist backlash?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Klan’s leader claims to speak for “ordinary” white Protestant Americans who feel like strangers in their own country, blaming immigrants and outsiders for crowding them out.

ENTRY QUESTION

Whom does Evans claim the Klan speaks for, and whom does he blame for their troubles?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The 1920s Klan revived on a mass scale — millions strong, and nationwide — targeting not only Black Americans but also immigrants, Catholics, and Jews. It fed on nativist fear of a changing America.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

Flapper Jane

US.30 — Analyze changing social roles in the 1920s, including new freedoms and expectations for women.

Source: Bruce Bliven, The New Republic · September 1925 †

“Jane is a flapper... Her dress... is brief. It is cut low where it might be high, and high where it might be low... She wears, apparently, only two garments, and one of these is a step-in. ‘In a way,’ says Jane, ‘it’s just honesty. Women have come down off the pedestal lately. They are tired of this eternal pretense of being lily-white saints, of being too pure and too delicate to know anything about life. We girls are just going to be ourselves.’ ... The word ‘flapper,’ in Jane’s circle, means a girl who has thrown away the old restraints and taken up the new freedoms — the cigarette, the cocktail, the automobile, the dance. Feminism has won a victory so nearly complete that we have forgotten the fight. The girl of today would be astonished to learn how recently her grandmother had to battle merely for the right to be out of doors after dark.”

KEY TERMS flapper — a young woman of the 1920s who defied older rules of dress and behavior · off the pedestal — no longer treated as a fragile, morally superior ideal · feminism — the movement for women’s equality

What does “Flapper Jane” reveal about changing expectations for women in the 1920s?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a male journalist describing a young woman for a magazine audience. How might his point of view and purpose shape how “Flapper Jane” is portrayed?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This magazine profile of “Flapper Jane” presents the modern young woman who rejects old rules of dress and behavior in the name of honesty and freedom — a sign of women’s changing role after suffrage.

ENTRY QUESTION

How does Jane explain her new style and behavior?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After winning the vote, many young women embraced new freedoms — shorter skirts and hair, dancing, working, and going out unchaperoned. The “flapper” became a symbol of the decade’s cultural change and the backlash against it.

A Letter from the Great Migration

US.32 — Analyze the Great Migration of African Americans from the South to Northern cities.

Source: Letter to the Chicago Defender · c. 1917 †

“I am in the darkness of the south and I am trying my best to get out... I should like to know if I could get employment [employment] and a place to stay with my wife and 3 children. I am a good workman and can do any kind of work, and I am not afraid of work. I want to leave the south and go any where I can educate my children and where I can have a chance to make a good living for them. Down here a man can not raise his children to be anything, and the wages is so low a man can not save enough to help himself. I have been reading the Defender and it is a paper that all the race should read... Please help me to get out of this land of suffering. I will do any thing you ask me to do, and I will come at once.”

KEY TERMS the Great Migration — the movement of millions of Black Southerners to Northern cities (1916–1970) · the Chicago Defender — a leading Black newspaper that encouraged migration north

ANALYZE

What does this letter reveal about why African Americans left the South during the Great Migration?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is an ordinary person’s private letter, not a public statement. What does that firsthand voice capture that a law or a speech could not?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In a migrant's own words, a Black Southerner begs for help finding work and schooling in the North — fleeing the “darkness” and “suffering” of the Jim Crow South.

ENTRY QUESTION

Why does the letter-writer want to leave the South?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

During and after WWI, millions of African Americans left the rural South for Northern cities, seeking jobs, education, and escape from Jim Crow violence. This reshaped American cities — and made the Harlem Renaissance possible.

US.28

Rugged Individualism

US.28 — Analyze the political philosophy of 1920s prosperity, including limited government and self-reliance.

Source: Herbert Hoover, campaign speech · October 22, 1928 †

“We were challenged with a peace-time choice between the American system of rugged individualism and a European philosophy of diametrically opposed doctrines — doctrines of paternalism and state socialism... I should like to state to you the effect that this projection of government in business would have upon our system of self-government and our economic system. That effect would be to... stifle initiative and invention... It would extinguish equality and liberty of opportunity. It would dry up the spirit of liberty and progress... Every step of bureaucratizing of the business of our country poisons the very roots of liberalism — that is, political equality, free speech, free assembly, free press, and equality of opportunity. It is the road not to more liberty, but to less liberty... And what have been the results of the American system? Our country has become the land of opportunity to those born without inheritance, not merely because of the wealth of its resources, but because of freedom.”

KEY TERMS rugged individualism — the belief that people should succeed through their own effort, without government help · paternalism — a government that controls people ‘for their own good’ · initiative — the drive to act and create on one’s own

What does Hoover’s idea of “rugged individualism” value, and what does it reject?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Hoover gave this speech at the height of the boom, a year before the Crash. How might that timing make his confidence in individualism look different in hindsight?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Hoover champions “rugged individualism” — success through self-reliance and free enterprise — and warns that government involvement in business would crush initiative, opportunity, and liberty.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Hoover say government involvement in business would do to opportunity and initiative?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Hoover’s 1928 speech captured the era’s faith in free-market prosperity and limited government — a philosophy that would be severely tested when the stock market crashed just a year later.

US.28

A Return to Normalcy

US.28 — Analyze the political mood of the early 1920s following World War I.

Source: Warren G. Harding, campaign speech · May 14, 1920 †

“There isn’t anything the matter with world civilization, except that humanity is viewing it through a vision impaired in a cataclysmal war. Poise has been disturbed, and nerves have been racked, and fever has rendered the imagination unsteady... America’s present need is not heroics, but healing; not nostrums, but normalcy; not revolution, but restoration; not agitation, but adjustment; not surgery, but serenity; not the dramatic, but the dispassionate; not experiment, but equipoise; not submergence in internationality, but sustainment in triumphant nationality... My best judgment of America’s needs is to steady down, to get squarely on our feet, to make sure of the right path. Let us stop to consider that tranquility at home is more precious than peace abroad, and that both our good fortune and our eminence are dependent on the normal forward stride of all the American people.”

KEY TERMS normalcy — a return to ordinary, settled conditions · nostrums — quack remedies; false cures · internationality — deep involvement in world affairs

ANALYZE

What mood and priorities does Harding’s call for “normalcy” express after World War I?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Harding rejects “submergence in internationality” for “triumphant nationality.” How does this connect to the rejection of the League of Nations at the end of the previous era?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

After WWI and its upheavals, Harding promises a calming “return to normalcy” — healing, stability, and a turn away from crusades, reform, and foreign entanglements.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two things Harding says America needs — and two it does not.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Weary of war, reform, and the fight over the League of Nations, Americans elected Harding on this promise of calm and stability — signaling a turn toward isolationism and away from Progressive activism.

The Great Gatsby

US.30 — Analyze cultural expression and critique of the 1920s, including the American Dream and materialism.

Source: F. Scott Fitzgerald, The Great Gatsby · 1925

“Gatsby believed in the green light, the orgastic future that year by year recedes before us. It eluded us then, but that’s no matter — tomorrow we will run faster, stretch out our arms farther... And one fine morning— So we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past.”

KEY TERMS the green light — a symbol of Gatsby’s hopes and the elusive American Dream · recedes — moves farther away · borne back — carried backward

ANALYZE

How does Fitzgerald use the “green light” to comment on the American Dream?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a novelist’s critique, not a factual record. How can a work of fiction still be valuable evidence of how people experienced the 1920s?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In the novel’s famous ending, Fitzgerald turns Gatsby’s longing for the “green light” into a meditation on the American Dream — a future we chase forever but can never quite reach.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the “green light” represent in this passage?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Fitzgerald’s novel captured the glamour and emptiness of the Jazz Age — its wealth, parties, and restless striving — and questioned whether the American Dream of self-made success was real or a beautiful illusion.

Document-Based Question

The 1920s (1920–1929)
Standards US.28 – US.38

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

The 1920s brought rapid cultural and economic change to the United States. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which the decade was defined by conflict between traditional and modern values.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

the 1920s were a time of big change. Using the documents, argue how much the decade was a fight between old, traditional values and new, modern ones.

WHY IT MATTERS

the 1920s clash over immigration, race, religion, and changing culture looks a lot like debates still dividing Americans today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: forces of modern change and the traditional backlash against them.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — both modern change and traditional backlash — or the tension between them.

US.40

First Inaugural Address

US.40 — Analyze Franklin D. Roosevelt's leadership and the launch of the New Deal in response to the Great Depression.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · March 4, 1933 †

“So, first of all, let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself — nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance... Values have shrunk to fantastic levels; taxes have risen; our ability to pay has fallen; the means of exchange are frozen in the currents of trade; the withered leaves of industrial enterprise lie on every side; farmers find no markets for their produce; and the savings of many years in thousands of families are gone. This Nation asks for action, and action now. Our greatest primary task is to put people to work. This is no unsolvable problem if we face it wisely and courageously. It can be accomplished in part by direct recruiting by the Government itself, treating the task as we would treat the emergency of a war, but at the same time, through this employment, accomplishing greatly needed projects to stimulate and reorganize the use of our great natural resources.”

KEY TERMS paralyzes — makes unable to act · direct recruiting — the government hiring people itself

ANALYZE

How does FDR try to restore confidence and signal a new role for government in this speech?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

FDR says government should treat unemployment “as we would treat the emergency of a war.” How does that comparison prepare Americans to accept an unprecedented expansion of federal action?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Taking office at the depths of the Depression, FDR tells Americans that fear itself is the enemy, promises bold and immediate “action, and action now,” and says government will put people to work as if fighting a war.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to FDR, what is “the only thing we have to fear”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

FDR became president in 1933 with a quarter of Americans unemployed and banks failing. His confident inaugural set the tone for the New Deal — a burst of federal action to fight the crisis.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

DOCUMENT 2

US.39

Against the Federal Dole

US.39 — Analyze the causes of the Great Depression and the initial federal response under President Hoover.

Source: President Herbert Hoover · 1931 †

“I am opposed to any direct or indirect government dole. The moment responsibilities of any community, particularly in economic and social questions, are shifted from any part of the Nation to Washington, then that community has subjected itself to a remote bureaucracy with its minimum of understanding and its maximum of centralization of power... and the vitality of self-government is impaired. There is a possibility that the great powers of the Federal Government, once so extended, would be difficult to withdraw. Our people are providing against distress from unemployment in true American fashion — by a magnificent response to public appeal and by action of the local governments. I am confident that our people have the resources, the initiative, the courage, the stamina, and the kindness of heart to meet this situation in the way they have met their problems over generations.”

KEY TERMS dole — direct government handouts of money or aid · bureaucracy — a system of government run by officials and departments · vitality — strength and energy

ANALYZE

Why does Hoover oppose direct federal relief during the Depression?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Hoover’s faith in local, voluntary aid clashes with FDR’s call for federal “action now” (Doc 1). What does this contrast reveal about competing ideas of government’s role?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Hoover opposes direct federal relief, arguing that handouts from Washington would weaken self-government and local responsibility — and that private charity and local government should handle relief “in true American fashion.”

ENTRY QUESTION

Who does Hoover believe should provide relief instead of the federal government?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

As the Depression deepened, President Hoover resisted large-scale federal relief, trusting voluntary aid and local government. His limited response left millions desperate and cost him the 1932 election.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 3

Letters from the Dust Bowl

US.39 — Analyze the human and environmental impact of the Great Depression, including the Dust Bowl.

Source: Caroline Henderson, The Atlantic Monthly · 1936 †

“Wearing our shade hats, with handkerchiefs tied over our faces and Vaseline in our nostrils, we have been trying to rescue our home from the accumulations of wind-blown dust which penetrates wherever air can go. It is an almost hopeless task, for there is rarely a day and never a night without wind... The doors and windows were all shut tightly, yet those tiny particles seemed to seep through the very walls and to fill the air with a solemn, brooding gloom. We keep the lamps burning at midday. Our cattle are dying; the wheat is buried; and the little garden on which we counted for food is gone. Nothing that you hear or read about the dust storms can convey any adequate idea of the terrifying reality — of the sheer, grinding struggle simply to keep alive and to hold a home together against a wind that never stops.”

KEY TERMS Dust Bowl — the drought-stricken Southern Plains where dust storms ruined farmland in the 1930s · accumulations — piled-up amounts · penetrates — gets into or through

ANALYZE

What does this letter reveal about the human experience of the Dust Bowl?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a firsthand letter, not a government report. What does an eyewitness voice capture about the Dust Bowl that statistics on crop failure could not?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A Plains farm wife describes the choking dust storms of the Dust Bowl — dust seeping through sealed walls, an “almost hopeless” fight to keep the home livable — and says no report can capture the terror of it.

ENTRY QUESTION

What is Henderson and her family trying to protect their home from?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Drought and poor farming turned the Southern Plains into the Dust Bowl. Storms buried farms, ruined crops, and drove families west — layering an environmental disaster on top of the economic one.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 4

US.41

A Letter to the White House

US.41 — Analyze the impact of the Great Depression on ordinary Americans and their appeals for help.

Source: Letter from a citizen to the Roosevelts · c. 1935 †

“Dear Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt: I am writing to you for help... My husband has been out of work for over a year and we have four children. We have no money for shoes so the children cannot go to school, and very little to eat. The landlord says he will put us out on the street if we do not pay the rent, and I do not know where we would go. I hate to ask for charity but I do not know what else to do. My husband is a good man and a hard worker, but there is no work to be had anywhere. If you could send us some of your old clothes, or help us in any way, we would be so grateful, and we would pay you back when times get better. We are honest people who only want a chance to work and to raise our children right.”

KEY TERMS charity — help given to those in need · relief — government or private aid for the poor and unemployed

ANALYZE

What does this letter reveal about how ordinary Americans experienced the Depression — and how they viewed the Roosevelts?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The writer insists they “only want a chance to work” and “hate to ask for charity.” What does that reveal about how Americans felt about accepting relief?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In a letter to the Roosevelts, a desperate parent describes a family with no work, no food, and no shoes for school — begging for help while insisting they are “honest people who only want a chance to work.”

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the family in this letter need most urgently?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Millions of Americans wrote directly to Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt during the Depression, revealing both the depth of suffering and the hope that this president and first lady would help ordinary people.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 5

First Fireside Chat

US.40 — Analyze how the New Deal used new forms of communication to restore public confidence.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · March 12, 1933 †

“I want to talk for a few minutes with the people of the United States about banking — with the comparatively few who understand the mechanics of banking, but more particularly with the overwhelming majority who use banks for the making of deposits and the drawing of checks... When you deposit money in a bank the bank does not put the money into a safe deposit vault. It invests your money in many different forms of credit... I can assure you, my friends, that it is safer to keep your money in a reopened bank than it is to keep it under the mattress... After all, there is an element in the readjustment of our financial system more important than currency, more important than gold, and that is the confidence of the people themselves. Confidence and courage are the essentials of success in carrying out our plan. You people must have faith; you must not be stampeded by rumors or guesses. Let us unite in banishing fear.”

KEY TERMS fireside chat — FDR’s informal radio addresses to the American people · readjustment — the act of fixing or reorganizing something

ANALYZE

How does FDR use the fireside chat to restore Americans’ confidence?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

FDR chose radio to speak “with” — not “to” — the people. How might that intimate, direct style build support for his programs more effectively than a formal speech?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In his first radio “fireside chat,” FDR calmly explains the banking crisis directly to Americans and urges them to return their money to reopened banks — arguing that public confidence is the key to recovery.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does FDR urge Americans to do with their money?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

FDR used the new medium of radio to speak directly and personally to millions of Americans. His fireside chats restored trust and built support for the New Deal in a way no president had done before.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 6

The Social Security Act

US.42 — Analyze the reform programs of the New Deal, including Social Security and support for the elderly and unemployed.

