

The Homestead Act of 1862 — Close Read

Read the real words of the law. Simpler English, Spanish, and a word bank are on the next pages.

How to read this (UDL). Read each numbered part slowly. Circle or underline any word you don't know. Jot a quick note or a ★/? in the Notes column. Stuck on the old-style wording? Read the Simpler Words page or the versión en español, then come back. A read-aloud is available in the app.

Example — beside Part 1 you might jot: “Who can get land? → adults & citizens.”

- 1 That any person who is the head of a family, or who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or who shall have filed his declaration of intention to become such ... shall ... be entitled to enter one quarter section [160 acres] ... of unappropriated public lands ...
- 2 ... and who has never borne arms against the United States Government or given aid and comfort to its enemies ...
- 3 ... subject to preemption at one dollar and twenty-five cents [$1.25], or less, per acre.
- 4 [Sec. 2.] ... the person applying ... shall make affidavit [a sworn promise] ... that said entry is made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation, and not ... for the use or benefit of any other person ...
- 5 ... and on payment of ten dollars [$10], he or she shall thereupon be permitted to enter the quantity of land specified.
- 6 [Sec. 3.] ... no certificate shall be given, or patent [legal title] issued ... until the expiration of five years from the date of such entry ...
- 7 ... [the settler] shall prove by two credible witnesses that he, she, or they have resided upon or cultivated the same for the term of five years ...
- 8 ... [but] if ... [the settler] shall have ... abandoned the said land for more than six months at any time, then ... the land so entered shall revert to [go back to] the government.

The Same Law in Simpler Words

Same meaning, easier reading. This tells you what the law on the first page says, in shorter sentences.

- 1 In 1862, the United States made a new law. It was called the Homestead Act.
- 2 The law offered free land in the West. An adult could ask for up to 160 acres.
- 3 To ask for land, you had to be 21 years old, or the head of a family. You had to be a citizen, or be working to become one. You could not have fought against the United States.
- 4 First, you went to a land office. You signed a paper called an affidavit. You promised the land was for your own family farm. You paid a small fee of ten dollars.
- 5 Then you had to live on the land for five years. You had to farm it and build on it. Two people had to say that you really lived there.
- 6 If you left the land for more than six months, you lost it. The land went back to the government.
- 7 After five years, the government gave you a patent. A patent is a paper that says the land is yours.
- 8 But the land was not empty. Native nations already lived on it. The law called their land “unclaimed.” Many Native families lost their homeland so settlers could get farms.

La Ley de Heredades (Homestead Act) — en español

Para lectores de español. Esta es la misma ley, explicada en español sencillo. Puedes leerla antes o después del texto original en inglés. Las palabras clave están en el Word Bank de la página anterior. (This is the same leveled text in Spanish; read it before or after the English.)

- 1 En 1862, Estados Unidos aprobó una nueva ley. Se llamó la Ley de Heredades (Homestead Act).
- 2 La ley ofrecía tierra gratis en el Oeste. Un adulto podía pedir hasta 160 acres.
- 3 Para pedir la tierra, tenías que tener 21 años, o ser jefe o jefa de familia. Tenías que ser ciudadano, o estar tramitando la ciudadanía. No podías haber luchado contra Estados Unidos.
- 4 Primero, ibas a una oficina de tierras. Firmabas un papel llamado declaración jurada (affidavit). Prometías que la tierra era para la granja de tu propia familia. Pagabas una cuota de diez dólares.
- 5 Después tenías que vivir en la tierra por cinco años. Tenías que cultivarla y construir en ella. Dos personas tenían que confirmar que de verdad vivías allí.
- 6 Si dejabas la tierra por más de seis meses, la perdías. La tierra regresaba al gobierno.
- 7 Después de cinco años, el gobierno te daba un patent (título de propiedad). El título es un papel que dice que la tierra es tuya.
- 8 Pero la tierra no estaba vacía. Las naciones indígenas ya vivían allí. La ley llamó a sus tierras “no reclamadas.” Muchas familias indígenas perdieron su hogar para que los colonos consiguieran granjas.

Cognados que ayudan (words that look alike in both languages):

acre = acre

family = familia

citizen = ciudadano

cultivate = cultivar

government = gobierno

declaration = declaración

patent = título / patente

Native nations = naciones indígenas

A Few Close-Read Questions (optional)

Optional. Use these if you want to check understanding — or skip them and just read and discuss. Every answer can be found in, or reasoned from, the text.

Right there

1. How many years did a settler have to live on and farm the land before they owned it? (Use the simpler version and word bank if you need them.)

Sentence starter: A settler had to live on and farm the land for ____ years.

Word choice

2. The law calls the land “unappropriated” (unclaimed). Who really lived there already? What does that word choice leave out?

Sentence starter: The land was really the home of _____. Calling it “unclaimed” hides that _____.

Your view

3. Do you think the Homestead Act was fair? Use one detail from the text to explain.

Sentence starter: I think the law was (fair / not fair) because _____.

Supports on this sheet (UDL 3.0 • CAST 2024): the real law + a 3rd-grade retelling + a Spanish version + an English/Spanish word bank + cognates + a Notes column for annotation + sentence starters, plus a read-aloud in the app — so every reader has a way in. These add to — never replace — a student's IEP/504 accommodations.
