

U.S. HISTORY HACK™

Unit Assessment Book

Unit 4 — The 1920s (1920–1929) • Teacher Edition

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

Three parts: (1) Formative Checkpoints — a short check per standard for progress monitoring (MTSS); (2) Unit Summative — two parallel forms (A and B) for pre/post or retakes; (3) Teacher Answer Key + Item Analysis + Reteach.

All items are pulled from the History Hack question bank. Classroom-formative • pre-field-test (pre-calibration) — not a secure TCAP form. First administration is what calibrates these items.

Administering these forms is what generates the response data to CALIBRATE the pre-calibrated items — the first cycle of use closes the loop.

Keys and reteach live in this teacher book only — reproduce the student sections (formative + Form A/B) without the key section.

Contents

Part 1 — Formative Checkpoints (by standard)

A quick DOK-balanced check for each standard. Use for progress monitoring; reteach routing is in the Teacher Key.

US.28 — The Great Migration

1. What push factors drove African Americans to leave the rural South, and what pull factors attracted them to Northern industrial cities? [US.28 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Push factors included Jim Crow laws, sharecropping poverty, racial violence, and limited education; pull factors included industrial jobs, higher wages, voting rights, and less legal segregation
- B. Economic prosperity in the South kept most African Americans there, but this oversimplifies the complex factors at work despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this
- C. African Americans migrated primarily for climate reasons, but this fails to account for the broader historical context despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this
- D. The migration was forced by government relocation programs, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion, but closer analysis reveals a more complicated historical reality

2. How did economic opportunities in Northern cities compare to those available in the rural South? [US.28 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Economic opportunities were identical in both regions, which does not align with the documented historical record when examined alongside the available primary and secondary sources, which does not align with the documented historical record
- B. Northern industrial wages averaged $1,000+ annually versus $300 in the South, with factory jobs, business opportunities, and professional careers available that were closed to African Americans in the segregated South
- C. The South offered better economic opportunities, but contemporary accounts suggest a different explanation, which represents a common misconception about this historical period, which does not align with the documented historical record
- D. There were no jobs available in Northern cities, but this oversimplifies the complex factors at work, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era, which does not align with the documented historical record

US.29 — Radio, Movies, and Popular Culture

1. How did radio transform American society by creating the first truly national mass communication medium? [US.29 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Radio reached millions simultaneously, creating shared experiences across geographic boundaries, promoting consumer culture through advertising, and allowing politicians to speak directly to voters
- B. Radio had limited reach in the 1920s, although this view has been largely discredited by scholars, but closer analysis reveals a more complicated historical reality, but the historical evidence paints a more nuanced picture
- C. Radio only played music, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence and oversimplifies the complex factors at work during this period
- D. Radio was too expensive for most Americans, although this view has been largely discredited by scholars, which represents a common misconception about this historical period

2. What role did the film industry and movie theaters play in creating shared cultural experiences across America? [US.29 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Movies were only popular in large cities, but this fails to account for the broader historical context, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence
- B. With 50 million weekly attendees by 1929, movies created common cultural references, glamorous shared experiences in movie palaces, and national heroes through the Hollywood star system
- C. Movie theaters replaced radio as the primary entertainment, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era, although historical sources do not support this conclusion
- D. Films had no cultural impact outside entertainment, but the historical record tells a more complex story, but closer analysis reveals a more complicated historical reality

US.30 — Grand Ole Opry, Blues & Country Music

1. How did country and blues music develop from rural folk traditions into popular American musical genres? [US.30 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Country evolved from Scottish-Irish ballads and gospel, blues from African American work songs and spirituals; 1920s recording technology and radio brought both to national audiences
- B. Country and blues were created by professional composers, although historical sources do not support this conclusion and does not reflect the scholarly consensus on this topic
- C. These genres originated in Northern cities, but this fails to account for the broader historical context, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era
- D. Country and blues developed independently without folk roots, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion, which represents a common misconception about this historical period

2. What role did the Grand Ole Opry play in making Nashville the center of country music and promoting the genre nationally? [US.30 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. The Grand Ole Opry had limited influence, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, which does not align with the documented historical record
- B. Beginning in 1925, its live Saturday radio broadcasts reached millions nationwide, launched careers, preserved folk traditions, and established Nashville as "Music City"
- C. The Opry only broadcast locally, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors, which represents a common misconception about this historical period
- D. Country music was already centered in Nashville before the Opry, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era