Source: U.S. Congress · August 14, 1935

“An Act to provide for the general welfare by establishing a system of Federal old-age benefits, and by enabling the several States to make more adequate provision for aged persons, blind persons, dependent and crippled children, maternal and child welfare, public health, and the administration of their unemployment compensation laws...”

KEY TERMS general welfare — the well-being of the whole nation · old-age benefits — payments to retired people — what we now call Social Security · unemployment compensation — payments to workers who lose their jobs

ANALYZE

How did the Social Security Act change the federal government's responsibility toward its citizens?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Social Security made the federal government permanently responsible for citizens' economic security. How is that a bigger change than temporary relief programs?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This law created a permanent federal safety net — old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, and aid to the disabled and needy children — establishing that the government is responsible for citizens' basic security.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two groups the Social Security Act was designed to help.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Social Security was the New Deal's most lasting reform. For the first time the federal government guaranteed income to the elderly and unemployed, permanently expanding its role in Americans' lives.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: "_____."

DOCUMENT 7US.42*The Wagner Act

US.42 — Analyze New Deal support for organized labor and workers' rights.

Source: U.S. Congress, National Labor Relations Act · July 5, 1935

"Employees shall have the right to self-organization, to form, join, or assist labor organizations, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection."

KEY TERMS self-organization — workers forming their own unions · bargain collectively — negotiate as a group with an employer · concerted activities — actions workers take together, such as strikes

ANALYZE

How did the Wagner Act change the relationship between workers, employers, and the federal government?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

By protecting unions, the federal government took the workers' side in disputes with employers. How was that a major shift from earlier government policy toward labor?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Wagner Act guaranteed workers the right to form unions and bargain collectively, throwing federal power behind organized labor for the first time.

ENTRY QUESTION

What right does the Wagner Act guarantee to workers?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Before the New Deal, workers who tried to unionize could be fired or crushed. The Wagner Act protected union organizing and collective bargaining, fueling a huge surge in union membership.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: "_____."

DOCUMENT 8US.42*A Civilian Conservation Corps Enrollee

US.42 — Analyze New Deal relief and work programs, including the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Source: Recollection of a CCC enrollee · 1930s †

"When I joined the CCC I had never had three square meals a day in my life. They gave us food, clothes, a bunk, and thirty dollars a month — and twenty-five of that was sent straight home to my family. We built roads, planted trees, strung telephone lines, and fought fires out in the woods... The work was hard and the days were long, but for the first time I felt like I was worth something and had a place in the world. It made a man of me, and that money kept my mother and the little ones eating through the worst of it. A lot of us came in skinny and beaten down and went home strong, with a trade and a little money in our pockets. I will never forget what it did for us."

KEY TERMS Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) — a New Deal program that put young men to work on conservation projects · enrollee — a person signed up for a program

ANALYZE

How did New Deal work programs like the CCC help both individuals and their families?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a fond personal recollection. How might gratitude and the passage of time shape how the CCC is remembered — and how should a historian weigh such a source?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A young man recalls how the CCC gave him food, work, and pay — most of it sent home to his family — while he built roads and planted trees, crediting the program with supporting his family and shaping his life.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the CCC provide, and where did most of the enrollee's pay go?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The CCC put millions of unemployed young men to work on conservation projects, sending most of their pay home. It was one of the New Deal's most popular programs, providing both relief and dignity.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

DOCUMENT 9

US.42

Second Inaugural Address

US.42 — Analyze the goals and ongoing reforms of the New Deal.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · January 20, 1937 †

"I see millions of families trying to live on incomes so meager that the pall of family disaster hangs over them day by day... I see millions denied education, recreation, and the opportunity to better their lot and the lot of their children. I see millions lacking the means to buy the products of farm and factory and by their poverty denying work and productiveness to many other millions. I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished. It is not in despair that I paint you that picture. I paint it for you in hope — because the Nation, seeing and understanding the injustice in it, proposes to paint it out. We are determined to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern... The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little."

KEY TERMS meager — very small; not enough · pall — a dark cloud or covering of gloom · ill-clad — poorly clothed

ANALYZE

How does FDR define national progress in this speech, and what role does he give the government?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

FDR measures progress by how the nation treats "those who have too little." How does that standard justify a permanently larger role for the federal government?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Four years into the New Deal, FDR points to the "one-third of a nation" still poor and hungry — and defines national progress not by the wealth of the rich but by whether the government provides "enough for those who have too little."

ENTRY QUESTION

What fraction of the nation does FDR say is "ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished"?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

By 1937 the New Deal had eased the crisis but not ended it. FDR renewed his commitment to helping the poorest Americans, defending an active government as a moral duty.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: "_____."

Every Man a King

US.43 — Analyze criticism of the New Deal, including calls for more radical change.

Source: Senator Huey P. Long, "Share Our Wealth" · 1934 †

"We propose that no one man shall own more than he and his children and his children's children can use, and that every family in America should at least own a homestead, an automobile, a radio, and the ordinary conveniences, and that no family should have less than around five thousand dollars... How many men ever went to a barbecue and would let one man take off the table what was intended for nine-tenths of the people to eat? The only way you would ever be able to feed the balance of the people is to make that man come back and bring back some of that grub that he ain't got no business with... Every man a king, but no one wears a crown. We have enough and to spare in this country — enough to feed and clothe and house every one of God's children. Let no one tell you that it is difficult to do. It is simple."

KEY TERMS Share Our Wealth — Huey Long’s plan to tax the rich and give every family a basic income and property · homestead — a family home and land

ANALYZE

How does Long criticize the New Deal, and what does he propose instead?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Long and the New Deal both claimed to help the “forgotten man.” How does his critique from the left differ from conservatives who said the New Deal went too far (Docs 11–12)?

Senator Huey Long attacks the New Deal from the left as not going far enough, proposing to cap great fortunes and guarantee every family a home, car, and comforts — “Every man a king.”

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Huey Long’s “Share Our Wealth” plan promise every family?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

A fiery Louisiana senator, Huey Long claimed the New Deal did too little for the poor. His wildly popular “Share Our Wealth” plan pressured FDR from the left until Long was assassinated in 1935.

Schechter Poultry Corp. v. United States

US.43 — Analyze constitutional challenges to the New Deal and the role of the Supreme Court.

Source: Supreme Court of the United States · May 27, 1935 (295 U.S. 495) †

“Extraordinary conditions do not create or enlarge constitutional power... Extraordinary conditions may call for extraordinary remedies. But the argument necessarily stops short of an attempt to justify action which lies outside the sphere of constitutional authority. Such assertions of extra-constitutional authority were anticipated and precluded by the Constitution itself... The Congress is not permitted to abdicate or to transfer to others the essential legislative functions with which it is thus vested... We think that the code-making authority thus conferred is an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. If the commerce clause were construed to reach all enterprises and transactions which could be said to have an indirect effect upon interstate commerce, the federal authority would embrace practically all the activities of the people, and the authority of the State over its domestic concerns would exist only by sufferance of the federal government.”

KEY TERMS Schechter — the case that struck down the National Recovery Administration (NRA) · delegation of legislative power — Congress handing its law-making power to someone else · precluded — prevented; ruled out

On what constitutional grounds did the Court strike down this New Deal program?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Court says “extraordinary conditions do not create or enlarge constitutional power.” How does this ruling reflect a fear that the New Deal gave the president too much power?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Supreme Court unanimously struck down a major New Deal agency (the NRA), ruling that even a national emergency cannot justify giving the president powers the Constitution does not allow.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the Court rule about the New Deal program in this case?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The conservative Supreme Court struck down several New Deal laws as unconstitutional overreach, including the NRA in this case — setting up FDR’s bitter fight with the Court.

Statement of the American Liberty League

US.43 — Analyze conservative and business opposition to the New Deal.

Source: The American Liberty League · 1935 †

“The New Deal... is a definite threat to the fundamental principles upon which our Government was founded. It fosters class antagonism where none should exist; it undermines the individual initiative and self-reliance that built this country; and it concentrates in the hands of the Executive a dangerous and un-American power that no free people should ever grant to one man... Under the guise of relief and recovery, the Administration has launched a deliberate assault upon the Constitution, upon the rights of the States, and upon the liberties of the individual. We must defend the Constitution and the right of every citizen to work, to earn, and to keep the fruits of his labor. The League is founded to teach the duty of government to encourage and protect individual and group initiative and enterprise, and to preserve that ordered liberty which is the birthright of every American.”

KEY TERMS American Liberty League — an organization of business leaders and conservatives who opposed the New Deal · class antagonism — hostility between rich and poor · individual initiative — personal drive and effort

How does the American Liberty League argue that the New Deal went too far?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Liberty League was funded by wealthy businessmen. How might that stake shape its claim that the New Deal threatened “the fundamental principles” of the country?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A group of business leaders and conservatives attacks the New Deal as un-American — charging that it turns rich against poor, kills self-reliance, and dangerously concentrates power in the president.

ENTRY QUESTION

What three dangers does the Liberty League say the New Deal creates?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The American Liberty League, backed by wealthy businessmen, opposed the New Deal as a threat to free enterprise and the Constitution — the leading voice of conservative resistance to FDR.

Fireside Chat on the Federal Judiciary

US.44 — Analyze the limits and opposition faced by the New Deal, including the court-reform (‘court-packing’) fight.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · March 9, 1937 †

“Last Thursday I described the American form of Government as a three-horse team provided by the Constitution... The Court has been acting not as a judicial body, but as a policy-making body... We have, therefore, reached the point as a nation where we must take action to save the Constitution from the Court and the Court from itself. We must find a way to take an appeal from the Supreme Court to the Constitution itself. We want a Supreme Court which will do justice under the Constitution — not over it. In our courts we want a government of laws and not of men. I want — as all Americans want — an independent judiciary as proposed by the framers of the Constitution. That means a Supreme Court that will enforce the Constitution as written, that will refuse to amend the Constitution by the arbitrary exercise of judicial power.”

KEY TERMS judiciary — the courts and judges · ‘court-packing’ — FDR’s plan to add justices to the Supreme Court · policy-making body — a group that makes laws or policy, rather than just interpreting them

ANALYZE

How does FDR justify his plan to change the Supreme Court?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Even many New Deal supporters opposed the court plan. What does that backlash reveal about American limits on concentrating power — even for popular goals?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

After the Court struck down New Deal laws, FDR proposes adding justices — arguing the Court is blocking the nation’s will — in a plan critics attacked as “court-packing” and a threat to the separation of powers.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does FDR accuse the Supreme Court of doing?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Frustrated by the Court striking down his programs, FDR proposed adding up to six new justices. The “court-packing” plan failed badly and damaged his standing — showing the limits of even a popular president’s power.

Eleanor Roosevelt on a Democracy’s Duty

US.41 — Analyze the social conscience of the New Deal and advocacy for the forgotten and vulnerable.

Source: Eleanor Roosevelt · 1936 †

“We cannot be a healthy nation and forget our obligations to those who, through no fault of their own, are unable to find work or to feed their children... It seems to me imperative that we recognize our responsibility, as a people, for one another. A democracy must provide its people not only with the right to vote, but with the chance to live in decency and hope. Where people are hungry and afraid and without work, freedom itself is in danger, for desperate people will listen to any voice that promises them bread. The test of our civilization is not how well the fortunate live, but whether we are willing to reach a hand to those who have fallen behind. If our democracy is to mean anything, it must mean the same chance for a decent life for every child, in the mining town and the city slum as in the comfortable suburb.”

KEY TERMS obligations — duties or responsibilities · decency — a basic standard of a good, respectable life

ANALYZE

How does Eleanor Roosevelt define the responsibilities of a democracy toward its people?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Eleanor Roosevelt frames helping the poor as the “test of our civilization.” How does this moral argument support the New Deal’s expansion of government (Docs 6, 9)?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Eleanor Roosevelt argues that a real democracy owes its people not just the vote but a decent life — and that the true test of the nation is whether it helps those who have fallen on hard times.

According to Eleanor Roosevelt, what must a democracy provide beyond the right to vote?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

As first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt became the New Deal’s social conscience, championing the poor, the unemployed, women, and minorities, and pushing the government to see relief as a moral duty.

Document-Based Question

The Great Depression and New Deal (1929–1941)
Standards US.39 – US.44

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

The Great Depression tested the United States as no economic crisis had before. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which the New Deal changed the relationship between the federal government and the American people.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

the Great Depression hit America hard. Using the documents, argue how much the New Deal changed what the federal government does for its people — and weigh the critics who said it did too much or too little.

WHY IT MATTERS

Social Security, unemployment insurance, and the debate over how much government should protect people all began here — and still shape American politics today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: how the New Deal expanded government, and how critics said it went too far or not far enough.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — expansion of government and the critics on both sides — or the tension between them.

The Four Freedoms

US.45 — Analyze the causes of World War II and the ideals for which the United States would fight.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Annual Message to Congress · January 6, 1941 †

“In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms. The first is freedom of speech and expression — everywhere in the world. The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way — everywhere in the world. The third is freedom from want — which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants — everywhere in the world. The fourth is freedom from fear — which, translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor — anywhere in the world. That is no vision of a distant millennium. It is a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation.”

KEY TERMS freedom from want — having enough to live on; economic security · freedom from fear — safety from war and aggression

ANALYZE

How does FDR define the ideals the United States should defend?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

FDR insists these freedoms belong to people “everywhere in the world.” How might that universal claim be used later to judge America’s own conduct during the war?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Almost a year before Pearl Harbor, FDR defines the ideals worth defending — four freedoms (speech, worship, from want, from fear) that he says belong to people “everywhere in the world.”

ENTRY QUESTION

Name the four freedoms FDR describes.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

With Britain fighting alone against Nazi Germany, FDR prepared Americans to support the Allies. The “Four Freedoms” gave the coming war a moral purpose and became a rallying idea for the war effort.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM–EVIDENCE–REASONING)

US.45

America First

US.45 — Analyze American isolationism and the debate over entering World War II.

Source: Charles A. Lindbergh, America First Committee address · September 11, 1941 †

“It is now obvious that England is losing the war... I have said before, and I will say again, that I believe this war would be one of the greatest disasters to our country if we enter it... We must not permit our sentiment, our pity, or our personal feelings of sympathy, to obscure the fact that our own future security depends upon staying out of this war. We must look to our own defense and our own character. If we enter the quarrels of Europe during war, we must stay in them in time of peace as well... It is not only our right but it is our obligation as American citizens to look at this war objectively and to weigh our chances for success if we should enter it. The destiny of this country does not call for our involvement in European wars.”

SOURCING NOTE Lindbergh was the most famous voice of the isolationist America First Committee. This same Des Moines speech was widely condemned for blaming Jewish Americans for pushing the U.S. toward war — a reminder that isolationism was sometimes tied to prejudice.

ANALYZE

On what grounds does Lindbergh argue against U.S. entry into the war?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Lindbergh appeals to “our own defense.” Given that the same speech was condemned as antisemitic (see note), how should a historian weigh both the argument and the prejudice behind it?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The aviator hero Charles Lindbergh argues the U.S. should stay out of the war, insisting American security depends on avoiding Europe's conflict rather than acting on sympathy for Britain.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Lindbergh argue the United States should do about the war in Europe?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Many Americans wanted no part of another European war. The America First Committee, led by figures like Lindbergh, pushed to keep the U.S. neutral — until Pearl Harbor ended the debate.

US.46

A Date Which Will Live in Infamy

US.46 — Analyze the attack on Pearl Harbor and the U.S. entry into World War II.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · December 8, 1941 †

"Yesterday, December 7th, 1941 — a date which will live in infamy — the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan... The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. Very many American lives have been lost. In addition, American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas... As Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense... No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory... With confidence in our armed forces, with the unbounding determination of our people, we will gain the inevitable triumph — so help us God. I ask that the Congress declare that... a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire."

KEY TERMS infamy — the state of being remembered for something evil · premeditated — planned in advance

ANALYZE

How does FDR frame the attack on Pearl Harbor to unite the nation for war?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Just months earlier, many Americans opposed entering the war (Doc 2). How does FDR use Pearl Harbor to end that debate almost overnight?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The day after Japan's surprise attack on Pearl Harbor, FDR calls it "a date which will live in infamy," promises "absolute victory," and asks Congress to declare war — ending the debate over neutrality.

ENTRY QUESTION

What event is FDR responding to in this speech?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Japan's December 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor killed about 2,400 Americans and destroyed much of the Pacific fleet. It united the country and brought the U.S. fully into World War II.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

US.51

Executive Order 9066

US.51 — Analyze the internment of Japanese Americans and the wartime tension between security and civil liberties.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · February 19, 1942

"Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as President... I hereby authorize and direct the Secretary of War... to prescribe military areas... from which any or all persons may be excluded, and with respect to which, the right of any person to enter, remain in, or leave shall be subject to whatever restrictions the Secretary of War or the appropriate Military Commander may impose in his discretion."

KEY TERMS executive order — a rule issued by the president that has the force of law · excluded — kept out; removed · at his discretion — as he alone decides

ANALYZE

How could this order be used to imprison Japanese Americans — and what does it reveal about wartime fear?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The order never mentions Japanese Americans by name. How does its broad, neutral language make it easier to carry out a policy based on race?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This order let the military remove “any or all persons” from designated areas. Though it never names them, it was used to force about 120,000 Japanese Americans — most of them citizens — into internment camps.

ENTRY QUESTION

What power does Executive Order 9066 give the Secretary of War?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After Pearl Harbor, fear and prejudice led the government to imprison Japanese Americans without trial, based only on their ancestry. The Supreme Court upheld it in Korematsu v. United States (1944).

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

US.51

Behind Barbed Wire: An Internee Remembers

US.51 — Analyze the experience of Japanese Americans during internment.

Source: Recollection of a Japanese American internee · 1942 †

“We were told to bring only what we could carry. We sold our home and our belongings for almost nothing — the car my father had worked years to buy went to a neighbor for a few dollars. At the camp we lived in a single room in a tar-paper barrack behind barbed wire, with guard towers watching us and searchlights sweeping the ground at night. We stood in line for the mess hall, the latrine, everything; there was no privacy and little to do. We were American citizens, born in this country, but we were treated as enemies because of our faces. My father kept asking, ‘What did we do wrong?’ No one ever answered him. We tried to make the best of it, planting little gardens and holding school for the children, but none of us ever forgot that our own government had put us there.”

KEY TERMS internment — imprisoning people, often without trial, during wartime · barrack — a plain building used to house people, as in a camp

ANALYZE

What does this account reveal about the human cost of Japanese American internment?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Read this beside Executive Order 9066 (Doc 4). How does a personal memory reveal what the neutral legal language of the order hides?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In a survivor’s own words, a Japanese American describes losing home and belongings, then living behind barbed wire under guard — punished as an “enemy” despite being a citizen who had done nothing wrong.

ENTRY QUESTION

What were internees allowed to bring to the camps, and how did they live there?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Families were given days to sell everything and were shipped to remote camps. Most were U.S. citizens. In 1988 the government formally apologized and paid reparations for this injustice.

Executive Order 8802

US.50 — Analyze African American efforts to secure rights during World War II, including fair employment.

Source: President Franklin D. Roosevelt · June 25, 1941

“I do hereby reaffirm the policy of the United States that there shall be no discrimination in the employment of workers in defense industries or Government because of race, creed, color, or national origin... And it is hereby ordered... that all departments and agencies of the Government of the United States concerned with vocational and training programs for defense production shall take special measures... to provide for the full and equitable participation of all workers.”

KEY TERMS defense industries — factories making weapons and war supplies · equitable — fair · creed — a set of religious beliefs

ANALYZE

What did Executive Order 8802 change, and why was it a significant step for civil rights?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This order came only after Black leaders threatened a march on Washington. What does that reveal about how rights were won during the war?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

FDR bans racial discrimination in defense jobs and government — the first federal action against employment discrimination since Reconstruction, won by Black leaders' pressure.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Executive Order 8802 forbid?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

When labor leader A. Philip Randolph threatened a mass march on Washington, FDR issued this order to prevent it. It opened wartime jobs to Black workers and became a model for later civil rights gains.

The Double V Campaign

US.50 — Analyze the 'Double V' campaign and the fight for democracy at home and abroad.

Source: The Pittsburgh Courier · 1942 †

"We, as colored Americans, are determined to protect our country, our form of government, and the freedoms which we cherish for ourselves and for the rest of the world... We call upon the President and the Congress to declare war on Japan and racial prejudice in our country. Certainly we should be strong enough to whip both. Therefore we have adopted the Double 'V' war cry — victory over our enemies on the battlefields abroad and, thus, victory over our enemies from within the gates of our own country. For surely those who perpetrate these ugly prejudices at home are seeking to destroy our democratic form of government just as surely as the Axis powers. We fight to keep America free; we fight also to make America live up to what it says it believes. Let the V for victory stand for a double victory."

KEY TERMS Double V — victory abroad against fascism and victory at home against racism · the Axis powers — Germany, Italy, and Japan · perpetrate — carry out (something harmful)

ANALYZE

How does the Double V campaign turn the war for freedom abroad into a demand for equality at home?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Double V argument uses America's own war aims (Doc 1) against its treatment of Black citizens. Why was that a powerful strategy during the war?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A leading Black newspaper launches the "Double V" campaign: Black Americans will fight for victory over fascism abroad and over racism at home — arguing prejudice threatens democracy as much as the enemy does.

ENTRY QUESTION

What are the two "victories" in the Double V campaign?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Black Americans served and worked for a country that still segregated them. The Double V campaign turned wartime rhetoric about freedom into a demand for equality at home — a seed of the postwar civil rights movement.

A Woman War Worker Remembers

US.49 — Analyze the mobilization of the home front, including new roles for women in wartime industry.

Source: Recollection of a wartime shipyard worker · 1940s †

"Before the war I had never worked outside the home. When the men went off to fight, the shipyard hired us — and I learned to weld. The first day I was terrified of the torch, but within a few weeks I was as good as any man on the line, and the foreman said so... I was proud to be doing my part, and proud of a paycheck that was my own for the first time in my life. I bought war bonds, sent money home, and still had a little left to spend as I pleased. When the war ended they told us to go home so the men could have their jobs back. I went. But I was never quite the same again — I had proved I could do it, and I never again believed the old idea that there was work a woman couldn't do."

KEY TERMS 'Rosie the Riveter' — the symbol of women who took factory jobs during the war · home front — the civilian side of the war effort at home

ANALYZE

How did World War II change women's roles and self-image on the home front?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

She was sent home when the war ended "so the men could have their jobs back." How does that ending complicate the idea that the war permanently changed women's place in society?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A woman recalls taking a shipyard job when the men left to fight — learning to weld, earning her own paycheck, and gaining a confidence that outlasted the war, even after she was sent home when it ended.

ENTRY QUESTION

What new job did the war open up for this woman, and how did she feel about it?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

With millions of men in uniform, women filled factory jobs once thought “men’s work.” The experience changed how many women saw themselves — planting ideas that would grow in the postwar decades.

This Is a People’s War

US.49 — Analyze home-front mobilization, including rationing, war bonds, and civilian sacrifice.

Source: U.S. government home-front appeal · 1943 †

“Use it up, wear it out, make it do, or do without. Rationing is not a punishment; it is a way of making sure that everyone gets a fair share of scarce goods and that our fighting men have what they need. Every pound of fat you save helps make explosives; every scrap of rubber and metal goes back into tanks and ships; every victory garden means more food for our soldiers overseas. When you buy war bonds, plant a victory garden, and save fat, rubber, and scrap metal, you are helping to win the war just as surely as the men on the front lines. Do not grumble at the shortages or the lines — they are the small price of freedom. This is a people’s war, and every American, on the farm, in the factory, and in the home, has a part to play.”

KEY TERMS rationing — limiting how much of a scarce good each person can buy · war bonds — loans citizens made to the government to fund the war · victory garden — a home vegetable garden grown to ease food shortages

How did the government ask ordinary Americans to contribute to the war effort at home?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is government messaging designed to persuade. How might its cheerful, unifying tone shape the way Americans understood shortages and sacrifice?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A government home-front message urges civilians to ration goods, buy war bonds, and save scrap — framing everyday sacrifice as everyone’s share in winning “a people’s war.”

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two things the government asked civilians to do to help win the war.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The war reached every household through rationing, war bonds, and scrap drives. The government asked civilians to sacrifice and contribute, making the home front central to the war effort.

D-Day: Order of the Day

US.52 — Analyze the major military turning points of World War II, including the invasion of Europe.

Source: General Dwight D. Eisenhower · June 6, 1944 †

“Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Force! You are about to embark upon the Great Crusade, toward which we have striven these many months. The eyes of the world are upon you. The hopes and prayers of liberty-loving people everywhere march with you. In company with our brave Allies and brothers-in-arms on other fronts, you will bring about the destruction of the German war machine, the elimination of Nazi tyranny over the oppressed peoples of Europe, and security for ourselves in a free world... Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well trained, well equipped and battle-hardened. He will fight savagely. But this is the year 1944! ... I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. We will accept nothing less than full victory!”

KEY TERMS Allied Expeditionary Force — the combined U.S., British, and Allied troops invading Europe · Great Crusade — Eisenhower’s name for the campaign to free Europe

ANALYZE

How does Eisenhower frame the D-Day invasion for the soldiers about to fight it?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Eisenhower calls the invasion a “Great Crusade” for “liberty-loving people everywhere.” How does that language connect the fighting to the ideals in FDR’s Four Freedoms (Doc 1)?

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

On the morning of the D-Day invasion, Eisenhower tells his troops that the “eyes of the world” and the hopes of “liberty-loving people everywhere” are with them as they begin the fight to free Europe.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Eisenhower say is at stake as the troops begin the invasion?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

On June 6, 1944, Allied forces landed at Normandy — the largest seaborne invasion in history. D-Day opened a second front against Nazi Germany and began the liberation of Western Europe.

The Liberation of the Camps

US.55 — Analyze the Holocaust and the world’s confrontation with Nazi atrocities.

Source: General Dwight D. Eisenhower, letter to General Marshall · April 1945 †

“The things I saw beggar description... The visual evidence and the verbal testimony of starvation, cruelty and bestiality were so overpowering as to leave me a bit sick. In one room, where they were piled up twenty or thirty naked men, killed by starvation, George Patton would not even enter. He said he would get sick if he did so. I made the visit deliberately, in order to be in a position to give first-hand evidence of these things if ever, in the future, there develops a tendency to charge these allegations merely to ‘propaganda.’ ... I felt that the evidence should be immediately placed before the American and British publics in a fashion that would leave no room for cynical doubt.”

KEY TERMS beggar description — be too terrible to describe · bestiality — extreme cruelty · concentration camp — a Nazi camp where millions were imprisoned and murdered

ANALYZE

Why did Eisenhower want first-hand evidence of what he saw in the Nazi camps?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Eisenhower feared future claims that the atrocities were “propaganda.” How does an eyewitness account by a trusted commander guard against Holocaust denial?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

After seeing a Nazi camp with his own eyes, Eisenhower says the horror is beyond description — and explains he looked deliberately so he could bear witness against anyone who might later deny it happened.

ENTRY QUESTION

Why did Eisenhower say he deliberately visited the camp?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

As Allied troops advanced, they uncovered the Nazi camps where six million Jews and millions of others were murdered. Leaders like Eisenhower documented the Holocaust so it could never be denied.

The Announcement of the Atomic Bomb

US.54 — Analyze the development and use of the atomic bomb and the decision to end the war in the Pacific.

Source: President Harry S. Truman · August 6, 1945 †

“Sixteen hours ago an American airplane dropped one bomb on Hiroshima, an important Japanese Army base... It is an atomic bomb. It is a harnessing of the basic power of the universe. The force from which the sun draws its power has been loosed against those who brought war to the Far East... It was to spare the Japanese people from utter destruction that the ultimatum of July 26 was issued at Potsdam. Their leaders promptly rejected that ultimatum. If they do not now accept our terms they may expect a rain of ruin from the air, the like of which has never been seen on this earth... We are now prepared to obliterate more rapidly and completely every productive enterprise the Japanese have above ground in any city. Let there be no mistake; we shall completely destroy Japan’s power to make war.”

KEY TERMS atomic bomb — a weapon of enormous power that splits atoms to release energy · harnessing — capturing and putting to use · rain of ruin — total destruction

ANALYZE

How does Truman justify and describe the use of the atomic bomb?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Truman calls it “a harnessing of the basic power of the universe.” How does that framing present the bomb as both a triumph and a threat?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Truman announces the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, describing a weapon of unprecedented power and warning Japan to surrender or face “a rain of ruin” — a new and terrifying kind of war.

ENTRY QUESTION

What kind of weapon does Truman announce, and what does he warn Japan will happen?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The U.S. dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in August 1945. Japan surrendered days later. The bombs ended the war but killed over 100,000 civilians and opened the nuclear age.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

A Petition to the President

US.54 — Analyze the debate over the use of the atomic bomb.

Source: Leo Szilard and fellow scientists · July 1945 †

“The war has to be brought speedily to a successful conclusion, and attacks by atomic bombs may very well be an effective method of warfare. We feel, however, that such attacks on Japan could not be justified, at least not unless the terms which will be imposed after the war on Japan were made public in detail and Japan were given an opportunity to surrender... However, a nation which sets the precedent of using these newly liberated forces of nature for purposes of destruction may have to bear the responsibility of opening the door to an era of devastation on an unimaginable scale... We, the undersigned, respectfully petition that the United States not resort to the use of atomic bombs unless the terms to be imposed upon Japan have been made public and Japan, knowing these terms, has refused to surrender; and that in such an event the question whether or not to use atomic bombs be decided in the light of the moral responsibilities involved.”

KEY TERMS petition — a formal written request signed by many people · precedent — an example that later actions may follow · devastation — total destruction

ANALYZE

Why do these scientists urge caution about using the atomic bomb?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Read this beside Truman’s announcement (Doc 12). How do the scientists and the President weigh the same weapon so differently — and what shapes each view?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Scientists who helped build the bomb urge the President not to use it without first warning Japan publicly — fearing the U.S. would open “an era of devastation” by being the first to use such a weapon.

ENTRY QUESTION

What do the scientists ask the President to do before using the atomic bomb?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Some of the very scientists who developed the atomic bomb had moral doubts about using it on cities. Their petition never reached Truman before the bombing, but it captures the debate over the decision.

The Atlantic Charter

US.57 — Analyze Allied planning for the postwar world, including the origins of the United Nations.

Source: Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill · August 14, 1941 †

“First, their countries seek no aggrandizement, territorial or other; Second, they desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned; Third, they respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live; and they wish to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them; Fourth... they will endeavor... to further the enjoyment by all States... of access... to the raw materials of the world; Sixth... they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries... Eighth... they believe that all of the nations of the world... must come to the abandonment of the use of force.”

KEY TERMS aggrandizement — seizing power or territory to increase one’s own · self-determination — the right of a people to choose their own government · the Atlantic Charter — the 1941 statement of Allied war aims

What kind of postwar world do Roosevelt and Churchill say the Allies are fighting for?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Charter promises “the right of all peoples to choose” their government. How might colonized peoples — and Black Americans (Doc 7) — use that promise to demand their own freedom?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Before the U.S. even entered the war, Roosevelt and Churchill set out shared war aims: no seizing of territory, self-determination for peoples, and a world that abandons the use of force — ideals behind the future United Nations.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two principles the Atlantic Charter lists as Allied goals.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Atlantic Charter defined what the Allies were fighting for and inspired the postwar international order, including the United Nations — though its promise of self-determination would raise hard questions about empire.