US.31 — New Technologies: Air Travel and Electricity

1. How did the advent of commercial air travel revolutionize transportation and connect distant regions of America? [US.31 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Aviation reduced travel time from days to hours, connected isolated regions to national markets, created new industries, and Lindbergh's 1927 flight captured public imagination for commercial aviation
- B. Air travel had minimal impact in the 1920s, but this fails to account for the broader historical context when examined alongside the available primary and secondary sources
- C. Only the military used aircraft, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, which represents a common misconception about this historical period, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence
- D. Air travel was slower than trains, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era

2. What was the impact of electrical power expansion on urban and rural communities during the 1920s?

[US.31 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Electricity was equally available everywhere, which represents a common misconception about the period, but closer analysis reveals a more complicated historical reality and does not reflect the scholarly consensus on this topic
- B. 85% of urban homes were electrified by 1930, transforming city life with lighting, transportation, and appliances, but only 10% of rural homes had electricity, creating a significant urban-rural divide
- C. Rural areas had more electricity than cities, which does not reflect the consensus among historians when examined alongside the available primary and secondary sources, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era
- D. Electricity had no significant impact on daily life, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion and oversimplifies the complex factors at work during this period

US.32 — Henry Ford, the Automobile & Mass Production1. How did Henry Ford revolutionize manufacturing through the assembly line and mass production methods? [US.32 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Ford's assembly line used moving conveyor belts, interchangeable parts, and specialized labor to reduce Model T assembly from 12 hours to 93 minutes, establishing mass production as the industrial standard
- B. Ford made only minor improvements to manufacturing, which represents a common misconception about the period despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this
- C. Assembly lines existed before Ford, but this oversimplifies the complex factors at work, although historical sources do not support this conclusion and fails to account for key developments in the broader context
- D. Ford focused only on product quality, not production speed, despite the fact that multiple sources contradict this view, which represents a common misconception about this historical period

2. What economic impacts did Ford's innovations have on workers, consumers, and American industry?

[US.32 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Ford's methods had limited economic impact, but the historical record tells a more complex story, which ignores significant political and cultural developments of the era
- B. The $5 Day doubled wages and reduced turnover; mass production cut Model T prices 65%, making cars affordable for millions; and Ford's methods spread throughout industry, driving economic growth
- C. Workers' wages decreased under Ford, which does not align with the documented historical record despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this, although historical sources do not support this conclusion
- D. Only wealthy consumers could afford Model Ts, but the historical record tells a more complex story and oversimplifies the complex factors at work during this period, but the historical evidence paints a more nuanced picture

US.33 — The Harlem Renaissance1. What factors led to the emergence of the Harlem Renaissance as a major cultural movement in the 1920s? [US.33 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. The Great Migration concentrated African American talent in urban communities, post-WWI expectations for equality increased, and venues, publications, and patrons provided platforms for creative expression
- B. The Renaissance began without any particular causes, which represents a common misconception about the period when examined alongside the available primary and secondary sources

- C. The government sponsored the Harlem Renaissance, despite the fact that multiple sources contradict this view, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence and does not reflect the scholarly consensus on this topic
- D. The Renaissance was limited to music, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, but closer analysis reveals a more complicated historical reality, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors involved

2. How did musicians like Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington transform jazz into a distinctly American art form? [US.33 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Armstrong and Ellington had minimal impact on jazz, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era
- B. Armstrong revolutionized jazz with solo improvisation and scat singing while Ellington's sophisticated compositions elevated jazz to serious art, both making it globally recognized as America's unique musical contribution
- C. Jazz was already fully developed before them, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion, and this view has been largely revised by modern historical research, which does not align with the documented historical record
- D. They only performed for African American audiences, despite the fact that multiple sources contradict this view, which ignores significant political and cultural developments of the era and oversimplifies the complex factors at work during this period

US.34 — Women in the 1920s: Flappers & Social Changes

1. How did the "flapper" represent changing attitudes toward women's roles, behavior, and independence in the 1920s? [US.34 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Flappers rejected Victorian ideals through fashion, behavior, and attitudes—wearing short skirts, smoking, dancing, dating freely, and asserting independence in personal and economic choices
- B. Flappers represented traditional Victorian values, which does not align with the documented historical record and oversimplifies the complex factors at work during this period
- C. Flappers were a small, insignificant group, although this view has been largely discredited by scholars, but contemporary accounts and primary sources suggest otherwise
- D. Flapper culture was accepted by all Americans, despite the fact that multiple sources contradict this view, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors involved