Document-Based Question

World War II (1936–1945)
Standards US.45 – US.58

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

World War II was fought in the name of freedom. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which the United States upheld its stated ideals of freedom and equality during the war.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

America said it was fighting World War II for freedom. Using the documents, argue how well the United States actually lived up to freedom and equality — at home and in its choices — during the war.

WHY IT MATTERS

the gap between fighting for freedom abroad and denying it at home (to Japanese Americans, to Black Americans) helped launch the modern civil rights movement — and still shapes debates about security vs. liberty.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: where the nation lived up to its ideals, and where it fell short of them.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — ideals upheld and ideals betrayed — or the tension between them.

The Truman Doctrine

US.59 — Analyze the origins of the Cold War and the U.S. policy of containment.

Source: President Harry S. Truman, address to Congress · March 12, 1947 †

“At the present moment in world history nearly every nation must choose between alternative ways of life. The choice is too often not a free one. One way of life is based upon the will of the majority, and is distinguished by free institutions, representative government, free elections, guarantees of individual liberty, freedom of speech and religion, and freedom from political oppression. The second way of life is based upon the will of a minority forcibly imposed upon the majority. It relies upon terror and oppression, a controlled press and radio, fixed elections, and the suppression of personal freedoms. I believe that it must be the policy of the United States to support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures. I believe that we must assist free peoples to work out their own destinies in their own way.”

KEY TERMS subjugation — the act of bringing a people under domination or control · containment — the U.S. Cold War policy of stopping the spread of communism

ANALYZE

How does Truman justify a new, active U.S. role in resisting communism abroad?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Truman frames the world as a stark choice between freedom and tyranny. How might that framing be used to justify almost any intervention against communism, anywhere?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Truman divides the world into two ways of life — free and totalitarian — and commits the U.S. to support “free peoples” resisting communism, launching the policy of containment.

ENTRY QUESTION

What two “ways of life” does Truman say nations must choose between?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

With Britain no longer able to defend Greece and Turkey against communist pressure, Truman asked Congress for aid and framed it as a global struggle. The “Truman Doctrine” became the foundation of Cold War containment.

US.59

The Marshall Plan

US.59 — Analyze U.S. strategies to rebuild Europe and contain communism through economic aid.

Source: Secretary of State George C. Marshall, Harvard commencement · June 5, 1947 †

“It is logical that the United States should do whatever it is able to do to assist in the return of normal economic health in the world, without which there can be no political stability and no assured peace. Our policy is directed not against any country or doctrine but against hunger, poverty, desperation and chaos. Its purpose should be the revival of a working economy in the world so as to permit the emergence of political and social conditions in which free institutions can exist... Any government that is willing to assist in the task of recovery will find full cooperation on the part of the United States. Any government which maneuvers to block the recovery of other countries cannot expect help from us. Furthermore, governments, political parties or groups which seek to perpetuate human misery in order to profit therefrom politically or otherwise will encounter the opposition of the United States.”

KEY TERMS Marshall Plan — the U.S. program of economic aid to rebuild Western Europe after WWII · free institutions — democratic government, free markets, and civil liberties

ANALYZE

How is the Marshall Plan a form of containment through economics rather than military force?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Soviets forbade Eastern Europe from accepting Marshall aid. How does that reveal the plan as a weapon in the emerging Cold War?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Marshall proposes massive U.S. economic aid to rebuild Europe — arguing that prosperity is the best defense against communism, since “free institutions” cannot survive amid hunger and chaos.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Marshall say U.S. aid is directed “against”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Europe lay in ruins after WWII, and the U.S. feared communism would spread in the wreckage. The Marshall Plan sent about $13 billion to rebuild Western Europe — containment through economics.

The Sources of Soviet Conduct

US.59 — Analyze the strategic thinking behind containment.

Source: George F. Kennan (“X”), Foreign Affairs · July 1947 †

“It is clear that the main element of any United States policy toward the Soviet Union must be that of a long-term, patient but firm and vigilant containment of Russian expansive tendencies... Soviet pressure against the free institutions of the Western world is something that can be contained by the adroit and vigilant application of counter-force at a series of constantly shifting geographical and political points, corresponding to the shifts and maneuvers of Soviet policy... The Soviet Union bears within it the seeds of its own decay, and the sprouting of these seeds is well advanced. Thus the decision will really fall in large measure in this country itself. The issue of Soviet-American relations is in essence a test of the over-all worth of the United States as a nation among nations.”

KEY TERMS containment — holding communism where it is and preventing its spread · counter-force — meeting pressure with opposing pressure

ANALYZE

What strategy does Kennan propose for dealing with Soviet expansion?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Kennan later argued containment was meant to be mainly political and economic, not military. How might his idea have been stretched beyond what he intended?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The diplomat Kennan gives containment its name and logic: meet Soviet expansion firmly wherever it pushes, and over time the Soviet system will decay from within.

ENTRY QUESTION

What single word does Kennan use for the core of U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Writing anonymously as “X,” Kennan supplied the intellectual blueprint for containment. His idea — patient, firm resistance at every point — guided U.S. strategy for decades.

US.60

NSC-68

US.60 — Analyze the militarization of containment and the growth of the national security state.

Source: National Security Council Report 68 · April 14, 1950 †

“The issues that face us are momentous, involving the fulfillment or destruction not only of this Republic but of civilization itself... The Soviet Union, unlike previous aspirants to hegemony, is animated by a new fanatic faith, antithetical to our own, and seeks to impose its absolute authority over the rest of the world... A defeat of free institutions anywhere is a defeat everywhere... It is imperative that this trend be reversed by a much more rapid and concerted build-up of the actual strength of both the United States and the other nations of the free world. The frustration of the Kremlin design requires the free world to develop a successfully functioning political and economic system, and a vigorous political offensive against the Soviet Union. These, in turn, require an adequate military shield under which they can develop.”

KEY TERMS NSC-68 — a 1950 secret report urging a massive U.S. military build-up · hegemony — the dominance of one power over all others

ANALYZE

How did NSC-68 transform containment into a military and economic commitment?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

NSC-68 says “a defeat of free institutions anywhere is a defeat everywhere.” How could that logic be used to justify nearly unlimited military spending and intervention?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This secret report casts the Cold War as a fight for “civilization itself” and calls for a huge, rapid military build-up — turning containment into a vastly expensive, militarized global commitment.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does NSC-68 say is required to reverse Soviet expansion?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

NSC-68 argued the U.S. must dramatically expand its military to counter the Soviets. Adopted as the Korean War began, it roughly tripled defense spending and militarized containment.

The Berlin Airlift

US.60 — Analyze early Cold War confrontations in Europe, including the division of Germany and Berlin.

Source: Recollection of the Berlin Airlift · 1948–1949 †

“When the Russians closed every road and rail line into the western part of the city, they thought they could starve us into surrender. Instead, the Americans and British decided to feed a whole city from the air. Day and night the planes came — one every few minutes — bringing coal, flour, milk, and medicine. We could almost set our clocks by them. Some of the pilots dropped little parachutes of candy for the children, and we called them the ‘raisin bombers.’ For nearly a year they kept us alive. Before the war these same airmen had been our enemies, dropping bombs on this city; now they were dropping food. It taught us that the Americans would not abandon us to the Soviets, and it turned former enemies into friends.”

KEY TERMS Berlin Airlift — the 1948–49 operation that supplied West Berlin entirely by air · blockade — cutting off a place to force it to surrender

ANALYZE

What does the Berlin Airlift reveal about how the U.S. chose to resist Soviet pressure?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The airlift avoided direct combat but risked war every day. Why might this “victory without a shot” have mattered so much early in the Cold War?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A firsthand account of the Berlin Airlift: when the Soviets blockaded West Berlin, the U.S. and Britain supplied the whole city by air for nearly a year — turning former enemies into protectors.

ENTRY QUESTION

How did the Western Allies keep West Berlin alive during the Soviet blockade?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In 1948 the Soviets blockaded West Berlin, deep inside communist East Germany. Rather than fight or abandon the city, the West supplied it by air until the Soviets backed down — an early Cold War victory.

McCarthyism

US.62 — Analyze the Second Red Scare and its impact on American society and civil liberties.

Source: Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, speech in Wheeling, West Virginia · February 9, 1950 †

“Six years ago, at the close of the Second World War, there was within the Soviet orbit 180,000,000 people. Today, only six years later, there are 800,000,000 people under the absolute domination of Soviet Russia — an increase of over 400 percent... The reason why we find ourselves in a position of impotency is not because our only powerful potential enemy has sent men to invade our shores, but rather because of the traitorous actions of those who have been treated so well by this Nation... The State Department is infested with communists. I have here in my hand a list of names that were made known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless are still working and shaping the policy of the State Department.”

KEY TERMS subversion — secretly working to destroy a government from within · the Red Scare — the intense fear of communist infiltration of the U.S., especially 1947–1957

ANALYZE

How does McCarthy shift the communist threat from abroad to inside the U.S. government?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

McCarthy waves “a list” but never released a verified one, and the number of names changed over time. How should that shape the way a historian weighs this source?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

McCarthy claims the U.S. is losing the Cold War not to foreign armies but to communist “traitors” inside its own government, waving a “list” of alleged communists in the State Department.

ENTRY QUESTION

Where does McCarthy say the communist threat is coming from?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In this 1950 speech, Senator Joseph McCarthy launched a wave of anti-communist accusations. He never produced a verified list, but “McCarthyism” — reckless charges of disloyalty — gripped the nation and ruined careers for years.

DOCUMENT 7US.61*Truman on Korea

US.61 — Analyze the Korean War as the first major armed conflict of the containment era.

Source: President Harry S. Truman, statement on Korea · June 27, 1950 †

“In Korea the Government forces, which were armed to prevent border raids and to preserve internal security, were attacked by invading forces from North Korea. The Security Council of the United Nations called upon the invading troops to cease hostilities and to withdraw to the 38th parallel... The attack upon Korea makes it plain beyond all doubt that communism has passed beyond the use of subversion to conquer independent nations and will now use armed invasion and war. It has defied the orders of the Security Council of the United Nations issued to preserve international peace and security. In these circumstances I have ordered United States air and sea forces to give the Korean Government troops cover and support... A return to the rule of force in international affairs would have far-reaching effects. The United States will continue to uphold the rule of law.”

KEY TERMS the 38th parallel — the line dividing communist North Korea from South Korea · police action — the term used to fight the Korean War without a formal declaration of war

ANALYZE

How does Truman justify sending U.S. forces to Korea, and how does he frame the war?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Truman called Korea a “police action” under the UN rather than asking Congress to declare war. What does that word choice reveal — and what did it change about presidential power?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Truman commits U.S. forces to defend South Korea against the North’s invasion, framing it as a United Nations action and as proof that communism will now use open “armed invasion and war.”

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Truman say the attack on Korea proves about communism?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

When communist North Korea invaded the South in June 1950, Truman sent troops under a UN banner — without asking Congress to declare war. The Korean War turned containment into a bloody “hot” war and expanded presidential war powers.

US.63

The Military-Industrial Complex

US.63 — Analyze the growth of the national-security state and its influence on American life.

Source: President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Farewell Address · January 17, 1961 †

“Until the latest of our world conflicts, the United States had no armaments industry... But now we can no longer risk emergency improvisation of national defense; we have been compelled to create a permanent armaments industry of vast proportions. Added to this, three and a half million men and women are directly engaged in the defense establishment... This conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in the American experience. The total influence — economic, political, even spiritual — is felt in every city, every State house, every office of the Federal government... In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist. We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes.”

KEY TERMS military-industrial complex — the alliance of the armed forces and the weapons industry, and its political influence · unwarranted — not justified; excessive

ANALYZE

What does Eisenhower warn the “military-industrial complex” could do to American democracy?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This warning comes from a war hero and outgoing president who oversaw the very buildup he criticizes. How does his point of view make the warning more powerful — or more complicated?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Eisenhower warns that the Cold War has created a permanent, huge arms industry tied to the military — a “military-industrial complex” whose influence could endanger American liberty and democracy if left unchecked.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Eisenhower call the new combination of the military and the arms industry?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In his 1961 farewell, President Eisenhower — himself a five-star general — cautioned that the massive Cold War buildup had created powerful new interests. His warning about the “military-industrial complex” became one of the most quoted in U.S. history.

US.64

The Cuban Missile Crisis

US.64 — Analyze Cold War brinkmanship and the threat of nuclear war, including the Cuban Missile Crisis.

Source: President John F. Kennedy, address to the nation · October 22, 1962 †

“This Government, as promised, has maintained the closest surveillance of the Soviet military buildup on the island of Cuba. Within the past week, unmistakable evidence has established the fact that a series of offensive missile sites is now in preparation on that imprisoned island. The purpose of these bases can be none other than to provide a nuclear strike capability against the Western Hemisphere... To halt this offensive buildup, a strict quarantine on all offensive military equipment under shipment to Cuba is being initiated... It shall be the policy of this Nation to regard any nuclear missile launched from Cuba against any nation in the Western Hemisphere as an attack by the Soviet Union upon the United States, requiring a full retaliatory response upon the Soviet Union.”

KEY TERMS quarantine — a naval blockade of Cuba — called a ‘quarantine’ to avoid the word ‘blockade,’ which is an act of war · offensive missiles — weapons meant for attack, not defense

ANALYZE

How does Kennedy present the threat and justify the “quarantine” of Cuba?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Kennedy carefully calls the blockade a “quarantine.” Why would that word choice matter when a blockade is legally an act of war?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Kennedy reveals Soviet nuclear missile sites in Cuba and announces a naval “quarantine” to stop them, warning that any missile launched from Cuba will trigger a “full retaliatory response” on the Soviet Union.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the U.S. discover in Cuba, and what did Kennedy announce in response?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In October 1962 the U.S. found Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba, 90 miles from Florida. For 13 days the world stood at the brink of nuclear war until the Soviets agreed to remove them — the closest the Cold War came to catastrophe.

“There is something new for you to remember. It will help to keep you safe from the danger of the atomic bomb. Now, we all know the atomic bomb is very dangerous. Since it may be used against us, we must be ready for it... The flash of an atomic bomb can come at any time, no matter where you may be. Duck and cover! Duck under a table or desk, and cover the back of your neck and your face. Bert the Turtle knows what to do — and so do you.”

KEY TERMS civil defense — government programs to protect civilians from attack, especially nuclear · Bert the Turtle — the cartoon mascot who taught children to ‘duck and cover’

ANALYZE

What does “Duck and Cover” reveal about how the Cold War reached into everyday American life?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Ducking under a desk offered little real protection from a nuclear blast. Why might the government have promoted these drills anyway?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A 1950s civil-defense message teaches schoolchildren to “duck and cover” in case of an atomic attack — turning the terror of nuclear war into a rehearsed classroom drill.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does this message tell children to do if they see the flash of an atomic bomb?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

During the 1950s the fear of nuclear war reached into daily life. Schoolchildren practiced “duck and cover” drills and families built fallout shelters — small signs of how deeply the Cold War shaped the home front.

Source: U.S. Congress · August 7, 1964

“Resolved... That the Congress approves and supports the determination of the President, as Commander in Chief, to take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression... The United States is, therefore, prepared, as the President determines, to take all necessary steps, including the use of armed force, to assist any member or protocol state of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty requesting assistance in defense of its freedom.”

KEY TERMS Gulf of Tonkin Resolution — the 1964 law giving the president broad power to wage war in Vietnam · ‘all necessary measures’ — open-ended authority, with no clear limit

ANALYZE

How did the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution expand the president’s power to wage war?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Congress passed this within days, on disputed reports, by a near-unanimous vote. What does that reveal about the Cold War consensus — and its dangers?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This resolution gave the president near-unlimited authority to use military force in Vietnam — “all necessary measures” — without a formal declaration of war, becoming the legal basis for the entire Vietnam War.

ENTRY QUESTION

What power does this resolution give the president?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After reported North Vietnamese attacks on U.S. ships (later shown to be doubtful), Congress passed this resolution almost unanimously. It handed the president a blank check for war in Vietnam — power Congress later regretted and repealed in 1971.

“A time comes when silence is betrayal... A nation that continues year after year to spend more money on military defense than on programs of social uplift is approaching spiritual death.”

KEY TERMS social uplift — programs to help the poor and improve people’s lives · spiritual death — the moral decay of a nation that abandons its own values

ANALYZE

How does King connect the war in Vietnam to injustice and priorities at home?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

King spoke out knowing it would cost him support from allies and the government. How does that personal risk shape how we weigh his words as a source?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A year before his assassination, Dr. King breaks with the government to condemn the Vietnam War — warning that a nation that spends more on war than on helping its people is “approaching spiritual death.”

ENTRY QUESTION

According to King, what is a nation “approaching” if it spends more on the military than on social programs?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In “Beyond Vietnam,” delivered at Riverside Church in 1967, Martin Luther King Jr. tied the war abroad to injustice at home. The speech cost him allies and drew heavy criticism, but it was a powerful moral challenge to the Cold War consensus.

The Silent Majority

US.68 — Analyze the domestic divisions of the Vietnam era and efforts to rebuild consensus.

“Our plan will end this war in a way that will bring us closer to that great goal to which... we are dedicated... Under the plan, I have ordered a substantial increase in the training and equipment of South Vietnamese forces... And so tonight — to you, the great silent majority of my fellow Americans — I ask for your support. Let us be united for peace. Let us also be united against defeat. Because let us understand: North Vietnam cannot defeat or humiliate the United States. Only Americans can do that... I want to end the war to save the lives of those brave young men in Vietnam. But I want to end it in a way which will increase the chance that their younger brothers and their sons will not have to fight in some future Vietnam.”

KEY TERMS the silent majority — the mass of ordinary Americans Nixon claimed quietly backed him, unlike loud antiwar protesters · Vietnamization — Nixon’s plan to withdraw U.S. troops while arming South Vietnamese forces to do the fighting

How does Nixon use the idea of a “silent majority” to build support for his war policy?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Nixon contrasts a quiet “majority” with loud protesters. How is this similar to McCarthy’s tactic (Doc 6) of dividing loyal Americans from disloyal ones?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Nixon appeals to the “great silent majority” of Americans for support of his Vietnam policy, arguing that only American disunity — not North Vietnam — can defeat the United States.

ENTRY QUESTION

Whom does Nixon address as the “great silent majority”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Facing huge antiwar protests, Nixon gave this 1969 speech to rally ordinary Americans behind “Vietnamization” — gradually withdrawing U.S. troops while arming South Vietnam. The “silent majority” became a lasting political idea.

Tear Down This Wall

US.70 — Analyze the later Cold War and the factors leading to its end.

“We welcome change and openness; for we believe that freedom and security go together, that the advance of human liberty can only strengthen the cause of world peace. There is one sign the Soviets can make that would be unmistakable, that would advance dramatically the cause of freedom and peace. General Secretary Gorbachev, if you seek peace, if you seek prosperity for the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, if you seek liberalization: Come here to this gate! Mr. Gorbachev, open this gate! Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall! ... As long as this gate is closed, as long as this scar of a wall is permitted to stand, it is not the German question alone that remains open, but the question of freedom for all mankind.”

KEY TERMS the Berlin Wall — the barrier dividing communist East Berlin from free West Berlin, 1961–1989 · Gorbachev — Mikhail Gorbachev, the reform-minded Soviet leader of the 1980s

ANALYZE

How does Reagan use the Berlin Wall itself as an argument against communism?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The wall fell two years after this speech. Why is it risky for a historian to treat Reagan’s words as the cause of that event?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Standing at the Berlin Wall, Reagan challenges Soviet leader Gorbachev to “tear down this wall” — treating the wall as proof of communism’s failure and demanding freedom for a divided Europe.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Reagan challenge Gorbachev to do?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

By 1987 the Cold War was thawing under Gorbachev’s reforms. Reagan’s dramatic challenge at the Berlin Wall became a symbol of Western confidence — and two years later, in 1989, the wall fell.

Document-Based Question

The Cold War (1945–1991)
Standards US.59 – US.70

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

The Cold War shaped American life for nearly half a century. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which the fear of communism transformed both American foreign policy and American society at home.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

the Cold War was a decades-long standoff with the Soviet Union. Using the documents, argue how much the fear of communism changed America — both what it did around the world and how people lived and thought at home.

WHY IT MATTERS

the Cold War built America's huge military, its alliances, and its national-security state — and the tension between security and freedom it created still shapes politics today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: how the Cold War reshaped policy abroad, and how it reshaped life and liberty at home.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — policy abroad and life at home, or the tension between security and liberty.

US.71

The GI Bill and the Postwar Boom

US.71 — Analyze postwar economic prosperity and the growth of the American middle class.

Source: Recollection of a World War II veteran · 1950s †

“When I came home from the war, I never dreamed I’d own a house or go to college — nobody in my family ever had. But the GI Bill changed everything. The government paid my tuition, so I became the first in my family to earn a degree, and then it backed the loan that let us buy a little house in a new development outside the city with almost nothing down. My wife and I started a family, bought our first car and our first television, and felt like we were finally part of something bigger. Millions of us did the same thing all at once, and it built a whole new middle class almost overnight. We knew we were lucky — and we knew that a Black veteran down the road, with the very same service, often could not get the same loan or into the same school.”

KEY TERMS GI Bill — the 1944 law giving veterans money for college, job training, and home loans · the middle class — the broad group of families with steady incomes, homes, and some comforts

ANALYZE

How did the GI Bill help build the postwar middle class?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker notes a Black veteran “could not get the same loan or into the same school.” How does that complicate the story of postwar prosperity as a shared national experience?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A veteran recalls how the GI Bill paid for his college and home loan, lifting his family into a new postwar middle class — while noting that Black veterans were often denied the same benefits.

ENTRY QUESTION

What three things did the GI Bill help this veteran do?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The GI Bill helped millions of returning veterans buy homes and attend college, fueling the postwar boom and the growth of the middle class — though discrimination often kept Black veterans from sharing fully in it.

US.72

Moving to the Suburbs

US.72 — Analyze suburbanization and its impact on American society, including patterns of segregation.

Source: Recollection of a Levittown-style suburban resident · 1950s †

“They built our whole town in what seemed like a weekend. Row after row of identical houses went up on what had been potato fields, and you could buy one for a few thousand dollars with a low monthly payment — cheaper than renting an apartment in the city. Everyone on our street was young, just starting families, and the children ran from yard to yard like one big family. There was a school, a shopping center, and a swimming pool, all brand new. It felt like the American Dream come true. But every family on our block looked just like us — white — because the developer would not sell to Negro families, and the contracts said so in writing. We did not think much about it then. It took me years to understand that our new paradise had a fence around it that you could not see.”

KEY TERMS suburbs — residential communities built outside cities, booming after WWII · Levittown — the famous mass-produced postwar suburb; a model for many others · covenant — a clause in a contract — here, one barring sale to Black families

ANALYZE

What does this account reveal about both the appeal and the exclusion of postwar suburbs?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker says “it took me years to understand.” How can a firsthand memory reveal something the person did not fully see at the time?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A resident recalls the rise of mass-produced suburbs — cheap, identical houses for young white families — and the racial covenants that deliberately kept Black families out.

ENTRY QUESTION

What made it possible for young families to afford these new suburban homes?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Mass-produced suburbs like Levittown let millions of white families own homes cheaply after WWII. But developers and lenders often excluded Black families outright, building segregation into the new suburban landscape.

US.72

The Interstate Highway Act

US.72 — Analyze the automobile, highway building, and their effects on where and how Americans lived.

Source: U.S. Congress, Federal-Aid Highway Act · June 29, 1956

“It is hereby declared to be essential to the national interest to provide for the early completion of the ‘National System of Interstate Highways’... Its importance to the national defense has likewise been recognized. In the event of an atomic attack on our key cities, the road net must permit quick evacuation of target areas, mobilization of defense forces, and maintenance of every essential economic function. But the loss of life and property from highway accidents, and the great cost of traffic jams, make these highways a matter of urgent domestic need as well.”

KEY TERMS Interstate Highway System — the network of high-speed national highways begun in 1956 · national defense — protection of the country — used here to help justify the highways

ANALYZE

How did the Interstate Highway Act reshape where and how Americans lived?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The law leans on “national defense” to justify the highways. How does that Cold War framing help explain why such an enormous project won support?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

This act launched the Interstate Highway System — the largest public-works project in U.S. history — justified partly as Cold War defense but transforming daily life around the automobile and the suburbs.

ENTRY QUESTION

What two kinds of purposes does the act give for building the interstate highways?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The 1956 Highway Act built over 40,000 miles of interstate highways. Sold partly as Cold War defense, it reshaped America — speeding suburban growth and car culture while hastening the decline of city centers and railroads.

US.73

Television Comes Home

US.73 — Analyze mass media, consumer culture, and conformity in 1950s America.

Source: Recollection of a 1950s household · 1950s †

“The day my father brought home our first television set, half the neighborhood crowded into our living room to watch. Within a few years almost every house on the block had one, and evenings changed completely — instead of visiting on the porch, families sat together in the blue glow, watching the same programs at the same time. We laughed at the same comedians, cheered the same ballgames, and saw the same commercials over and over until we children could sing the jingles by heart. Advertisers learned they could reach millions of us at once, and it seemed as if everyone suddenly wanted the same new refrigerators, cars, and toys. Television made the whole country feel like one big audience — but it also told us, again and again, that to be a good American family was to buy what everyone else was buying.”

KEY TERMS consumer culture — a way of life centered on buying goods · mass media — forms of communication, like TV, that reach huge audiences at once · jingle — a short, catchy song used in advertising

ANALYZE

How did television shape both American culture and consumer spending in the 1950s?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is a personal memory, not a company's advertisement. How might that everyday viewpoint reveal an effect of television that an advertiser would not admit?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A recollection of television's arrival: it drew families indoors, made the nation share the same shows and ads, and taught a generation that being a good American family meant buying what everyone else bought.

ENTRY QUESTION

How did television change the way families spent their evenings?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In the 1950s television spread into nearly every home, creating a shared national culture — and a powerful new tool for advertisers, who used it to fuel the decade's booming consumer spending.

DOCUMENT 5US.76

The Feminine Mystique

US.76 — Analyze changing roles and expectations for women in postwar America.

Source: Betty Friedan, The Feminine Mystique · 1963

"The problem lay buried, unspoken, for many years in the minds of American women. Each suburban wife struggled with it alone... as she made the beds, shopped for groceries... she was afraid to ask even of herself the silent question — 'Is this all?'"

KEY TERMS the feminine mystique — the postwar idea that women should find total fulfillment as housewives and mothers · "the problem that has no name" — the quiet unhappiness Friedan found among suburban housewives

What discontent beneath 1950s prosperity does Friedan expose?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Friedan wrote mainly about educated, middle-class white housewives. How might that focus limit whose experience her book represents?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Friedan names "the problem that has no name" — the quiet dissatisfaction of educated suburban housewives expected to find total fulfillment in home and family — helping spark a new women's movement.

ENTRY QUESTION

What is the "silent question" Friedan says suburban wives were afraid to ask?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Betty Friedan's 1963 bestseller gave voice to the frustration of many middle-class women confined to the role of housewife. It helped launch the modern women's rights movement of the 1960s and 1970s.

The Other America

US.71 — Analyze the persistence of poverty amid postwar prosperity.

Source: Michael Harrington, The Other America · 1962

"There is a familiar America. It is celebrated in speeches and advertised on television... But there is another America. In it live between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 citizens... The other America, the America of poverty, is hidden today in a way that it never was before."

KEY TERMS the other America — Harrington's name for the tens of millions of poor hidden within a prosperous nation · poverty — the state of lacking enough money for basic needs

ANALYZE

How does Harrington challenge the image of the 1950s and early 1960s as universally prosperous?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Harrington says this poverty was "hidden." Why might poverty have been easier to ignore in an age of suburbs, highways, and television?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Harrington exposes “the other America” — 40 to 50 million poor people hidden beneath the decade’s prosperity — a book that helped inspire the later War on Poverty.

ENTRY QUESTION

Roughly how many Americans does Harrington say live in “the other America” of poverty?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Amid postwar abundance, Michael Harrington’s 1962 book revealed that tens of millions of Americans — in Appalachia, inner cities, and rural areas — lived in poverty. It shocked readers and influenced Kennedy’s and Johnson’s antipoverty efforts.

DOCUMENT 7

Brown v. Board of Education

US.75 — Analyze the early civil rights movement and the legal end of school segregation.

Source: Supreme Court of the United States · May 17, 1954 (347 U.S. 483) †

“We come then to the question presented: Does segregation of children in public schools solely on the basis of race, even though the physical facilities and other ‘tangible’ factors may be equal, deprive the children of the minority group of equal educational opportunities? We believe that it does... To separate them from others of similar age and qualifications solely because of their race generates a feeling of inferiority as to their status in the community that may affect their hearts and minds in a way unlikely ever to be undone... We conclude that in the field of public education the doctrine of ‘separate but equal’ has no place. Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal.”

KEY TERMS Brown v. Board — the 1954 case that outlawed segregation in public schools · “separate but equal” — the doctrine (from Plessy v. Ferguson, 1896) that segregation was legal if facilities were equal · inherently — by its very nature

ANALYZE

On what grounds does the Court rule that segregated schools are unconstitutional?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The Court says segregation harms children’s “hearts and minds.” How does resting the ruling on psychological harm, not just unequal buildings, strengthen it?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A unanimous Supreme Court rules that segregated public schools are “inherently unequal,” overturning “separate but equal” and igniting the modern civil rights movement.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the Court conclude about “separate but equal” in public education?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In Brown v. Board of Education (1954), the Supreme Court unanimously struck down school segregation. The ruling was a landmark civil rights victory — but Southern resistance meant real desegregation would take years of struggle.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: “_____.”

US.75

The Montgomery Bus Boycott

US.75 — Analyze nonviolent protest and grassroots organizing in the early civil rights movement.

Source: Recollection of a Montgomery Bus Boycott participant · 1955–1956 †

“When they arrested Mrs. Parks for keeping her seat, something in us that had been bent for a long time finally straightened up. We decided we would not ride the buses until they treated us like human beings. For more than a year we walked — to work, to church, to the store — in the heat and the rain. Some of us walked miles every day, and our feet were tired but our souls were rested. White folks offered no mercy: they threatened us, arrested our leaders, and bombed the young preacher’s house. But we did not lift a hand against them; we just kept walking and praying. When the Supreme Court finally said the buses could not segregate us, we knew that ordinary people, standing together without violence, could move a mountain. That walk changed us forever.”

KEY TERMS the Montgomery Bus Boycott — the 1955–56 protest against segregated buses in Montgomery, Alabama · Rosa Parks — the woman whose 1955 arrest sparked the boycott · nonviolence — refusing to use violence even when attacked, as a form of protest

What does this account reveal about the methods and spirit of the Montgomery Bus Boycott?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker says “our feet were tired but our souls were rested.” How does that firsthand voice capture something a court ruling cannot?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A participant recalls the year-long Montgomery Bus Boycott — walking for miles rather than riding segregated buses — and the discovery that ordinary people, acting nonviolently together, could win change.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the people of Montgomery refuse to do, and for how long?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After Rosa Parks was arrested in 1955, Montgomery’s Black community boycotted the city buses for over a year, led by a young Martin Luther King Jr. Their nonviolent victory in 1956 helped launch the modern civil rights movement.