2. What impact did increased access to birth control have on women's lives and family planning decisions? [US.34 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Birth control had no significant impact, but contemporary accounts suggest a different explanation despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this and does not reflect the scholarly consensus on this topic
- B. Birth control enabled women to control family size (average dropped from 7 to 3 children), improve maternal health, pursue education and careers, and gain greater autonomy over their bodies and futures
- C. Birth control was universally accepted, despite the fact that multiple sources contradict this view and oversimplifies the complex factors at work during this period, which does not align with the documented historical record
- D. Only wealthy women had access to birth control, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors involved

US.35 — Civil Liberties: Red Scare, KKK & NAACP

1. How did the First Red Scare violate civil liberties and create an atmosphere of fear and suspicion?

[US.35 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Palmer Raids arrested over 6,000 without warrants, deported immigrants without due process, banned socialist publications, and created an atmosphere of fear that suppressed free speech and political dissent
- B. The Red Scare had minimal impact on civil liberties, which ignores key developments that shaped the outcome, but contemporary accounts and primary sources suggest otherwise, but the historical evidence paints a more nuanced picture
- C. Civil liberties were protected during the Red Scare, which does not reflect the consensus among historians and does not reflect the scholarly consensus on this topic when examined alongside the available primary and secondary sources
- D. Only communist party members were affected, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era and fails to account for key developments in the broader context, although historical sources do not support this conclusion

2. What were the goals and effects of the 1920s Immigration Quota Acts in limiting immigration? [US.35 •

DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. The quota acts had no effect on immigration, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era and does not reflect the scholarly consensus on this topic
- B. The acts aimed to preserve Northern European dominance by using discriminatory quotas based on 1890 census, banning Asian immigration, and reducing total immigration from 800,000 to 150,000 annually
- C. The acts increased immigration diversity, despite the fact that multiple sources contradict this view, but contemporary accounts and primary sources suggest otherwise, which does not align with the documented historical record
- D. All countries received equal immigration quotas, although this view has been largely discredited by scholars, but contemporary accounts and primary sources suggest otherwise

US.36 — The Scopes Trial

1. What were the main arguments for and against teaching evolution in public schools during the Scopes Trial? [US.36 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Prosecution argued the Bible was literally true and evolution undermined morality; defense argued evolution was scientifically proven, teachers needed academic freedom, and religious doctrine shouldn't control public schools
- B. Both sides agreed on educational standards, despite limited evidence supporting this interpretation, but contemporary accounts and primary sources suggest otherwise, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era
- C. The trial was only about Scopes' teaching credentials, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors despite the fact that multiple contemporary sources contradict this, which does not align with the documented historical record
- D. Neither side presented substantive arguments, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, but closer analysis reveals a more complicated historical reality, which represents a common misconception about this historical period

2. What was the outcome of the trial, and how did it affect science education and public discourse? [US.36

• DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. The trial had no lasting effects, yet the available evidence points to a different conclusion, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, which contradicts the primary source evidence from this era

- B. Scopes was convicted but later overturned on technicality; the Butler Act remained until 1967; textbooks removed evolution; teachers avoided the topic for decades; the trial became enduring symbol of science-religion conflict
- C. Evolution was immediately accepted nationwide, but the historical record tells a more complex story, though this interpretation lacks supporting historical evidence, which does not align with the documented historical record
- D. The trial ended all debate about teaching evolution, although historical sources do not support this conclusion, but contemporary accounts and primary sources suggest otherwise, although historical sources do not support this conclusion

US.37 — Prohibition & Its Impact on American Society

1. What were the intended goals of Prohibition, and why did it fail to achieve these objectives? [US.37 • DOK 2 • pre-field-test]

- A. Goals included reducing crime, improving health, and strengthening families, but Prohibition instead increased crime through illegal trade, overwhelmed limited enforcement, and created disrespect for law while alcohol consumption continued
- B. Prohibition achieved all its goals, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors involved, but the historical evidence paints a more nuanced picture
- C. Prohibition had no specific goals, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors, which represents a common misconception about this historical period, although this overlooks critical economic and social factors involved