DOCUMENT 9US.75

The Crisis at Little Rock

US.75 — Analyze the conflict between federal authority and state resistance to desegregation.

Source: President Dwight D. Eisenhower, address to the nation · September 24, 1957 †

“In that city, under the leadership of demagogic extremists, disorderly mobs have deliberately prevented the carrying out of proper orders from a Federal Court... Mob rule cannot be allowed to override the decisions of our courts. This morning the mob again gathered in front of the Central High School of Little Rock, obviously for the purpose of again preventing the carrying out of the court’s order... Whenever normal agencies prove inadequate to the task, and it becomes necessary for the Executive Branch of the Federal Government to use its powers to enforce the orders of a Federal Court, the President’s responsibility is inescapable... I have today issued an Executive Order directing the use of troops under Federal authority to aid in the execution of Federal law at Little Rock.”

KEY TERMS Little Rock — the Arkansas city where nine Black students integrated Central High in 1957 · mob rule — control by a violent, lawless crowd · Executive Order — a directive issued by the president with the force of law

How does Eisenhower justify using federal troops against a state’s resistance to integration?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Eisenhower stresses “mob rule” and court orders more than the rights of the students themselves. What might that emphasis reveal about how he chose to justify acting?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

President Eisenhower orders federal troops to Little Rock to protect nine Black students integrating Central High, declaring that “mob rule cannot be allowed to override the decisions of our courts.”

ENTRY QUESTION

Why does Eisenhower say he is sending federal troops to Little Rock?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

When Arkansas’s governor used the National Guard to block nine Black students from Central High in 1957, Eisenhower sent U.S. Army troops to enforce the Brown ruling — a dramatic clash between federal and state power.

US.74

We Choose to Go to the Moon

US.74 — Analyze the space race and the role of science and technology in Cold War America.

Source: President John F. Kennedy, Rice University, Houston · September 12, 1962 †

“We choose to go to the moon. We choose to go to the moon in this decade and do the other things, not because they are easy, but because they are hard; because that goal will serve to organize and measure the best of our energies and skills, because that challenge is one that we are willing to accept, one we are unwilling to postpone, and one we intend to win... We set sail on this new sea because there is new knowledge to be gained, and new rights to be won, and they must be won and used for the progress of all people... The eyes of the world now look into space, to the moon and to the planets beyond, and we have vowed that we shall not see it governed by a hostile flag of conquest, but by a banner of freedom and peace.”

KEY TERMS the space race — the Cold War competition between the U.S. and USSR to lead in space · New Frontier — Kennedy’s vision of bold national goals, including space exploration

ANALYZE

How does Kennedy use the goal of reaching the Moon to inspire the nation?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Kennedy says the U.S. must lead in space so it is not “governed by a hostile flag.” How does the Cold War shape even this hopeful vision of exploration?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Kennedy commits the nation to landing on the Moon “in this decade” — casting the space race as a Cold War contest and a test of American energy, ambition, and freedom.

ENTRY QUESTION

What goal does Kennedy set for the nation “in this decade”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Stung by Soviet space successes like Sputnik, Kennedy challenged America to reach the Moon by 1970. The space race became a proud symbol of the era’s optimism, technology, and Cold War rivalry.

The Kennedy Inaugural

US.77 — Analyze the Kennedy era and the ideals of the New Frontier.

Source: President John F. Kennedy, Inaugural Address · January 20, 1961 †

“Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans — born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace... Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe, to assure the survival and the success of liberty... And so, my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country. My fellow citizens of the world: ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.”

KEY TERMS inaugural address — the speech a president gives when taking office · “a new generation” — the younger Americans Kennedy said were now taking the lead

ANALYZE

How does Kennedy try to inspire a spirit of service and sacrifice in Americans?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Kennedy promises to “pay any price, bear any burden” for liberty. How might that Cold War pledge later help draw the U.S. deeper into conflicts like Vietnam?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In his 1961 inaugural, Kennedy declares that a “new generation” now leads America, pledges to “pay any price” to defend liberty, and calls citizens to service: “ask not what your country can do for you.”

ENTRY QUESTION

What famous request does Kennedy make of his fellow Americans?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The youngest elected president, Kennedy inspired a generation with his call to public service and sacrifice. His inaugural captured the optimism and Cold War resolve of the New Frontier.

Rock 'n' Roll and the Youth Culture

US.73 — Analyze the rise of a distinct youth culture and challenges to 1950s conformity.

Source: Recollection of a 1950s teenager · 1950s †

“Our parents hated the music, and that was half the fun of it. When rock 'n' roll came on the radio we turned it up loud — Elvis and Chuck Berry and Little Richard — and danced in the living room until somebody told us to stop. The grown-ups said it was noise, that it would ruin us, that it came from the wrong side of town. What they really could not stand was that white kids and Black kids were listening to the same songs and dancing the same way, when everything else in our world was still kept separate. For the first time we had money of our own to spend on records and clothes, and a whole world of movies, magazines, and music aimed straight at us. We were teenagers — a new kind of American — and we were not going to be just smaller copies of our parents.”

KEY TERMS rock 'n' roll — the new, rebellious music of the 1950s, drawing heavily on Black rhythm and blues · teenager — a distinct youth identity that emerged with postwar spending money and culture

ANALYZE

How did 1950s youth culture challenge the conformity and rules of the adult world?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker says adults could not stand that “white kids and Black kids were listening to the same songs.” How could popular music quietly cross lines that laws still enforced?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A recollection of 1950s youth culture: rock 'n' roll, teen spending, and a new generation that alarmed parents — partly because it crossed the racial lines the rest of society still enforced.

ENTRY QUESTION

Why did the older generation dislike rock 'n' roll, according to the speaker?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Postwar prosperity gave teenagers money and a culture of their own — rock 'n' roll, movies, and fashion. The new youth culture worried adults and quietly challenged the era's conformity and racial barriers.

Silent Spring

US.74 — Analyze early awareness of environmental costs of postwar growth and technology.

Source: Rachel Carson, Silent Spring · 1962

“There was once a town in the heart of America where all life seemed to live in harmony with its surroundings... Then a strange blight crept over the area and everything began to change... It was a spring without voices. On the mornings that had once throbbed with the dawn chorus... now there was no sound; only silence lay over the fields and woods and marsh.”

KEY TERMS Silent Spring — Rachel Carson's 1962 book warning about the dangers of pesticides like DDT · blight — something that ruins or spoils, especially in nature · ecology — the study of how living things relate to their environment

How does Carson use the image of a “silent spring” to warn Americans about pollution?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Carson begins with an imagined “fable” rather than data. Why might a vivid story reach readers in a way that scientific statistics might not?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Carson opens with a fable of a town where pesticides have silenced the birds — a warning about DDT and pollution that helped launch the modern environmental movement.

ENTRY QUESTION

What has fallen silent in the town Carson describes?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Rachel Carson's 1962 Silent Spring warned that pesticides like DDT were poisoning wildlife and people. It sparked public alarm, new environmental laws, and the modern environmental movement.

A Moral Issue

US.77 — Analyze federal leadership on civil rights at the close of the Kennedy era.

Source: President John F. Kennedy, Report to the American People on Civil Rights · June 11, 1963 †

“We are confronted primarily with a moral issue. It is as old as the Scriptures and is as clear as the American Constitution. The heart of the question is whether all Americans are to be afforded equal rights and equal opportunities, whether we are going to treat our fellow Americans as we want to be treated... One hundred years of delay have passed since President Lincoln freed the slaves, yet their heirs, their grandsons, are not fully free. They are not yet freed from the bonds of injustice... This Nation, for all its hopes and all its boasts, will not be fully free until all its citizens are free... Next week I shall ask the Congress of the United States to act, to make a commitment it has not fully made in this century to the proposition that race has no place in American life or law.”

KEY TERMS civil rights — the rights of citizens to political and social freedom and equality · “a moral issue” — Kennedy’s framing of civil rights as a matter of right and wrong, not just law

ANALYZE

How does Kennedy frame civil rights as a moral, not just legal, question?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Kennedy points to “one hundred years of delay” since Lincoln. How does linking civil rights to emancipation strengthen his call to act?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In June 1963 Kennedy tells the nation that civil rights is “primarily a moral issue,” argues that Black Americans are still not free a century after emancipation, and pledges to send Congress a major civil rights bill.

ENTRY QUESTION

What kind of “issue” does Kennedy say civil rights primarily is?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After the crisis in Birmingham and clashes over integration, Kennedy gave this landmark address calling civil rights a moral issue and proposing the bill that — after his assassination — became the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Document-Based Question

A Nation in Transition (1950s–1963)
Standards US.71 – US.77

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

The years from the 1950s to the early 1960s are often remembered as an age of prosperity and consensus. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which postwar American life lived up to its image of prosperity and unity.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

the 1950s and early 1960s looked like a golden age of prosperity and unity. Using the documents, argue how true that image really was — and for whom.

WHY IT MATTERS

the debates over suburbs, consumerism, women's roles, and civil rights that began in these years still shape American life today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: the era's real prosperity, and those left out of or dissatisfied with it.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — prosperity and its limits — or the tension between the era's image and its realities.

The Greensboro Sit-Ins

US.78 — Analyze the strategies of nonviolent direct action in the civil rights movement.

Source: Recollection of a Greensboro sit-in participant · 1960 †

“We were four college freshmen, and we were tired of waiting. On the first of February, 1960, we sat down at the whites-only lunch counter at the Woolworth’s in Greensboro and politely asked to be served. They refused, but we did not move — we opened our textbooks and studied while people cursed us, poured ketchup on our heads, and threatened to beat us. We had trained ourselves not to strike back, no matter what they did. The next day we came back with more students, and the day after that with still more, until the counter was full and the news had spread across the country. Within weeks, students were sitting in all across the South. We had discovered that four teenagers with nothing but our dignity could shake a whole system, and that a quiet refusal to move could be louder than any shout.”

KEY TERMS sit-in — a protest in which people occupy a segregated space and refuse to leave · nonviolence — refusing to use violence even when attacked, as a form of protest · desegregation — ending the forced separation of people by race

How did the sit-in use nonviolence to challenge segregation?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The students “trained themselves not to strike back.” Why was that discipline central to the power of nonviolent protest?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Four Black college students launch the 1960 Greensboro sit-in, refusing to leave a whites-only lunch counter — sparking a wave of student sit-ins across the South.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the four students do at the Woolworth’s lunch counter?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In 1960 four students in Greensboro, North Carolina, began a sit-in that spread rapidly, drawing thousands of young people into the movement and leading to the founding of SNCC. Sit-ins desegregated lunch counters across the South.

US.78

The Freedom Rides

US.78 — Analyze direct-action campaigns and their use of national attention to force change.

Source: Recollection of a Freedom Rider · 1961 †

“We boarded the buses knowing we might not come back. Black and white riders together, we rode south to test whether the law that banned segregation on interstate buses meant anything at all. In Alabama a mob was waiting. They firebombed one of our buses and held the doors shut to burn us alive; they beat the riders who escaped with pipes and bats while the police were nowhere to be found. We were terrified, but we would not stop, and when some of us were too injured to go on, new riders took our places. We wanted the whole nation to see, on television, what segregation really was — not a gentle Southern custom but organized violence against citizens exercising their rights. In the end the federal government was forced to act, and the buses and stations were desegregated.”

KEY TERMS Freedom Rides — 1961 bus trips through the South to challenge segregation in interstate travel · interstate travel — travel across state lines, which the federal government regulates · CORE — the Congress of Racial Equality, which organized the rides

How did the Freedom Riders use the nation’s attention to force federal action?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The riders wanted the violence shown “on television.” How did media coverage become a weapon of the movement?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Interracial “Freedom Riders” ride buses into the segregated South in 1961, enduring mob violence to force the federal government to enforce the desegregation of interstate travel.

ENTRY QUESTION

What were the Freedom Riders trying to test or prove?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In 1961 Freedom Riders challenged segregation on interstate buses. Brutal attacks in Alabama, broadcast on television, shocked the nation and pressured the Kennedy administration to enforce desegregation.

US.79

Letter from Birmingham Jail

US.79 — Analyze the philosophy of nonviolent direct action and the response to its critics.

Source: Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Birmingham, Alabama · April 16, 1963

“Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere... For years now I have heard the word ‘Wait!’ ... This ‘Wait’ has almost always meant ‘Never.’ We have waited for more than three hundred and forty years for our constitutional and God-given rights.”

KEY TERMS “Letter from Birmingham Jail” — King’s 1963 open letter defending nonviolent direct action · direct action — deliberate, public protest meant to force change · “Wait” — the call for patience King argues has always meant “never”

ANALYZE

How does King defend the movement’s refusal to wait any longer for equality?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

King wrote this from a jail cell to fellow clergy who had urged patience. How does knowing that audience shape the letter’s argument?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Jailed for protesting in Birmingham, King answers critics who urged patience, arguing that “injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere” and that Black Americans have already waited far too long.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does King say the word “Wait” has almost always meant?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Arrested during the 1963 Birmingham campaign, King wrote this open letter defending nonviolent direct action against white moderates who called his protests “untimely.” It became a foundational text of the movement.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence:

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

At the 1963 March on Washington, King shares his dream of a nation where his children are judged “by the content of their character,” giving the movement its most enduring vision.

ENTRY QUESTION

In King’s dream, how does he hope his children will one day be judged?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Before some 250,000 people at the March on Washington in 1963, King delivered the most famous speech of the civil rights era, helping build the national support that led to the Civil Rights Act.

The Civil Rights Act of 1964

US.80 — Analyze landmark federal civil rights legislation and its effects.

ANALYZE

How did the Civil Rights Act of 1964 change the law on segregation and discrimination?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This law was won only after years of protest, violence, and a president’s assassination. How does that context help explain why it reached so far?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Civil Rights Act of 1964 outlawed segregation in public places and banned discrimination in employment by race, religion, sex, or national origin — the movement’s greatest legislative victory.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the Civil Rights Act say about “public accommodations”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Proposed by Kennedy and signed by Lyndon Johnson after the largest protests in the nation’s history, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was the most sweeping civil rights law since Reconstruction, ending legal segregation in public life.

US.79

The Ballot or the Bullet

US.79 — Analyze competing strategies within the movement, including Black nationalism and self-defense.

Source: Malcolm X, Cleveland, Ohio · April 3, 1964

“It’ll be the ballot, or it’ll be the bullet. It’ll be liberty, or it will be death... I don’t believe in any form of segregation or any form of racism. But I’m nonviolent with those who are nonviolent with me. When you drop that violence on me, then you’ve made me go insane, and I’m not responsible for what I do.”

KEY TERMS “the ballot or the bullet” — Malcolm X’s warning: win rights through the vote, or face violence · self-defense — the right to protect oneself, which Malcolm X urged instead of strict nonviolence · Black nationalism — the belief that Black people should build their own power and institutions

ANALYZE

How does Malcolm X’s approach differ from King’s nonviolence (Docs 3–4)?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

ENTRY QUESTION

What two choices does Malcolm X say Black Americans face?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

A powerful voice of Black nationalism, Malcolm X rejected nonviolence and integration as the only path. His call for self-defense and Black self-reliance influenced the later Black Power movement.

US.80

We Shall Overcome

US.80 — Analyze federal leadership on voting rights at the height of the movement.

Source: President Lyndon B. Johnson, address to Congress · March 15, 1965 †

“At times history and fate meet at a single time in a single place to shape a turning point in man’s unending search for freedom. So it was at Lexington and Concord. So it was a century ago at Appomattox. So it was last week in Selma, Alabama... There is no Negro problem. There is no Southern problem. There is no Northern problem. There is only an American problem... Their cause must be our cause too. Because it is not just Negroes, but really it is all of us, who must overcome the crippling legacy of bigotry and injustice. And we shall overcome.”

KEY TERMS “We Shall Overcome” — the anthem of the civil rights movement, quoted here by the president · Selma — the Alabama city where marchers were beaten while demanding voting rights

ANALYZE

How does Johnson frame voting rights as an American cause, not just a Black cause?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

A Southern president embracing “we shall overcome” was stunning. How does his point of view give the speech special weight?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Days after “Bloody Sunday” in Selma, President Johnson calls voting rights “an American problem,” embraces the movement’s own anthem — “we shall overcome” — and demands a voting rights law.

ENTRY QUESTION

What movement anthem does President Johnson quote at the end of the passage?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After marchers were beaten in Selma in 1965, LBJ went before Congress to demand a voting rights act. His speech, borrowing the movement’s anthem, marked the federal government fully embracing the cause.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

US.80

The Voting Rights Act of 1965

US.80 — Analyze federal protection of voting rights and its impact on Southern politics.

Source: U.S. Congress · August 6, 1965

“No voting qualification or prerequisite to voting, or standard, practice, or procedure shall be imposed or applied by any State or political subdivision to deny or abridge the right of any citizen of the United States to vote on account of race or color... Whenever any State or political subdivision has... used a test or device to deny the right to vote, the Attorney General is authorized to appoint examiners to register qualified voters.”

KEY TERMS Voting Rights Act of 1965 — the law that banned racial barriers to voting · literacy test — an unfair exam once used to keep Black citizens from voting · federal examiner — an official sent to register voters where states had blocked them

ANALYZE

How did the Voting Rights Act of 1965 change who could vote in the South?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This law let the federal government directly register voters. Why was such strong federal action needed to secure a right that already existed on paper?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 outlawed the literacy tests and other devices used to deny Black Americans the vote, and sent federal examiners to register voters — transforming Southern politics.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the Voting Rights Act forbid states from doing?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Voting Rights Act struck down the barriers that had kept most Southern Black citizens from voting since Reconstruction. Black voter registration soared, and Black officials were soon elected across the South.

RESPONSE FRAME (CLAIM-EVIDENCE-REASONING)

The source shows that _____ because _____. Evidence: “_____.”

US.80

Bloody Sunday at Selma

US.80 — Analyze the Selma voting-rights campaign and the role of televised protest.

Source: Recollection of a Selma voting-rights marcher · 1965 †

“We set out to walk from Selma to the state capitol in Montgomery to demand the right to vote. We were peaceful; we carried nothing but our shoes and our courage. At the top of the Edmund Pettus Bridge we saw them waiting — state troopers in gas masks, and men on horseback with clubs. When we would not turn back, they charged. They beat us to the ground and swung their clubs at our heads, and the tear gas was so thick we could not breathe. They called it Bloody Sunday. But the whole country saw it that night on television — saw peaceful people praying while lawmen clubbed them — and something in America turned. Within days, ministers and students of every color came from all over the nation to march with us, and within months we had the Voting Rights Act.”

KEY TERMS Selma — the Alabama city at the center of the 1965 voting-rights campaign · Bloody Sunday — March 7, 1965, when marchers were beaten at the Edmund Pettus Bridge · Edmund Pettus Bridge — the Selma bridge where the attack took place

ANALYZE

How did the events at Selma help bring about the Voting Rights Act?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The marcher says “the whole country saw it that night on television.” How did televised violence turn a local march into national change?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A marcher recalls “Bloody Sunday” at Selma’s Edmund Pettus Bridge, where peaceful voting-rights marchers were beaten on national television — an outrage that helped win the Voting Rights Act.

ENTRY QUESTION

What were the marchers in Selma demanding?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In March 1965, voting-rights marchers in Selma were brutally attacked at the Edmund Pettus Bridge. Televised images of the violence shocked the nation and pushed Congress to pass the Voting Rights Act.

Black Power

US.81 — Analyze the rise of Black Power and frustration with the pace of change.

Source: Stokely Carmichael, Greenwood, Mississippi · June 1966

“We been saying ‘freedom’ for six years and we ain’t got nothin’. What we gonna start saying now is ‘Black Power!’ ... Everybody in this country is for ‘freedom now,’ but we can’t get it. The way we gonna get it is by getting some power of our own — political power, economic power, and a power that we control ourselves.”

KEY TERMS Black Power — a movement urging Black pride, self-reliance, and political and economic power · SNCC — the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, which turned toward Black Power

ANALYZE

What frustration with the nonviolent movement does the call for “Black Power” express?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

“Black Power” inspired many younger activists but alarmed many white Americans and some older leaders. Why might the same slogan do both?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Stokely Carmichael popularizes the cry of “Black Power” — voicing younger activists’ frustration with slow progress and turning from nonviolent integration toward Black pride and self-reliance.

ENTRY QUESTION

What new slogan does Carmichael say Black Americans should start using?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

By 1966, some younger activists, worn down by beatings and slow change, embraced “Black Power” — emphasizing Black pride, self-defense, and political and economic control rather than integration and nonviolence.

The Kerner Report

US.81 — Analyze urban unrest and the federal diagnosis of its causes.

Source: National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders (Kerner Commission) · 1968 †

“The nation is rapidly moving toward two increasingly separate Americas... Our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white — separate and unequal... What white Americans have never fully understood — but what the Negro can never forget — is that white society is deeply implicated in the ghetto. White institutions created it, white institutions maintain it, and white society condones it... Segregation and poverty have created in the racial ghetto a destructive environment totally unknown to most white Americans.”

KEY TERMS the Kerner Commission — the 1968 federal panel that studied the causes of urban riots · “two societies” — the report’s warning of a nation split into separate Black and white worlds · ghetto — a poor, segregated urban neighborhood

How does the Kerner Commission explain the causes of urban unrest?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This was an official government report, not a protest speech. How does that source make its blunt conclusion about white racism especially striking?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A federal commission warns that America is splitting into “two societies, one black, one white — separate and unequal,” and blames white racism and neglect for the poverty and unrest in Black urban neighborhoods.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does the Kerner Commission say the nation is moving toward?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After riots erupted in dozens of cities in the mid-1960s, President Johnson’s Kerner Commission concluded that white racism, poverty, and lack of opportunity — not outside agitators — were the root causes, and warned of a dangerously divided nation.

La Causa: The Farmworkers

US.82 — Analyze how the civil rights movement inspired other struggles for equality.

Source: Recollection of a United Farm Workers member · 1960s †

“We were farmworkers, and for as long as anyone could remember we had been treated as less than human — stooped over in the fields from dawn to dark for pennies, with no toilets, no cold water, no rest. When César Chávez and Dolores Huerta came, they did not bring guns; they brought the union, the boycott, and the fast. We went on strike against the grape growers, and we asked all of America to stop buying grapes until we were treated fairly. Millions of people answered — they left the grapes on the shelf out of respect for us. We marched under the banner of the Virgin and the flag of the eagle, and we learned the same lesson the movement in the South had learned: that ordinary poor people, standing together without violence, could win against the powerful. We called it La Causa — the cause.”

KEY TERMS La Causa — “the cause” — the farmworkers’ movement for fair treatment · César Chávez & Dolores Huerta — the leaders who organized the United Farm Workers · boycott — refusing to buy a product to force change — here, grapes

How did the farmworkers’ movement borrow from the civil rights movement?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The civil rights movement inspired Mexican Americans, women, and others. How does this account show the movement’s influence spreading beyond its original cause?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A farmworker recalls the United Farm Workers' movement — Chávez and Huerta's nonviolent strike and grape boycott — which won dignity and better conditions for Mexican American laborers.

ENTRY QUESTION

What nonviolent methods did the farmworkers use to demand fair treatment?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In the 1960s, inspired by the civil rights movement, César Chávez and Dolores Huerta organized Mexican American farmworkers into the United Farm Workers, using nonviolent strikes and a national grape boycott to win better wages and conditions.

The Women's Movement

US.82 — Analyze the modern women's rights movement and its ties to the civil rights era.

Source: National Organization for Women, Statement of Purpose · 1966

“The purpose of NOW is to take action to bring women into full participation in the mainstream of American society now, exercising all the privileges and responsibilities thereof in truly equal partnership with men... We believe that the time has come to confront, with concrete action, the conditions that now prevent women from enjoying the equality of opportunity and freedom of choice which is their right.”

KEY TERMS NOW — the National Organization for Women, founded in 1966 · equal partnership — women sharing fully and equally with men in society · the women's movement — the 1960s–70s movement for women's rights and equality

How does NOW's statement echo the goals of the civil rights movement?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

NOW borrowed language and tactics from the Black freedom struggle. What does that reveal about how one movement can inspire others?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The founders of NOW demand that women take their place as “equal partners” with men in every part of American life — launching the modern women's rights movement alongside the fight for racial equality.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does NOW say its purpose is?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Inspired partly by the civil rights movement, women organized NOW in 1966 to fight discrimination in jobs, pay, and law. The women's movement became one of the era's most far-reaching struggles for equality.

KEY TERMS “the Promised Land” — King's image of a future of freedom and equality · the Memphis strike — the sanitation workers' strike King came to support

ANALYZE

How does King express both hope and a sense of his own danger in this final speech?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

King gave this speech supporting striking workers, the night before his death. How does that context deepen its meaning?

What does King say he has seen from “the mountaintop”?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

King was in Memphis supporting striking Black sanitation workers — linking civil rights to economic justice — when he gave this final speech. He was assassinated the next day, April 4, 1968, but the movement endured.

Document-Based Question

The Civil Rights Movement (1950s–1960s)
Standards US.78 – US.82

Name: _____

Class/Period: _____

Date: _____

THE QUESTION

The civil rights movement used many strategies to pursue racial equality. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which nonviolent protest was the primary force behind the civil rights gains of the 1950s and 1960s.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

the civil rights movement fought for equality in many ways. Using the documents, argue how much of the movement's success came from nonviolent protest — versus federal laws or more militant strategies.

WHY IT MATTERS

the civil rights movement reshaped American law and inspired later struggles for equality — and the debates over how change happens still echo today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: nonviolent protest, federal action, and more militant or frustrated voices.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — nonviolence, federal power, and militancy — or the tension among them.

The Great Society

US.83 — Analyze the Great Society and the expansion of the federal government's role in the 1960s.

Source: President Lyndon B. Johnson, University of Michigan · May 22, 1964 †

“For a century we labored to settle and to subdue a continent. For half a century we called upon unbounded invention and untiring industry to create an order of plenty for all of our people. The challenge of the next half century is whether we have the wisdom to use that wealth to enrich and elevate our national life... The Great Society rests on abundance and liberty for all. It demands an end to poverty and racial injustice, to which we are totally committed in our time. But that is just the beginning. The Great Society is a place where every child can find knowledge to enrich his mind and to enlarge his talents... It is a place where the city of man serves not only the needs of the body and the demands of commerce but the desire for beauty and the hunger for community.”

KEY TERMS the Great Society — LBJ’s program of federal efforts against poverty, disease, and injustice · the War on Poverty — the Great Society’s push to reduce poverty through federal programs

ANALYZE

What vision of government’s role does Johnson offer in the Great Society?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Johnson assumes government can and should solve poverty and injustice. How does that confidence contrast with later views of government (Doc 7)?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

President Johnson calls on a wealthy America to build a “Great Society” — using federal power to end poverty and racial injustice and to enrich the nation’s quality of life — the high point of postwar liberalism.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Johnson say the “Great Society” demands an end to?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In 1964–65, LBJ launched the Great Society: Medicare, Medicaid, the War on Poverty, aid to education, and civil rights laws. It marked the peak of confidence that active government could solve national problems.

US.84

A Soldier Returns from Vietnam

US.84 — Analyze the impact of the Vietnam War on American society and trust in government.

Source: Recollection of a Vietnam veteran · c. 1969 †

“I came home from Vietnam in 1969, and there was no parade. At the airport, people looked away, or worse — some called us names for a war we hadn’t chosen and couldn’t win. Over there we had watched friends die in a jungle for villages we took and lost and took again, while the politicians on television promised we were winning. We stopped believing them. When I got home I saw the country tearing itself apart over the war — protests, the draft, families that wouldn’t speak to each other. The government had told us this was necessary, that it was containing communism, and a lot of us had believed it. After Vietnam, I never fully trusted a leader who told me a war would be quick and easy again. Something broke between the American people and their government in those years, and it never fully healed.”

KEY TERMS Vietnam War — the long, divisive war (1955–1975) the U.S. fought to stop communism in Vietnam · the draft — required military service, which fell heavily on the poor and working class · credibility gap — the growing gap between the government’s claims and the reality of the war

How did the Vietnam War damage Americans’ trust in their government?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

This is one veteran’s memory. How might his personal experience shape — and possibly limit — how he views the war and the government?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A Vietnam veteran recalls returning to a divided, unwelcoming nation — and how the war’s false promises broke many Americans’ trust in their government for good.

ENTRY QUESTION

How were returning Vietnam veterans treated, according to this account?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Vietnam War divided America and ended in a costly defeat. Its false official optimism opened a lasting “credibility gap,” and returning veterans often met indifference or hostility — deepening the era’s disillusionment.

Nixon Goes to China

US.84 — Analyze shifts in U.S. foreign policy, including détente and the opening to China.

Source: President Richard M. Nixon, Beijing, China · February 1972 †

“What we have said here in the Great Hall of the People will not be long remembered, but what we do here can change the world. There is no reason for us to be enemies. Neither of us seeks the territory of the other; neither of us seeks to dominate the other... We have at times in the past been enemies. We have great differences today. What brings us together is that we have common interests which transcend those differences... So, let us start a long march together, not in lockstep, but on different roads leading to the same goal, the goal of building a world structure of peace and justice in which all may stand together with equal dignity.”

KEY TERMS détente — the easing of Cold War tensions in the 1970s · Nixon’s trip to China — the 1972 visit that reopened U.S.–China relations after decades of hostility

ANALYZE

How does Nixon justify reaching out to a communist rival?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Nixon built his career attacking communism, yet he opened relations with communist China. How can a leader’s reputation make a surprising policy easier to accept?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

On his historic 1972 trip to China, President Nixon reopens relations with a communist power the U.S. had shunned for decades — a dramatic act of Cold War diplomacy that could “change the world.”

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Nixon say brings the two nations together despite their differences?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

In 1972 Nixon, a longtime anti-communist, stunned the world by visiting communist China, reopening relations and playing China against the Soviet Union. It was the era’s boldest stroke of “détente” — easing Cold War tensions.

Watergate: Nixon Resigns

US.85 — Analyze the Watergate scandal and its effect on public trust in government.

Source: President Richard M. Nixon, resignation address · August 8, 1974 †

“Good evening. This is the 37th time I have spoken to you from this office... Throughout the long and difficult period of Watergate, I have felt it was my duty to persevere... In the past few days, however, it has become evident to me that I no longer have a strong enough political base in the Congress... Therefore, I shall resign the Presidency effective at noon tomorrow... I have never been a quitter. To leave office before my term is completed is abhorrent to every instinct in my body. But as President, I must put the interests of America first... By taking this action, I hope that I will have hastened the start of that process of healing which is so badly needed in America.”

KEY TERMS Watergate — the scandal over a break-in and cover-up that forced Nixon to resign in 1974 · resign — to formally give up an office · abuse of power — using government authority illegally or improperly

ANALYZE

How does Nixon explain his resignation — and what does he avoid saying?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Nixon speaks of “healing” but never fully admits wrongdoing. How might that shape the way Americans remembered Watergate and their trust in government?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Facing near-certain impeachment over the Watergate scandal, Nixon becomes the only U.S. president to resign — a stunning fall that deepened Americans’ distrust of their government.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Nixon announce he will do in this speech?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Watergate scandal — a break-in and cover-up directed from the White House — forced Nixon to resign in 1974. Coming right after Vietnam, it deepened a lasting crisis of trust in government and its leaders.

A Crisis of Confidence

US.85 — Analyze the economic and social challenges of the 1970s, including stagflation and the energy crisis.

Source: President Jimmy Carter, address to the nation · July 15, 1979 †

“I want to talk to you right now about a fundamental threat to American democracy... The threat is nearly invisible in ordinary ways. It is a crisis of confidence. It is a crisis that strikes at the very heart and soul and spirit of our national will. We can see this crisis in the growing doubt about the meaning of our own lives and in the loss of a unity of purpose for our Nation... In a nation that was proud of hard work, strong families, close-knit communities, and our faith in God, too many of us now tend to worship self-indulgence and consumption... We’ve learned that piling up material goods cannot fill the emptiness of lives which have no confidence or purpose.”

KEY TERMS “crisis of confidence” — Carter’s name for Americans’ loss of faith in the future and their institutions · stagflation — the 1970s mix of high inflation, unemployment, and slow growth · energy crisis — the 1970s shortages and soaring prices of oil and gasoline

How does Carter describe the mood of the nation in the late 1970s?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Carter told Americans the crisis was partly in their own spirit. Why might a president blaming the national mood have been politically risky?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

Amid economic troubles and disillusion, President Carter warns of a “crisis of confidence” — a loss of faith in the future and in institutions — striking at the nation’s spirit.

ENTRY QUESTION

What “crisis” does Carter say threatens American democracy?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

By 1979, oil shortages, inflation, and the shadow of Vietnam and Watergate had shaken the nation. Carter’s “malaise” speech named a real mood but was widely criticized as blaming the people — and helped open the way for Reagan.

The First Earth Day

US.86 — Analyze the rise of the modern environmental movement and federal responses to it.

Source: Recollection of a first Earth Day participant · April 22, 1970 †

“By 1970 you could watch a river catch fire and smell the air in the cities. Smog burned our eyes, rivers ran with chemicals, and the bald eagle was nearly gone. On the first Earth Day, twenty million of us — students, families, old and young — came out into the streets and parks to say ‘enough.’ It wasn’t a protest against any one party; Republicans and Democrats alike were shocked at what we had done to the land, water, and air. Within a few years the government created the Environmental Protection Agency and passed the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act. For once, ordinary people demanding change actually got it, and the country was cleaner for it. It showed that Americans could still come together and make their government act on a problem that touched everyone.”

KEY TERMS Earth Day — the first nationwide environmental demonstration, April 22, 1970 · EPA — the Environmental Protection Agency, created in 1970 · environmental movement — the movement to protect nature and public health from pollution

What did the environmental movement achieve, and how?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker calls Earth Day a moment when “Americans could still come together.” How does that complicate the story of an era defined only by division?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A participant recalls the first Earth Day (1970), when 20 million Americans across party lines demanded action on pollution — leading quickly to the EPA and landmark clean-air and clean-water laws.

ENTRY QUESTION

What problems led Americans to hold the first Earth Day?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Rising alarm over pollution produced the first Earth Day in 1970, one of the largest demonstrations in U.S. history. It led to the EPA and major environmental laws — a rare bipartisan success in an increasingly divided era.

The Reagan Revolution

US.87 — Analyze the conservative resurgence of the 1980s and the changing view of government.

Source: President Ronald Reagan, First Inaugural Address · January 20, 1981 †

“These United States are confronted with an economic affliction of great proportions... idle industries have cast workers into unemployment, human misery, and personal indignity... In this present crisis, government is not the solution to our problem; government is the problem. From time to time we’ve been tempted to believe that society has become too complex to be managed by self-rule, that government by an elite group is superior to government for, by, and of the people. But if no one among us is capable of governing himself, then who among us has the capacity to govern someone else?... It is time to check and reverse the growth of government, which shows signs of having grown beyond the consent of the governed.”

KEY TERMS the Reagan Revolution — the 1980s shift toward tax cuts, deregulation, and smaller government · conservatism — a belief in limited government, lower taxes, and traditional values · deregulation — reducing government rules on business

How does Reagan’s view of government differ from Johnson’s Great Society (Doc 1)?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Reagan’s anti-government message won huge support after Vietnam and Watergate. How might the era’s loss of trust (Docs 2, 4) help explain his appeal?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

In his 1981 inaugural, Reagan declares that “government is not the solution... government is the problem” — launching a conservative turn toward tax cuts, deregulation, and shrinking the activist government of the Great Society.

ENTRY QUESTION

According to Reagan, what is the relationship between government and the nation’s problems?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Reagan’s 1981 election marked a conservative revolution, reversing decades of expanding government. His message of tax cuts, deregulation, and distrust of Washington reshaped American politics for a generation.

“No person shall receive any preference or priority or be discriminated against in the issuance of an immigrant visa because of his race, sex, nationality, place of birth, or place of residence... The [national-origins quota] system... is hereby abolished.” In signing the law, President Johnson declared that the old system “violated the basic principle of American democracy — the principle that values and rewards each man on the basis of his merit as a man,” and that “it has been un-American in the highest sense.”

KEY TERMS Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 — the law that ended national-origins quotas and reopened immigration · national-origins quota — the old system that favored immigrants from northern and western Europe

ANALYZE

How did the 1965 Immigration Act change who could come to the United States?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Lawmakers did not expect the act to change the country’s makeup much. How does that show that laws can have consequences their makers never intended?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

The 1965 Immigration Act abolished the old quotas that favored northern Europeans, opening the door to immigrants from Asia, Latin America, Africa, and the Middle East — and reshaping the makeup of the modern United States.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The 1965 Immigration Act, part of the Great Society, ended decades of discriminatory quotas. It transformed America into a far more diverse nation and set the stage for today’s debates over immigration.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did the 1965 Immigration Act forbid discriminating against?

Globalization and the American Worker

US.89 — Analyze globalization, free trade, and their effects on the American economy and workers.

Source: Recollection of a factory worker · 1990s †

“I worked at the plant for twenty-two years, like my father before me. It was hard work, but it paid enough to buy a house, raise three kids, and take a vacation once a year. Then in the 1990s they told us the plant was closing — the company could make the same product cheaper in Mexico and overseas. One by one, the factories in our town went dark, and the good jobs went with them. They told us this was ‘globalization’ and ‘free trade,’ that it was good for the country, that cheaper goods would help everyone. Maybe they were right about the prices at the store. But nobody had a plan for the men and women who had built things with their hands. Our town never really recovered, and a lot of people around here stopped believing that either party in Washington was looking out for us.”

KEY TERMS globalization — the growing connection of the world’s economies through trade and technology · free trade — reducing barriers to trade between countries; e.g., NAFTA (1994) · deindustrialization — the decline of manufacturing and factory jobs

How did globalization affect American workers and industrial towns?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The worker says people “stopped believing that either party” cared. How does economic change help explain the era’s political anger and distrust?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A factory worker describes how globalization and free trade sent manufacturing jobs overseas in the 1990s — hollowing out industrial towns and deepening distrust of both political parties.

ENTRY QUESTION

Why did the worker's plant close?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

From the 1970s on, globalization and free-trade deals like NAFTA brought cheaper goods but sent millions of manufacturing jobs abroad. The decline of industrial towns fueled economic anxiety and political anger that still shape the nation.

The Digital Revolution

US.90 — Analyze the technological revolution and its transformation of American life.

Source: Recollection of an American worker · 1980s–2000s †

“When I started working in the 1980s, we had typewriters and filing cabinets. Within twenty years, everything changed. First came a personal computer on every desk, then the internet, then a phone in every pocket more powerful than the computers that sent men to the moon. Suddenly you could send a message around the world in a second, look up any fact instantly, and shop, bank, and work without leaving your home. It created whole new industries and made a few people unimaginably rich. But it also changed us in ways we didn’t expect — people stopped talking to their neighbors and stared at screens instead, and later the same technology that connected us was used to spread rumors and drive us apart. No invention since the automobile changed daily American life so completely, and we are still learning to live with it.”

KEY TERMS the Digital Revolution — the rapid spread of computers, the internet, and mobile technology · the internet — the global network connecting computers, which reshaped modern life · social media — online platforms for sharing information — for better and for worse

How did the Digital Revolution transform American life — for better and for worse?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker says technology both “connected us” and was “used to drive us apart.” How can the same invention have opposite effects on a society?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

A worker recalls how computers, the internet, and smartphones transformed American life within a generation — creating new industries and connections, but also new isolation and division.

ENTRY QUESTION

Name two ways the speaker says technology changed daily life.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Digital Revolution — personal computers, the internet, and smartphones — reshaped how Americans work, shop, and communicate. It brought enormous benefits but also new problems, from job disruption to social media’s role in division.

US.91 — Analyze the September 11 attacks and the beginning of the War on Terror.

Source: President George W. Bush, address to the nation · September 11, 2001 †

“Today, our fellow citizens, our way of life, our very freedom came under attack in a series of deliberate and deadly terrorist acts. The victims were in airplanes, or in their offices: secretaries, businessmen and women, military and federal workers; moms and dads, friends and neighbors. Thousands of lives were suddenly ended by evil, despicable acts of terror... These acts shattered steel, but they cannot dent the steel of American resolve... Today, our nation saw evil, the very worst of human nature, and we responded with the best of America... This is a day when all Americans from every walk of life unite in our resolve for justice and peace.”

KEY TERMS 9/11 — the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks that killed nearly 3,000 people · terrorism — the use of violence against civilians to create fear and achieve political aims · the War on Terror — the U.S. campaign against terrorist groups after 9/11

How does Bush try to unite and reassure the nation after the attacks?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

Bush describes a nation united “from every walk of life.” How might that unity of 2001 contrast with the divisions that followed the wars it began?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

On the night of the September 11 attacks, President Bush addresses a shocked nation — mourning the dead, vowing resolve, and beginning the “War on Terror” that would define the next two decades.

ENTRY QUESTION

What does Bush say came “under attack” on September 11?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

On September 11, 2001, terrorists hijacked four planes, killing nearly 3,000 people. The attacks united the country in grief and led to the War on Terror, including wars in Afghanistan and Iraq that shaped the new century.

Security and Liberty after 9/11

US.92 — Analyze the tension between national security and civil liberties in the War on Terror.

Source: Recollection of an American after September 11 · 2000s †

“After 9/11 we were frightened, and we wanted our government to keep us safe. So we accepted things we might never have accepted before — taking off our shoes at the airport, cameras everywhere, and a law called the PATRIOT Act that let the government watch and listen in ways the Constitution had always limited. Most of us went along; we figured if you had nothing to hide, you had nothing to fear. But over the years some of us began to wonder how much freedom we had traded for safety, and whether the government had grown too powerful in the name of protecting us. It was the oldest question in American history, asked all over again: how does a free people stay both safe and free? Twenty years later, we were still arguing about the answer.”

KEY TERMS the PATRIOT Act — a 2001 law expanding government surveillance powers after 9/11 · surveillance — close watching or monitoring of people by the government · civil liberties — basic freedoms, like privacy, protected from government power

What trade-off between security and liberty does this account describe?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker calls this “the oldest question in American history.” How does the security-versus-liberty debate connect to earlier eras, such as the Cold War?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

An American reflects on the trade-off after 9/11 — accepting new surveillance and the PATRIOT Act for the sake of safety — and the enduring question of how a free people stay both safe and free.

ENTRY QUESTION

What did Americans accept after 9/11 in the name of safety?

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

After 9/11, the government expanded surveillance and security powers through measures like the PATRIOT Act. Americans debated how much liberty to trade for safety — an old tension between security and freedom, renewed for a new century.

A More Perfect Union

US.93 — Analyze milestones of a changing nation, including the 2008 election and the Great Recession.

Source: President Barack Obama, First Inaugural Address · January 20, 2009 †

“Forty-four Americans have now taken the presidential oath... That we are in the midst of crisis is now well understood. Our nation is at war against a far-reaching network of violence and hatred. Our economy is badly weakened... Yet, every so often the oath is taken amidst gathering clouds and raging storms. At these moments, America has carried on not simply because of the skill or vision of those in high office, but because We the People have remained faithful to the ideals of our forebears, and true to our founding documents... This is the meaning of our liberty and our creed, why men and women and children of every race and every faith can join in celebration across this magnificent Mall.”

ANALYZE

How does Obama try to inspire hope and unity during a time of crisis?

A Nation Still Arguing

US.95 — Analyze contemporary challenges to American democracy, including polarization and civic life.

Source: Reflection of an American citizen · present day †

“I’ve lived through a lot of American history now, and I’ve come to believe that arguing is what we do — it’s almost the point of us. We were born out of an argument about liberty, and we’ve been fighting about who counts as equal, how big the government should be, and what we owe each other ever since. In my lifetime I’ve watched us go to the moon and to war, pass laws I cheered and laws I hated, elect leaders I trusted and leaders I didn’t. Lately the arguing has gotten meaner, and the screens seem to make us angrier at each other than we need to be. But I remember that we’ve been divided before — badly — and somehow the system held. The test for the next generation is the same as it always was: whether a free and diverse people can keep governing themselves without coming apart.”

KEY TERMS polarization — the growing split between Americans into opposing political camps · civic life — the shared life of citizens taking part in their community and government · self-government — a people ruling themselves through democracy

How does the speaker place today’s divisions in the longer story of American history?

EXTEND · SOURCE IT (HIPPO)

The speaker says “we’ve been divided before... and somehow the system held.” How can studying the past shape the way we understand the challenges of the present?

UDL ACCESS SUPPORTS — on by default · teacher may hide for an AP-clean sheet

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

An American reflects that argument and division have always been part of the nation’s story — and that the enduring test is whether a free, diverse people can keep governing themselves without coming apart.

What does the speaker say Americans have always done throughout their history?

In recent decades, political polarization, social media, and distrust of institutions have deepened divisions. Yet Americans have faced deep division before. The nation’s founding experiment — self-government by a diverse people — continues to be tested.

THE QUESTION

From the 1960s to the present, Americans' relationship with their government and with one another changed profoundly. Using the documents in this packet, evaluate the extent to which this era was defined by a loss of trust in government and growing national division.

IN PLAIN LANGUAGE

since the 1960s, America has changed a lot — and so has how much people trust their government and each other. Using the documents, argue how much this era was defined by a loss of trust and growing division.

WHY IT MATTERS

the loss of trust that began with Vietnam and Watergate, and the debates over government, diversity, and division, still shape American politics and daily life today.

YOUR TASK — A STRONG RESPONSE WILL:

- ☐ Develop a defensible claim (thesis) that directly answers the prompt.
- ☐ Support your claim with specific evidence from at least FOUR documents (cite them as Doc 1, Doc 2, ...).
- ☐ For at least TWO documents, explain the point of view, purpose, historical situation, or intended audience (HIPPO).
- ☐ Use reasoning to explain how each piece of evidence supports your claim — don't just summarize the document.
- ☐ Address more than one perspective: the loss of trust and division, and the era's continued activism, hope, and renewal.

Scoring Rubric

Read this before you write — it is how your response will be scored.

Criterion	Pts	What earns the points
Claim / Thesis	1	States a defensible claim that responds to the prompt and establishes a line of reasoning.
Evidence from documents	2	Uses specific, accurate evidence from at least four documents to support the claim. (1 pt for evidence from two–three documents.)
Reasoning	1	Explains how the evidence supports the claim, rather than only restating what a document says.
Sourcing (HIPPO)	1	For at least two documents, explains how point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to the argument.
Complexity	1	Analyzes more than one perspective — declining trust and division alongside continued hope and renewal — or the tension between them.
